CAROL ON SON'S THRONE

Today

J. D., Jr., Gives $12,000,000.

To Survive, Advertise.

Fear Strange Thing.

Fifth in the U. S. A.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE WORLD NEEDS little and big things.

It needs little fortunes for millions of happy and useful families: big fortunes, with power, to do really big things.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., yesterday offered to New York City land for parks and buildings to the value of $12,000,000.

One enormous tract of 56 acres in Manhattan could not be duplicated.

Seven million dollars worth of land, and five million dollars worth of buildings, including the magnificent new building for the Gothic art treasures of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, make a considerable gift. You must have many millions to do that.

A SHORT TALK WITH John Hartford, president of the Atlantic and Pacific chain stores; his brother, George Hartford, and A. G. Hoffman, his brother-in-law, makes you realize that the modern chain store business is really BIG business.

It reveals the fact, although the revelation was not planned, that advertising is the best remedy for falling prices.

BEFORE JOHN HARTFORD'S desk was a map showing the drop in prices of commodities that looked like a wall of the Grand Canyon, but along the top, unbroken, ran a red line, showing well maintained prices and sales on WELL ADVERTISED BRANDS.

The only exception among the advertised brands was one particular corporation food. Perhaps it doesn't advertise enough.

Deep truth is in the advice:

"If you, business isn't worth advertising, advertise it for sale."

SOME IN CALIFORNIA have objected to the entrance of Atlantic and Pacific stores. The reply of the company is:

"We spend fifty million dollars every year, buying California products."

That one "chain" does an annual business of one thousand million dollars, pays railroads and other public carriers forty-five million dollars a year for transporting goods. The steel industry of the United States pays the railroads only forty millions.

THE COMPANY'S PROFIT on its turnover, according to Mr. Hartford, is two per cent, twenty millions on a billion.

J. Ogden Armour, when his income was $25,000,000 a year, said:

"I feel like a gypsy when I think about Rockefeller and Carnegie."

FEAR WORKS STRANGELY. Amy Johnson, English girl, 23, flew all alone in her little Gypsy Moth plane from England to Australia, 10,000 miles, without fear or hesitation.

Hurricanes, lightning, fogs, wide oceans, deserts, jungles; all meant nothing to that girl.

But when a radio hookup was all arranged, and the world was listening, little Miss Johnson ran away. She said:

"I'm afraid."

LOS ANGELES' POPULATION, according to the census, is 1,231,730, increase of 655,057, 113.59 per cent in 10 years.

Los Angeles County had 2,199,557. Five years ago, Los Angeles was number 10 among American cities. It has passed Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Boston, St. Louis and Cleveland and now stands number five.

MUST THE RELIGIOUS question creep into politics, despite many wise efforts to keep it out?

It crept in with a vengeance during the last presidential election. People talked wet and dry, but, to an unpleasant extent, they voted "Protestant and Catholic."

BISHOP CANNON, of the Methodist Church South, tells the Senate Lobby Committee:

"I won't answer your questions."

Senator Walsh calls it contempt. A big oil man was recently jailed for that.

But Bishop Cannon will not be jailed. He says Catholic Tammany Hall is persecuting him.

THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE, through the Rev. James K. Shields, in a letter "to the pastors of the state of New Jersey," meaning Protestant clergymen, tells them to work against Dwight W. Morrow, who is mildly wet, in favor of his opponent, Mr. Fort, who is bone dry.

HENRY FORD SAYS business conditions are improving rapidly.

"A lot of these fellows were fooling around with the stock market, and they got caught—badly caught. They had to go to work again. Now they have been at work, and they are beginning to enjoy it."

Business is improving, according to Mr. Ford, because intelligent people that were gambling are now working.

ONE LADY IN DETROIT, 22 years old, named Peggy Mahon, with a candid look from her blue eyes, says being a 'hat checker" in a dance hall, her former job, is no career.

Proud of her 100 holdups, she got boys 20 and younger to help in the "jobs," and says:

"I just vamped them. If they refused, I told them they

SUITOR DIES AS MARRIAGE PLEA FAILS

Braddock Youth, Spurned, Shoots Himself; Swissvale Home Scene of Tragedy

His proposal of marriage rejected, according to county detectives, Reginald Thompson, 21, of Fourth street, Braddock, shot and killed himself last night while seated beside Dorothy Kastler, 17, at her home, 8302 Florence avenue, Swissvale.

The young man, employed as a clerk at the Edgar Thomson steel works, Braddock, repeatedly had asked Miss Kastler to be his wife, Detectives John T. Burke and Anthony Ferrero reported.

Last night Thompson and George S. Chuchko, of 2429 Woodford avenue, Swissvale, joined Dorothy and Marion Lane, of 2018 Monroe street, Swissvale, as they were returning home from the commencement exercise of Swissvale High School.

THREAT TO END LIFE

George and Marion sat on the front porch of the Kastler home. Thompson and Dorothy went into the living room.

Thompson had showed a revolver to Dorothy last Tuesday and threatened to end his life if she did not marry him, the detectives reported, but the girl thought he was only joking. Last night he proposed again and was rejected. He drew a revolver from his pocket and placed it against Dorothy's breast.

"Put that gun away, it might hurt somebody," she exclaimed.

Thompson put the revolver back in his pocket, took out a card on which he wrote, "Notify Mrs. R. E. Rice, 7516 Ormond street, Swissvale," his mother.

FIRES FATAL SHOT

"You're just joking," Dorothy said.

He pulled the trigger and slumped over, unconscious. Shuchko and Miss Lane ran to the room and members of the family rushed in.

Thompson was taken to Columbia Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Dorothy told detectives, they said, that she had tried in vain to discourage Thompson's attentions for a year, but that he was very persistent.

Swissvale police informed the coroner's office that Thompson had been brooding over unemployment. The detectives said they learned nothing of his being out of work.

REPUBLICANS RE-ELECT MARTIN

BULLETIN.

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—(AP.)—Gen. Edward W. Martin, Republican state chairman, was re-elected here today in the contest with S. Van Brown.

By JESS BOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Political Writer.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 7.—As the Republican State Committee prepared to meet today, Gifford Pinchot, admitted Republican nominee for governor, claimed a total vote of 59, a majority of two, for his candidate for chairman of the Republican State Committee, S. Van Brown, of Lycoming County. This claim was countered by the forces of Francis Shunk Brown, who asserted they had a majority of 12 as the committee went into session.

It was admitted by all sides that the vote probably would be close, and that many members were undecided even when the roll call started.

FIGHT TO FINISH

Pinchot leaders declared they were going through with the battle in behalf of Brown.

Martin insisted his lines were holding and that he would remain in the fight to the finish.

Actually, there was little force to the contest, even though representatives of both sides had busied themselves during the night in a conference designed to line up a majority. It was conceded by the Brown supporters, outside of Philadelphia, that it made little difference who was chairman, so long as Pinchot appeared to have the gubernatorial nomination sewed up.

GRUNDY ACTIVE

Senator Joseph R. Grundy, defeated for the United States Senate nomination by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis has been especially active in the Van Brown drive. Grundy has called to his aid such leaders as Samuel S.

KING MICHAEL I

Roumania's nine-year-old king, crowned at the age of six in 1927, reported to have been dethroned. His father, Crown Prince Carol has succeeded him.

FATHER PUTS 'BOY KING' BACK IN NURSERY

Ends Exile Dramatically as Civil War Threat Forces New Regime for Rumania

PARIS, June 7.—(AP.)—Unofficial reports were received here today that former Crown Prince Carol had been proclaimed King of Rumania by the Rumanian Assembly.

Advices from Bucharest had said Carol would be proclaimed at 6 o'clock tonight (noon Pittsburgh time).

These reports were received sympathetically in semi-official circles, where it was said that, even if he had not already been proclaimed, the ceremony would not be long delayed.

Private advices reaching Paris from Bucharest indicated that the Liberal Party, which has been opposed to him, had decided to accept Carol as king rather than risk civil war. It is understood that the youthful King Michael will be placed in a nursery and that Carol will be given an opportunity to show whether he intends to be a good king, having left his indiscretions behind him.

BOY KING IN ECLIPSE

BUCHAREST, Rumania, June 7.—(AP.)—It has been decided that former Crown Prince Carol, who made a dramatic return here by airplane from exile yesterday, is to be proclaimed king of Rumania this evening.

This will remove from the list of European kings its youngest member, little King Michael, who ascended the throne on July 20, 1927, when not quite six years old.

King Michael, or "Mickey," as he was known by his young friends in the days before he became a king, was not to have actually ruled Rumania until he became of age. A board of regency, one member of which was his uncle, Prince Nicholas, acted in his stead, and he made his appearance as king only on formal occasions.

He is the hero of many childish exploits having to do with sports and his love of outdoor life.

Premier Juliu Maniu had announced that he would await a royal proclamation taking cognizance of Prince Carol's return, then resign. It is believed he will be asked to form another government, this time having representatives of all parties.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(INS.)—An ominous silence prevailed today among Senate opponents of the naval treaty concerning Secretary of State Stimson's refusal to submit to Chairman Borah, of the Foreign Relations Committee, the secret documents and data on the London conference.

Stimson flatly refused to give the committee what Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, wanted, but sent along data concerning the Geneva conference of 1927 and some selected secret data he considered not harmful.

Acting under instructions from President Hoover, Stimson based his refusal on the fear distrust of the United States might be en-

Bus Garage Crashes, 3 Hurt

Three workmen were injured and a score others narrowly escaped when the central portion of an immense garage being erected for the Greyhound Bus Lines covering a block in Columbus avenue between St. Mark and St. Ives streets, collapsed this afternoon, pinning the men in the wreckage.

Police extricated the men, James Emory, 35, of 1208 Sandusky street, was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital suffering from fractures of both legs and internal injuries. Joseph DeAngelo, of Mt. Washington and James Thompson, of 1421 Hunter street, Wilkinsburg, were removed to St. John's Hospital, both reported seriously injured.

BALLOT INQUIRY REPORT DUE

With the ballot box battle still raging, the special recount board, under the supervision of Judge James R. Macfarlane will make public its report today on the box from the First District, Sixth Ward.

This is the box from which the voters' list mysteriously disappeared. Attorney Leander Trautman, chairman of the board, said last night that the report on the box had been completed and its publication approved by Judge Macfarlane.

Attorney Samuel S. Rosenberg, counsel for the Davis-Brown state committee, issued an open letter yesterday to the minority inspectors of Wilkinsburg calling on them to ignore the letter of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern asking that they bring their records of the election to his office for comparison with the records the Pinchot forces compiled from the return board.

The letter was given out after Rosenberg conferred with Judge Macfarlane in the latter's chamber for two hours.

Rosenberg's letter said in part:

"It is your duty to retain the various records for one year. The minority county commis-

MacDonald Quits Plane in Storm

LOSSIEMOUTH, Scotland, June 7.—(AP.)—Prime Minister MacDonald arrived at his home here today by motor after a stormy trip from London which forced him to abandon his plane.

The plane came down at Leuchards airdrome because of bad weather reports. Mr. MacDonald waited four hours for an improvement before continuing by motor.

Brother of Dawes Routed by Flames

Smoke awakened Dawes, who awakened the household. Dawes is a brother of Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to the court of St. James.

N. Y. Bank Bandits Get $22,000 Loot

NEW YORK, June 7.—(INS.)—Several armed men forced their way into the Richmond Hill National Bank, Richmond Hill, Queens, today and, after handcuffing two women and five men employes as they arrived at intervals, forced the manager, Albert M. Thorne to open the safe and escaped with $22,000. The bandits fled in an automobile.

Amy Johnson's Kin Sailing for U. S.

LONDON, June 7.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Johnson, parents of Miss Amy Johnson, British flier, who has just completed a trip from Croydon to Sydney, Australia, left London today to sail with the European delegation to the forthcoming Rotary convention in Chicago. The Johnsons will return home by the time Miss Amy arrives from Australia.

AVALON AGAINST BLUE LAWS

Avalon records its pronounced opposition to the Pennsylvania closed Sunday by an impressive majority favoring repeal of the ancient Blue Laws in the poll of Allegheny County by the Sun-Telegraph.

Nearly 300 voters of the borough, a substantial proportion of its actual voting population, have cast ballots in the poll to date showing a ratio of 5.6 votes for repeal for every vote in favor of the Blue Laws.

For the Blue Laws	41
For modification	9
For repeal	245

These figures represent 82 per cent of the total in favor of repeal, 15 per cent in favor of the Blue Laws and 3 per cent for modification.

Steel Drops As Market Declines

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP.)—Large-scale liquidation poured into the stock market at the opening today, depressing leading shares from $1 to $5, and sending U. S. Steel common down more than $2 to a new low for the year.

The ticker soon fell several minutes in arrears.

Professional short selling was said in brokerage circles to be in large volume.

U. S. Steel common sold down to $164.50, compared with a low last November of $150. Such shares as Radio, Byers, Westinghouse Electric, Case, American and Foreign Power and American Can lost $3 to $4 a share.

Pitt Co-Ed Hurt in Fall From Pageant Float

Eleanor Hoffman, 20, of 1138 Jancey street, was injured when she fell from a float in the Parade of the Pantherettes, an event marking senior week at the University of Pittsburgh. Miss Hoffman fell from the truck and suffered a possible fracture of the skull as it made a sudden stop at the close of the parade. She was removed to the Homeopathic Hospital. She was riding on a float representing the Pi Beta Phi sorority.

The Zeta Tau Alpha sorority, with its "Chant of the Jungle" float won first place on the parade. More than a dozen sororities entered floats in the parade. One of the rules of the contest prohibited any of the entrants from spending more than $5 on the entering float. Most of the costumes and other materials used in the parade were garnered from far and wide.

Other events which will mark the week will be the Sailor's Brawl and the interfraternity sweepstakes.

REED AND GRUNDY MAY VOTE AGAINST TARIFF BILL

PENNA. BOLT MAY KILL MEASURE

State's Industries Hurt, Says Pittsburgh Senator; Debenture Fight Revived

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Threat of a new fight for inclusion of the export debenture plan of farm relief in the administration's highly harassed tariff bill today disturbed the happy expectations of administration leaders to pass the bill through Congress next week.

The Democratic-Insurgent coalition was expected to make a final effort in the Senate for inclusion of the debenture. This could be done only by returning the bill to conference for the third time, with instructions to the Senate conferees to propose the debenture.

Originally the Senate adopted the debenture by a nine margin, but later voted, 43 to 41, to release its conferees from further defense of the plan. It was immediately dropped from the bill.

MAY BE DELAY

The revival of the debenture fight will not delay passage of the bill unless the Senate has changed its mind again. If it should support the debenture, it would delay the bill for several days, since the House has twice rejected the plan.

Of more real menace was the report that the administration would lose the votes of the two Republican senators—David A. Reed and Joseph R. Grundy—from the high protection state of Pennsylvania. The report sounded incredible until Reed told newspapermen he had not decided to vote for the bill.

"Pennsylvania, in many respects, fares much worse under this bill than it does under the 1922 act (existing law)," said Reed.

SAYS STATE SUFFERS

"In the eastern half of the state, the textile and cement industries get some benefits under this new bill, but in the western section, the metal and glass industries are damaged. And the state as a whole suffers from the increased duties in the farm schedule. I have not yet decided how I will vote."

Despite this statement, administration leaders confidently predicted both Pennsylvania senators would be "in line" on the final rollcall. If they bolt, it will virtually kill the bill, and it will mark the first time in history that Pennsylvania's senatorial representatives have opposed a tariff bill.

RESULT IN DOUBT

The International News Service poll continued to show passage of the bill in the Senate by a vote of 49 to 47, but both Reed and Grundy were credited as favoring the bill. A poll by one of the Democratic leaders placed the vote at 49 to 45, with two Senators classed as doubtful. The Democratic leader likewise placed both Reed and Grundy in the "aye" column, two doubtful Senators being in the insurgent group.

There was no question left over [illegible] able action by the House. In [illegible] r branch, administration [illegible] mmanded an overmajority and declared it would pass easily.

REED DENIES ENVOY RUMOR

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP.) [illegible] ying a report that he probably would succeed Ambassador [illegible] ndon, Senator David [illegible] of Pennsylvania, [illegible] had never been suggested [illegible] n.

"So far as I know," Senator Reed said, "Ambassador Dawes will remain in London for another year. Whether he remains longer than that I do not know. In any event I am not going to be ambassador to London. It has never been suggested to me by any responsible person."

Friends of the Senator said it was unlikely he would resign from the Senate, but would serve his full term ending in 1935.

Beer in Parked Car Seized in Garage

Four hundred and fifty-six pints of Canadian beer were seized in an automobile in the North Side Garage, 106 North avenue, today by Lieutenant of Police Charles Cahill. The raid was made on a tip received by Lieut. Cahill. He removed the automobile and the beer to the North Side Police Station. The owner of the car has not been found.

sioner has no right to ask you to part with them.

"In so doing he is requesting you to violate the election law. You will therefore ignore Commissioner McGovern's letter entirely and by no means turn over any of the election papers requested unless you are called upon to do so by His Honor, Judge James R. Macfarlane, president judge of Common Pleas Court."

M'GOVERN REPLIES

Later in the day Commissioner McGovern gave out the following statement:

"Gov. Pinchot's nomination was the answer to the people's demand for honest elections. For years a small group has led the fight in this county for honest counts openly and publicly made. In the present case, petition has been made to the Court of Common Pleas of this county attacking the integrity of the vote cast in Wilkinsburg at the last primary. Implicit confidence in the good people of the borough urges Pinchot followers to direct counsel representing the governor's committee here not to oppose the petitions asking for the impounding of the ballot boxes in the First and Second Wards of Wilkinsburg as they are firmly of the belief that they will check perfectly.

My request to the Wilkinsburg minority inspectors to permit me to see their retained election documents was prompted only by a desire to protect the members of the election boards of the several election districts from charges of fraud by inference, which have already been made against them.

"There is no legal objection to a minority inspector exhibiting election documents to any person who desires to see them. They are, beyond question, public property.

"It seems to me that minority inspectors should be quite suspicious of any advice given them by the attorney who represents the very interests which are at the same time charging them with fraud.

"Experience has shown that ballot boxes brought into the courthouse for recount by the present recounting board are not safely kept. Proper publicity given to the minority inspector's documents would tend to protect the several Wilkinsburg election boards notwithstanding any laxity in the courthouse. I can well understand why the persons who are, with one breath, charging fraud, in the next breath, have advised the accused minority inspectors to keep their papers secret."

County detectives have been assigned to the recount board room on the fifth floor of the Court House with instructions not to permit any persons, except members and clerks of the board, to pass the rail surrounding the board.

The exclusion order includes all candidates' attorneys who in the last two sessions of the board have had free access to the activities.

Fatal Plane Crash Cause Investigated

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., June 7.—(INS.)—Inquiry was begun today to establish the cause of an airplane crash which killed Cratus Douthitt, 22, late yesterday, and probably fatally injured Warren Fannin, of Ashland, Ky. AVALON AGAINST BLUE LAWS

The division of the vote between men and women is as follows: For the Blue Laws, 24 men and 20 women; for modication, 6 men and 3 women; for repeal, 189 men and 56 women.

The results to date in the poll of this select residential suburb in the Ohio Valley are regarded generally as surprising. It was one of the first boroughs to receive ballots and, while the poll in it is incomplete, the returns are sufficient, according to election experience, to indicate a final majority favoring repeal of the Blue Laws. Avalon was expected to give strong support to the Blue Laws.

The total vote throughout Allegheny County in the poll to date is 38,477 divided, as follows:

For the Blue Laws	5,613
For modification	2,849
For repeal	30,015

The general ratio is 5.4 votes for repeal to one vote in favor of the Blue Laws. The proportionate vote on the three questions is 78 per cent for repeal, 15 per cent for the Blue Laws and 7 per cent for modification.

Liquor, Mash Seized In Raids; 2 Arrests

A woman and a man were arrested by prohibition agents in two raids yesterday.

In the store of Anna Borowitz, 31, of 610 Jerome street, McKeesport, seven pints of moonshine were seized, agents said. The seizure resulted in her arrest.

Adolph Morval, 63, was arrested in a raid at 924 Mellon street, where a 50-gallon still and seven 50-gallon vats of mash were found.

One News Tipster Wins Prize Three Times

In another bundle of checks being mailed today to weekly winners of Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph News Tip prizes is one for a wide-awake Pittsburgher who has won three times in this interesting game.

A little girl is getting her second check for being alert and calling Grant 6500 and asking for the News Tip editor the moment she witnessed some event of news interest.

Each week the Sun-Telegraph distributes $100 in cash prizes, including a capital prize of $50 for the best "tip" turned in during the week.

Because many persons who call the News Tip editor ask that their cause many persons who call the News Tip editor ask that their names be withheld, the names of all persons who call are held in confidence.

FAMILY AT WAR OVER DERBY SWEEP PRIZE

Brooklyn Boy Deposits Check In Own Name, Father Insists Ticket Was His

QUEBEC, Que., June 7.—(AP.)—Although the check for $149,000, won on a $1 ticket in an English derby sweepstake, was in a bank, all was not serene today in the Dougherty family of Brooklyn.

Edward Patrick Dougherty, 19, in whose name the ticket was registered, deposited the entire sum to his account. He had gone himself to the headquarters of the Quebec Army and Navy Veterans organization, which organized the sweepstake, obtained the check and deposited it in the bank before the rest of the family caught up with him.

Daniel Dougherty, the father, and Daniel, Jr., accompanied by a lawyer, dashed into the bank to find Edward posing with the check for cameramen.

"The winning ticket was mine," said the elder Dougherty with a glare when invited to stand before the cameras.

"I'll come into a photo when these boys sign a paper saying they will accept $41,000 each, and not before," he roared.

"The boys can't do anything with the money," he added, "as they are minors, and I'm going to see that I get it. This isn't the end."

CAROL SEIZES SON'S THRONE

got into immediate touch with the government and Premier Maniu, who convoked the council of ministers in an extraordinary session to determine in what form Carol could participate constitutionally in his country's affairs.

Negotiations were begun immediately to place him in the regency, replacing his younger brother, Prince Nicholas, who is leaving on a foreign tour June 18. To meet any emergencies, the Premier extended the current parliamentary session until June 14. A censorship was established over the entire country.

An official communique was issued. It merely said Prince Carol had arrived back in Bucharest and had conferred with his brother, Nicholas, and Premier Maniu, who had convoked the Council of Ministers in urgent session.

LEFT PARIS SUDDENLY

Carol was known here today to have disappeared from his Paris residence two days ago, leaving no word of his whereabouts. There were published reports that he would meet his mother, who left here yesterday for Oberammergau, at that place and discuss with her the matter of his return.

For several weeks there has been growing agitations in favor of the young prince-father's coming back to his homeland, an eventuality which he had sought for months. Chief opposition seemed to lie in the old Liberal elements represented by the government of M. Bratianu of two years ago.

There were various reports as to the attitude of his family toward his return. Princess Helen of Greece, mother of Michael and Carol's divorced wife, was said to have objected strenuously and to have threatened to leave Rumania if Carol did come back.

WILL NOT BE RECONCILED

She refused, it was said, to become reconciled with him, even though he broke with Mme. Magda Lupescu, red-haired companion, love of whom had led him to Paris and to give up his rights to the Rumanian throne.

Prince Carol renounced his rights to the throne December 31, 1925, and disappeared, to be heard from next in Milan, Italy, where he had Mme. Lupescu as a companion. Unless secretly, he has not been in Rumania since until now.

PINCHOT CLAIMS VICTORY FOR VAN BROWN

Foes Also Forecast Majority In Fight for State G. O. P. Chair; Close Vote Looms

Lewis, of York County, Auditor General Charles A. Waters, Representative John M. Flynn, of Elk County, and James J. Coyne, of Allegheny.

Amid the Grundy activity, however, the Martin backers have not been asleep. Gathering around him County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham, Councilman Charles B. Hall and State Senator Samuel W. Salus as local conferees, and being aided materially by former State Chairman W. L. Mellon and National Committeeman W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Martin has worked hard to meet and chat with every possible delegate whose vote might bring him victory.

RESEMBLES REUNION

Although the primary was concluded just two weeks ago, the gathering here in many ways resembles a reunion of Pennsylvania Republicans, most of whom are anxious to let political bygones be bygones and bury their hatchets.

Secretary Davis declared he was not taking any part in the chairmanship contest.

"Gen. Martin was opposed to me in the primary," Mr. Davis said, "but I believe in returning good for evil, and I have told the state committee delegations from Allegheny and other western counties who notified me they were for Martin for chairman, that it was all right with me."

Secretary Davis and Senator Grundy are mingling with their friends and foes, likewise former Gov. Pinchot and Francis Shunk Brown, as defeated opponent for governor. Absent, however, are representatives of the Mellon family, who were so prominent at the State Committee meeting two years ago, when presidential preliminaries were in the air. Another absentee is Senator David A. Reed.

SIMMONS' FATE UP TO VOTERS

RALEIGH, N. C., June 7.—(AP.)—Josiah W. Bailey's attempt to wrest the Democratic senatorial nomination from the veteran senator, Furnifold M. Simmons, dominated interest in today's primaries. Predictions were that the vote would be the heaviest ever cast in a Democratic primary not held in a presidential year.

The senatorial contest is a throw-back from the 1928 election in which Senator Simmons refused to support Alfred E. Smith, the party's nominee for President. Bailey backed the New Yorker.

Senator Simmons is opposed for the nomination for the first time since 1912. Now 74, he has held his seat since 1901.

Lutherans Consider Shift in Government

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., June 7.—(AP.)—Proposals for a change in the form of church government faced the 2,000 delegates to the seventy-first annual convention of the Lutheran Augustana Synod as its first business session started today.

Controversy over church government was foreseen after the Synodical Council had indicated it would recommend that the bishop's cross received by Dr. G. A. Brandelle, of Rock Island, be accepted officially. Opponents declare this would imply acceptance of the Episcopate form of church government.

gendered among the powers in future conferences if the "confidences" at London were disclosed. It would be incompatible with the public interest, Hoover has decided, Stimson said.

NO SECRET ACCORDS

The secretary assured Borah there were no secret commitments or understandings and that the treaty would have to speak for itself.

He described as "nonsense" any implication that "these confidential papers are being kept confidential in order to cover up some secret understanding or some mistake or indiscretion of the American delegates."

Borah in person, also submitted a "confidential memorandum," which, he said, would answer so far as possible the questions asked by Johnson.

MORROW BACKS PACT

PATERSON, N. J., June 7.—(AP.)—Dwight W. Morrow, candidate for the United States Senate, in a campaign address here last night, urged ratification of the London naval treaty, both as a safeguard of peace and as a guide for naval construction. He said the treaty was a good thing for the Navy.

"I hope and expect that the naval treaty will be ratified promptly. If I should be elected to the Senate and that question should still be pending, I expect to vote for its ratification."

Chicago Aid Sought In Gangster Threat

AURORA, Ill., June 7.—(INS.)—An extra force of sheriff's deputies today guarded South Kane County following a report that a gang massacre has been planned by Chicago gunmen.

LOUIS MAYER CLEARED IN OIL CASE

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, June 7.—Absolute exoneration of the charge of conspiracy to commit usury was awarded to Louis B. Mayer and his 15 co-defendants by Superior Judge William Tell Aggeler today.

They were adjudged not guilty when, after Special Prosecutor Frank Stafford admitted the impossibility of proving a case of conspiracy, the defense attorneys submitted the issue without offering a word of testimony.

For four weeks the trial had been in progress while 16 business men were kept in attendance in the court.

TOPLITSKY DEFENDANT

Among these defendants, besides Mayer, the motion picture producer and executive, were Joe Toplitsky, Los Angeles realtor, known throughout the country; Motley H. Flint, banker; Adolph Ramish, pioneer theatrical magnate of the Pacific coast, and W. I. Hollingsworth, prominent real estate and insurance executive.

The other defendants were:

Henry S. McKay, Jr., Herbert A. Bell, Fred E. Harris, Alvin H. Frank, William R. Harvey, Paul L. McMullen, Albert Lane, Van R. Kelsey, David Fox, Philip Grossman and M. M. Cohen.

For four weeks Special Prosecutor Stafford had struggled against hope to introduce evidence by which he expected to prove the charge of conspiracy to commit usury—which, the state contended, arose out of the defendants' participation in Julian Petroleum Corporation stock pool No. 1 in 1926.

CONTRACT AT ISSUE

Judge Aggeler said:

"The question before the court is the admissibility of the contract and its modifications. This contract with the supplemental agreements was between S. C. Lewis and A. C. Wagy and Company and the defendants in this case.

"It was not a contract between the Julian Petroleum Corporation and the defendants. It has nothing to do with the overissue of stock by the Julian Petroleum Corporation. It deals with the sale of S. C. Lewis and A. C. Wagy and Company of 64,517 shares of preferred stock owned by them to the defendants. The contract is conceded to be legal by the district attorney, it is simply an outright sale of delivery in cash, $1,000,012.50."

Judge Aggeler stated the contract sale of September 21, 1926, provided under certain contingencies for the purchase by S. C. Lewis and the Wagy Company of the stock, that the agreement to repurchase was modified later, and, because of these modifications, the defendants were charged with conspiracy to commit usury.

NO CONSPIRACY SHOWN

Said the court:

"It is the opinion of the court that the documents do not prove or tend to prove a conspiracy to violate the usury law and are, therefore, immaterial."

With this evidence ruled out, Special Prosecutor Stafford admitted he could not possibly prove a conspiracy case.

Judge Aggler then ruled:

Policeman Guilty In Bank Death Plot

FORT WORTH, Tex., June 7.—(AP.)—John Alsup, former policeman, was convicted of the murder of Will Tate, Negro, in an attempted holdup of the Polytechnic State Bank here, and was sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary.

Tate and another Negro were killed in the holdup and it was charged that Alsup, with three other men, planned the affair, enlisting the Negroes to rob the bank, planning to kill them as they emerged in order to collect the $5,000 "dead bandit" reward offered by the Texas Bankers' Association.

Mother Faints as Court Gives Babes to Husband

Mrs. Elizabeth Kimble, 21, of 1303 Bluff street, clutched her two small children and fainted when Judge R. A. Kennedy, in Desertion and Non-Support Court, ordered the children taken away from their mother and turned over to John Kimble, 35, of 2410 Larkins way, their father, yesterday. The children—Margaret, 5, and John, 3—sobbed as they were given to the father.

The father and two deputy sheriffs yesterday morning went to the home of Mrs. Mary Antis, at 1303 Bluff street, where the children live while their mother works.

He said he was struck on the head with a vase, thrown by the wife in her vain fight to retain her children. The deputies warned her and Mrs. Antis against any interference and directed her and the children to appear in court.

Later in the day when they appeared in Judge Kennedy's court room, the mother wept and fainted when separated from her babies.

The couple were married April 4, 1924. They first came into desertion court on April 10, 1928, when the husband was directed to pay $10 a week. Another hearing was held later, and the husband was given custody of the children. He had been searching for them for some time and finally located them at Bluff street.

He intended to take them to his mother's home, where he resides.

Bombay Agitators Extend Picketing of Europeans' Shops; War Council Picked

SIMLA, India, June 7.—(AP.)—Maj. E. L. Farley, Capt. J. C. Frere and Mrs. Frere, who were kidnaped Wednesday by insurgent frontier tribesmen near Chaman on the Quettaachaman main road, returned safely today to Chaman.

They were held for two days or more by the Achakzai raiders, who took and carried them across the frontier into Afghanistan, after their cars, driven by Indians, had been stopped by a barricade of rocks placed across the road.

Yesterday Hakem Spin Baldak, one of the local chiefs, after fruitless preliminary negotiation, went himself to seek the release of the three captaives. He was accompanied by a body of Afghan troops.

REBELS STRENGTHEN PICKET

BOMBAY, India, July 7.—(AP.)—Undeterred by arrest of their leaders in the government's raid on the Nationalist Congress headquarters, Bombay civil disobedience campaigners today strengthened and made effective their picketing on European shops in the fort area.

During the night the Nationalists met to elect from their number a new "war council," to direct and manage the campaign against the British government.

Yesterday's raid by Indian and European police against the All-India National Congress headquarters seems to have resulted in arrest of every hitherto unimprisoned member of the war council except the only woman member, Mrs. Perin Captain. She appealed to police to arrest her, too, but they smilingly refused. She seemed disappointed.

DEFY VICEROY'S ORDER

Only 50 picketers were sent out yesterday, but it was planned today to send out 200, and an increasing number every day until every European shop is picketed. The movement is in open defiance of the viceroy's new ordinance providing heavy penalties for picketing and instigation to boycott.

Notwithstanding seizure of the Congress printing plant in yesterday's raid, the forbidden Congress Bulletin appeared Friday evening containing a full report of the government's raid.

OFFICER SHOOTS FLEEING NEGRO

John Martin, 33, a Negro, of 2520 Breckenridge street, was shot and seriously wounded early today by a policeman who said he saw Martin fleeing from the rear of a drug store in Second avenue, Hazelwood. Martin is in a serious condition in the Homeopathic Hospital, with a bullet wound near the heart. Patrolman Joseph Palmer, of the Hazelwood Station, reported shooting the man.

Patrolman Palmer said that he noticed Martin loitering in the rear of the Gross Pharmacy at 5424 Second avenue. He called to the man and Martin fled. The officer fired one shot, wounding him. A brace and bits are said to have been found in Martin's possession.

Police later went to Martin's home and arrested Sumner Pendergast, 39. They also confiscated a revolver in the house. Police believe that Pendergast was with Martin a short time before the shooting. He is held as a suspicious person.

G. O. P. Has Balance, Democrats 'In Red'

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP.)—The Republican National Committee reported to Congress it had $60,388 in its treasury June 1, while a report of the Democratic National Committee showed a balance of $15,863 with outstanding obligations of $526,937.

The reports, filed under the corrupt practices act, showed the Democratic organization borrowed $375,000 from the Bankers Trust Company, of New York City, and $150,000 from John J. Raskob, its chairman. The Republican committee had no financial obligations outstanding.

GRAF ZEP LANDING

BRIDE ON ZEP GETS FRIGHT

EXCLUSIVE

By LADY SUZANNE WILKINS,
Special Cable Dispatch.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, June 7.—I have sensed fear and helplessness and known the thrill of danger in the air.

It came almost as a climax yesterday to our pleasant journey across the broad Atlantic and the southern part of Europe. As we were crossing from the Rhone Valley to Switzerland I experienced the sensation of a furious battle with the elements.

From the saloon window just after lunch, while some were sipping their demi-tasse, we came to a dense gray mass through which we could not see. Then to rain and hail, sleet and snow.

We dropped like a plummet. There was a thickening in my ears; I caught my breath and for a moment was afraid. Then smartly the nose of the ship shot upward. Things went crashing from the tables.

I am not sorry, now the danger is over, that I have experienced such a thrill.

I was terribly sorry when we swept low over beautiful Lake Constance to a smooth and safe landing and crept slowly into the haven of this monarch of the skies.

We regretted the trip was over and were reluctant to part from Dr. Hugo Eckener, his congenial, obliging officers and crew.

AIRSHIP TOSSED BY GALE AS TRIP ENDS

Zeppelin Supreme, Proving Its Powers in Greatest Test of Entire Career

EXCLUSIVE

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS.
Special Cable Dispatch.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, June 7.—The Graf Zeppelin rested in its home hangar today for the first time in more than 18 days. It has completed its trip to South America and North America, via Seville, Spain.

Behind the huge ship when it slowly settled to earth here last night at 7:25 p. m. (2:25 p. m. Pittsburgh time) were some 18,000 miles or more of additional air ways traveled, since it took off from Friedrichshafen May 18 on its tri-continental voyage.

Just as it was storm-tossed on its South American peregrinations and storm beset on the last part of its homeward trans-Atlantic flight, so did the Graf have to battle its way up the Rhone Valley and across Switzerland.

FORCED LOW, THEN HIGH

At one time during the slow passage northward over France the dirigible was forced down within 400 feet of the ground. Then with a breath-taking swoop it bounced 800 feet upward.

But, maneuvered by Dr. Hugo Eckener and his marvelous crew, the Graf, it appears, can weather anything.

Suddenly we came to a clear space. Ahead was a dense black cloud fronted by pouring rain.

As we entered the rain we could feel the ship steadily sinking. Then suddenly we entered an area of thick hail and sleet. From about 500 meters the ship dropped like a plummet. It was an anxious and astonishing moment. Only 150 more meters and the tail of the Graf would have been smashed on the ground.

SKILL WINS FIGHT

The careful calculations of the skilled mathematicians and the expert handling of the crew saved us.

We climbed through a dense black cloud in which it became pitch dark. Finally, about eight minutes after the fight began, the ship thrust her nose into the clear atmosphere again.

It seemed as though those 10,000 persons who had gathered to welcome it home were aware of the Graf's mighty struggle, so tremendous was their enthusiasm.

There was a band playing in the hangar. To the ship came Mrs. Eckener and the wives of the other officers and the crew.

Suffering deep stab wounds in the abdomen, which he received in a duel in the rear of Bridge street, Etna, an unidentified Mexican ran eight blocks into Sharpsburg before he fell unconscious last midnight. He was rushed to the St. Francis Hospital, where it was said his condition was critical. He has been unable to reveal his identity.

Motorcycle Patrolman W. McNally and Patrolman George Clouse, of Etna, were called to the scene by residents of Bridge street. They found Fiedel Salade, 27, of 5 Garden alley, Etna, on the pavement. He was treated for stab wounds on the neck and face and lodged in jail. Police state that he and the man in the hospital had fought with knives. Police are searching for a third man, who witnessed the battle.

House Group Named For Braddock Fete

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP.)—Speaker Longworth appointed Representatives Temple (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, and Moore (Dem.), of Virginia, to represent the House at the celebration of the one hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle of Monongahela, commonly known as "Braddock's defeat," to be held at Braddock, Pa., on July 9.

Under the terms of the Kelly bill, signed by the President recently, the government would be represented at the ceremonies by a special commission, including Secretary Mellon and two members of each branch of Congress.

DONATE FUND FOR MINER

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Tierney, of Sara and Vine streets, McKees Rocks, today began a fund for the destitute family of Patrick Flynn, disabled miner, of 1223 Third street, New Kensington, with a donation of $5.

The money was turned over to Adjt. V. C. Bryant, of the Salvation Army, 794 Fourth street, New Kensington, who is already aiding the family. Adjt. Bryant said he will turn this and future donations to the family.

Flynn, partly blinded in a mine accident; his wife and eight children, were evicted from their home on the property of the Kinlock mine, and have been given a home, rent free, by a New Kensington realtor.

Their only income is $10 compensation, received for the deaths of two sons who were killed in mine disasters.

STAUNTON, Va., June 7.—(AP.)—Dr. J. S. Dejarnette, superintendent of the Western State Hospital for the Insane, was expecting Frank W. Davis, Danville food striker, at the institution today—the day he had set for his premeditated death by starvation.

State's Attorney Posey J. Hundley, of Pittsylvania County, requested the services of state psychiatrists from the hospital, whereupon Dr. Dejarnette suggested that the man be committed for observation.

Danville physicians previously had said that the 60-year-old foothill farmer, who has fasted for 26 days, apparently was sane.

HOOVER, GUESTS GO TO CAMP

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(INS.)—President Hoover and 15 guests left here at 7 o'clock this morning for his Blue Ridge fishing camp on the Rapidan. They will remain overnight and return Sunday.

In the motor caravan that left the White House were Secretary of War Hurley, Undersecretary of Treasury Mills, Assistant Secretary of Treasury Hope, Assistant Attorneys General Sisson and Richardson, Gov. Roosevelt, of Porto Rico; Commissioner of Internal Revenue Lucas, Thad Brown, chief counsel for the Radio Commission; Ira T. Bennett, Washington editorial writer; Hanford McNider, newly appointed minister to Canada; John Richardson, of Boston; Ashmun Brown, Washington correspondent; Robert A. Taft, of Cincinnati; Lawrence Richey, of the President's secretariat, and Capt. Joel T. Boone, White House physician.

They will be greeted at camp by Mrs. Hoover, who, under orders from Dr. Boone, is spending an indefinite period of convalescence there in an effort to speed her recovery from back injuries sustained two months ago in a fall.

Swindlers Obtain $295 from Woman

Miss Lelia Carter, Negro, of 84 South Fourteenth street, was swindled of $295 by two Negroes near her home yesterday.

One told her of seeing the other pick up a pocketbook from the sidewalk which contained a large sum. She was offered an even share if she could change one of the "two $1,000 bills" the purse contained. Miss Carter gave $295 to the Negro, who then left to get the $1,000 bill. He failed to return.

CANNON SAYS HE'S NOT IN CONTEMPT

Defiant Bishop Questions Legality of Inquiry By Only Two Members

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP.)—A new challenge from its defiant witness, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., today confronted the Senate Lobby Committee.

This was an assertion that he could not be adjudged in contempt of the Senate for refusing to answer the committee's questions and then abruptly walking out on it, because a quorum of the committee was not present at the time of his appearance.

For the same reason, Cannon said, he doubted the legality of questions put to him on his activities in the southern anti-Smith campaign of 1928, after he had declined to answer interrogations of this nature.

SAYS QUESTIONS ILLEGAL

He thought these questions illegal and unfair, particularly after Senator Walsh, of Montana, the acting chairman, had said that without a quorum the committee could not rule on the dry leader's contention that it had no authority to investigate his political activities.

Cannon appeared before the committee on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. He repeatedly refused to discuss his activities in the presidential campaign of two years ago and on Thursday morning he abruptly deserted the hearing with a statement that if the committee wished to issue a subpena he would be at his office.

TAKES THREE FOR QUORUM

Walsh, a dry Democrat, and Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, a wet, were the only committee members present during his stay on the witness stand. The other members are Chairman Caraway, of Arkansas; Borah, of Idaho, and Robinson of Indiana. Three members constitute a quorum. Cannon said in a statement issued last night:

"If two members of the committee could not pass upon my objections to testifying concerning my political activities and could not issue a subpena, I do not see how two members could legally object to my withdrawal, and certainly I do not understand how I could be declared by two members of the committee to be in contempt of the Senate by my withdrawal."

CHINA REBELS ADVANCING

SHANGHAI, June 7.—(AP.)—Nationalist forces seeking to defend the so-called Wuhan cities of Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang against invading rebels of Kwangsi Province, today apparently faced an increasingly difficult task.

Hankow dispatches said Kwangsi troops were advancing northward from Changsha, Hunan Province, in three columns, with the sister cities situated at the juncture of the Han and Yangtse rivers, as their objective.

One of the columns was said to be penetrating directly northward along the Haichow Tungkwan Railway; another northeastward into Kiangsi Province; the third was advancing to the northwest toward Shasi.

The invaders were deploying over a wide front, placing the Nationalist troops in danger of being enveloped, as the latter have concentrated their defense at Yoochow, on Tung Ting Lake. Secondary Nationalist defenses were being prepared 20 miles south of Wuchang.

MOVE TO SEIZE SHIP BEGUN

A libel for confiscation and sale of the Lake Erie fishing steamer "Ruth," on charges that its owners had conspired to violate the smuggling laws, was filed yesterday by United States District Attorney Louis D. Graham in Federal Court.

The craft, it is charged, was licensed for fishing purposes only and was used by its owners in allegedly smuggling butter from Port Dover, Canada, March 18, to Erie. Government officials further charged the ship was unloaded at Erie without first having been granted a permit to enter and discharge its cargo.

Harry M. Boyd, of Erie, is named owner and Joseph F. Divell, of Erie, master and captain.

Make This at Home

Designed for the Larger Woman

Pattern 1939

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

The lines of the newest models are particularly lovely for the woman who is no longer slender. For example, the model shown today has a pointed vestee, narrow rolled collar and pointed skirt flare.

All details that slenderize the figure. The tiny tucks at shoulders and waistline give additional fullness where most essential.

Pattern 1939 has long sleeves if you should prefer them, but the three-quarter sleeve with graceful flare is new and extremely becoming. This charming frock is exceptionally lovely made of printed or plain georgette, chiffon, voile or silk crepe. Both dark and light grounds are popular this season.

May be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3¾ wards of 39-inch fabric and ½ yard trimming.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Our BOOK of PATTERNS for adults and children, also transfer patterns, is FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West 17th St., New York City.

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4.—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.
5.—Address your request to

"Speaking to Father."
By confiding his position to her father with a foolhardy business proposition, a college graduate wins the hand of his sweetheart in George Abbe's one-act comedy, "Speaking to Father." The two young lovers of the play are facing a dangerous situation. The girl's mother has thwarted their plans to embrace an eccentric individual whom she regards as her daughter's social mate. Desperate, the boy appeals to the father of that with a conventionally timid approach requesting his daughter's hand. When the father retorts with the usual objection involving inexperience and slim finances, the youth makes the daring proposition which paves the way for an unexpected ending.

THREE DIVORCE LIBELS FILED

Helen Schollard, 1513 Buena Vista street, charges her husband, William E. Schollard, with cruel and barbarous treatment in a divorce libel filed in Common Pleas Court. They were married in July, 1925, and separated three years later.

John H. Ross, 3815 Pier street, makes a similar charge against his wife, Annie Dillon Ross, in a divorce libel. They were wed in June, 1914, and separated in October of last year.

Louis Cohen, 408 Devilliers street, accuses Jennie Cohen with cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities in his divorce action. They were married in October, 1924, and separated in April, 1927.

Divorced Before; Seeks Second One

As they had both been divorced, his wife did not believe she could live a Christian life under those circumstances, so Theodore Burden, Sharpsburg, has asked Judge James B. Drew to divorce him from Ethel Burden. It was brought out by Burden's counsel, Meyer Sikov, that the conscience of the libellant's wife bothered her. Sikov says the first husband of Mrs. Burden is still living. The Burden's were married in 1926 and lived together less than one year.

Fight for Penny Matches Costs Miner $8.50

CHARLEROI, Pa., June 7.—A fight over the ownership of a penny box of matches cost John Palmer, 22, a total of $8.50, as he was fined $5 and forced to pay Willis Morgan, 22, $3.50 for medical attention.

RENAME ARTHUR COMMISSIONER

Attorney Edmund W. Arthur was reappointed a United States commissioner here yesterday for four years by President Judge R. M. Gibson, of Federal Court. The appointment becomes effective June 22.

Commissioner Arthur, whose offices are in the Frick building, succeeded the late Nathan S. Williams in 1926. At one time Williams was assistant United States district attorney.

HARD-SOFT LARGE-SMALL CORNS

Out to Stay Out—Roots and All.
Magic Oxygen Salts Bath Never Fails.
No More Burning, Aching Feet.

No matter how many corns you have or how painful they are—soak your feet for 15 minutes in a delightfully soothing and revitalizing Radox foot-bath for 3 or 4 nights—then lift corns and callouses right out, roots and all and they won't come back either unless you wear shoes again which aggravate your feet.

No cutting or digging is required, because Radox liberates oxygen, which softens hard outer layers of corns, each night penetrating the pores further and further, carrying the salts right to roots of corns, which are so loosened they can be lifted out bodily.

Your feet are made strong—healthy—vigorous—hard skin on heels and toes goes also.

Mayflower Drug Stores and all good drug stores are stocked with Radox—if they aren't, insist upon them ordering it if you want to experience great foot-joy and comfort.

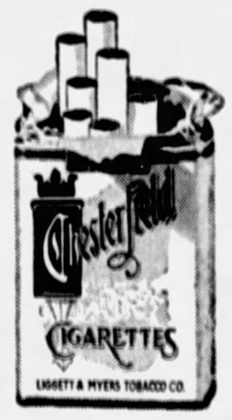
In a champion it's Self-Reliance

in a cigarette it's Taste

KEEPING ONE'S HEAD—in the flush of the game or in the flush of victory—that's the measure of true sportsmanship.

KEEPING AROMA AND GOOD TASTE in every Chesterfield without loss or variation—that's the simple ABC of Chesterfield's ever-mounting popularity.

MILD, YES—BUT SOMETHING MORE—Chesterfield offers richness, aroma, satisfying flavor—all the result of fine tobaccos, skilfully blended and cross-blended, and all summed up in three words . . . "TASTE above everything".



We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Many Buds At Horse Show

Yesterday afternoon the small crowd of spectators at the horse show in the Allegheny Country Club show ring became greatly augmented as the sky grew sunnier, and in spite of several gusty showers later in the day, society's spirits remained undampened.

I saw a great many of last winter's debs there. Among them was Virginia Wright, who was wearing a sport frock of green crepe striped in darker green. Frances Fitzgerald, sitting in the grandstand, was wearing tan crepe and a beige straw hat, and chatting with her was Nancy Allderdice wearing a yellow knitted dress trimmed in dark brown and a knitted jacket of the same brown. She wore a smart yellow turban with her costume.

Lydia Irish was sitting in her box, wearing a blue crepe polka dotted ensemble with a tailored white blouse and white beret. Arriving late in the afternoon was Frances Forsythe wearing a dress of yellow crepe with a blue flannel coat and an eggshell baku hat. Sitting in a row in the grandstand were the three Doyle girls. Virginia, wearing a green and dotted frock with a white felt hat. Rebecca, in a rose dotted crepe dress with a cape collar and an eggshell straw hat, and Nancy in yellow dotted silk crepe with a smart hat of white linen. With them were Rosamound Fitch and Janet Davis, and Janet was wearing a blue shantung ensemble with a white blouse.

And I saw Mrs. William Christopher Robinson on the committee in charge of the horseshow, and she was wearing a smart rose knitted ensemble with a flowered blouse and a white felt hat.

Knitted Frocks

At luncheon I saw Louise Evans, wearing a black crepe ensemble with a blouse of cotton mesh, and with her was Florence Harrington wearing a beige crepe frock and a white flannel coat with a beige felt hat.

Virginia Willock was there wearing a yellow crepe sun tan frock with a jacket of wood brown crepe and a brown and beige straw hat. Jane Allderdice was there in a riding habit and rode in the show.

Mrs. H. Norton Van Voorhis was wearing chartreuse green and black printed crepe with a smart black baku hat. And I saw Mrs. James McKay in her box, gowned in an ensemble of wood brown shantung with a yellow crepe blouse and a brown felt hat. Mary Robinson, a deb of the past winter, was wearing robin's egg blue rajah with a crepe collar trimmed with a narrow pleated ruffle and with brief ruffled cap sleeves. Her smart turban was of coral pink crepe. Another deb of the past winter, Katherine Collin, was wearing smart white linen with a red belt and red felt hat. Her frock featured the popular sun tan neckline.

Box Parties

Frances Burke Rodgers was sitting in her box and was wearing a sports frock of blue and white striped silk and a hat of eggshell straw with a band of blue velvet matching her dress. Another deb of the winter, Mary Elizabeth Floyd, was wearing orchid shantung, with a white collar and a white straw hat, and she was walking around the ring with Frances Preble Reed who wore blue dotted silk with an eggshell straw hat and beige flannel coat.

I saw several of the younger school set standing about the ring watching the high jumps. Pauline Frederick was wearing white shantung with a red coat and white [illegible], and Frances Emery wore white linen with a jacket of red and white felt hat. Pinkey Gott [illegible] natural shantung and a [illegible] nespun coat with white [illegible] with her was Martha [illegible] pink shantung and a w[illegible]el coat. Helen Morrison, [illegible] Jennings and Mary Wells Van Pelt were also in the group.

As she was leaving the show I caught a glimpse of Marjorie Kimball, wearing a chartreuse green and yellow crepe printed frock with a bottle green felt hat.

Others I glimpsed in the grandstand were Mrs. Alex Hunter, Mrs. Andrew Benney, Miss Ethel Christie, Mrs. John Kimball, Mrs. William Callery, Mrs. Harmar Denney, Mrs. William Frew, Mrs. Alexander L. Robinson, Mrs. Cyrus Miller, Mary Oliver, Mrs. Dorothy Slack, Mrs. Sidney Liggett, Mrs. Dorwin J. Donnelly and Mrs. Herbert A. May. And I noticed young Betty Bughman in a riding habit.

Stand Crowded

Clodagh McCune, coral pink and pirate blue printed silk and a pink straw hat. Virginia Goldsbury wore a wood brown ensemble with a matching hat. And Mrs. Thomas A. McGinley was there wearing an ensemble of yellow crepe with a dark brown hat. Dorothy Jarvis was with her, wearing white shantung with a wide brimmed leghorn hat.

Mrs. William Terrell Johnson, who was strolling about the grounds, wore a shell pink knitted suit with a brown straw hat. Peggy Milligan, Marian Stone and Jane Marshall were there, and Jane wore a white ensemble with a hat of eggshell straw, and Marian fore cherry red knitted silk with a matching hat, and Mary Margaret Marshall was there, too wearing a fleet blue and white ensemble with the popular cape collar and a small blue hat. Emily Frew I saw wearing a white crepe sports ensemble with a hat of navy baku. Margaret Rose was with her, wearing a frock of rose and white print with a cape collar. Mrs. J. Bernd Rose wore cream knitted silk with pale green stripes, and Mrs. Don Rose wore a beige sports ensemble.

The Second United Presbyterian Church of Butler, Pa., is decorated with white peonies, ferns and palms and lighted by tall white tapers for the wedding this afternoon of Helen Hoch, daughter of the Martin G. Hochs, of Chicora, Pa., and William M. Schroeder, son of the George Schroeders, of Oak Hill Manor, Wildwood, Pa. The Rev. C. F. W. Brecht, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Church of Chicora, is officiating assisted by the Rev. Dr. William Woodfin, of the Third United Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh.

Church Wedding

The bride, who is being given in marriage by her father, is wearing a lovely gown of ivory satin, fashioned with a bertha of plaited alencon lace, puff sleeves and a long train, falling from the high waistline. Inserts of plaited points of lace trim the full, long skirt. The bride's veil is of ivory tulle with a chin strap and plain cap effect, and she is carrying an old-fashioned bouquet of white gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Turquoise blue net is being worn by the matron of honor, Mrs. George Schroeder, Jr., sister-in-law of the bridegroom. Her gown is made with a bolero, puff sleeves, and a full skirt of plaited tiers of net, trimmed with small pink velvet bows. Similar gowns in shell pink are being worn by the bridesmaids, Mrs. Lee Hoch, of Butler, Pa.; Mrs. John Hoch, of Linden, N. J., cousin of the bride; Dorothy Kerr, of Bellevue, and Martha Arnold, of Pittsburgh. They are carrying old-fashioned nosegays of early summer flowers.

Lovely Gowns

Henry A. Schroeder is his brother's best man, and George Schroeder, Jr., Lee Hoch, cousin of the bride; George Wittmer, III, Karl Kreimeier, Frank Hunter and Jack Strouse are ushers.

A dinner and reception in the Sterling Club, of Butler, will follow the ceremony.

Mrs. Arthur F. James, of Pennfield place, is entertaining this afternoon in her home with a tea in honor of Elizabeth Corey Zeigler, daughter of Mrs. Edwin Warren Zeigler, of Penn avenue, whose marriage to Frederic Ballard Westervelt, son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Clarkson Westervelt, of Westminster place, will be an event of Wednesday.

Summer Wedding

On Tuesday the bride-elect's grandmother, Mrs. E. E. Zeigler, of Penn avenue, widow of Col. E. E. Zeigler, will give a luncheon in her home.

The wedding ceremony will take place at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the chapel of the Calvary Episcopal Church, with the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten officiating in the presence of the two families.

E. E. Zeigler will give his sister in marriage, and Harriet Westervelt, sister of the bridegroom-elect, and Peter Westervelt, brother of the bridegroom-elect, will be the only attendants.

Both Mr. Westervelt and his bride-elect were graduated from the University of Pittsburgh in the class of 1925. Mr. Westervelt is a Zeta Psi of the University of Pennsylvania, which he attended one year, and of Nu Sigma Nu.

After July 1 Mr. Westervelt and his bride will be at home in Washington, where Mr. Westervelt will be an interne in the Walter Reed General Hospital. He will be graduated the morning of the wedding from the University of Pittsburgh Medical School.

Every day we hear of more Pittsburgh folks going east to serve as bridal attendants. William Rodd, of Pittsburgh, is an usher at the wedding today of Carolyn Shields, of Highland Park, Ill., to Nelson Weaver Cheney, of Roanoke Plantation, Randolph, Va., which is taking place this afternoon in the garden of her brother's and sister-in-law's home, the Robert McCormick Shieldses, of Piandome, L. I.

Wind Upsets Canoe, Two Boys Drown

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—(AP.)—Arthur Specketer, 27, and his brother, Richard, 15, were drowned in the Delaware River when a strong wind lashing the river upset their canoe. A third occupant of the small craft, Raymond Fillmore, was rescued by a tugboat after unsuccessful efforts to save his companions.

Music Club Will Take 'Cruise'

President's Day on October 6 will open the 1930-31 season for the Pittsburgh Literary and Musical Club, which is to take "A Cruise to Unusual Ports" via the papers and talks assigned for the year. Save for the occasional breaks that the spring and fall musicales, the Christmas party and the annual luncheon bring, the members will proceed through their well ordered year with the usual musical and literary programs.

They will begin their literary journeyings by going from "Pittsburgh to Halifax via Canal," from "Halifax to New York City," where "Provisioning a Ship" will hold their interest. Greenland, Iceland, the Shetland Islands, Gothenberg, Stockholm, Leningrad, The Hague, the Strait of Dover, the English Channel, Brest, Lisbon, Gibraltar, Marseilles, Monte Carlo, Corsica, Sadinia, Sicily, Crete, Cyprus, the coast of the Holy Land, Port Said, the Suez Canal, the Red Sea, Aden, Zanzibar, Ceylon, Sumatra, Singapore, the Philippine Islands, New Guinea, Sydney, Hawaiian Islands, Panama, New Orleans and Muscle Shoals are the stops the women will make in their wanderings, which will extend up to and including May 25. The fall musicale is set for November 17, the Christmas party will be December 15, the spring Musicale March 16 and the outing June 8.

BARKER SCORES DRY LAW FOES

CEDARVILLE, O., June 7.—The Rev. Dr. Percival H. Barker, pastor of the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, in the commencement address at Cedarville College here yesterday decried what he termed efforts of higher society to embarrass prohibition.

Two Pittsburgh clergymen received the degree of doctor of divinity at the commencement exercises. They are the Rev. Albert Edmond Gregg, pastor of the First Reformed Church, and the Rev. Herman T. Reinecke, until recently assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

HORSE SHOW ENDS TODAY

Apparently unaffected by the loss of two important strings of horses, those of Richard B. Mellon, from Rolling Rock Farm, and of Miss Mary Fiers, Western exhibitor, the Allegheny Country Club Horse Show started its final day this morning with gala crowds in the offing.

The absence of the Mellon and Fiers horses was at first expected to be a dampener on the show. Withdrawals in both instances were made at the last minute.

It is said that horses of the Mellon string contracted distemper, or "train fever," coming from the Washington, D. C., show three weeks ago, and that Mellon thought best to cancel plans for the Sewickley affair because of danger of contagion. Holy River, possibly the best hunter in the Mellon stables, contracted penumonia and died Tuesday night.

The Fiers horses were switched to the Cleveland show at the last minute. Some excellent saddlers went with this string.

The unusually long list of entries has made up for the loss of these two stables, according to attendants.

The brilliant throngs of prominent figures in Pittsburgh sporting and social circles Thursday and Friday were larger, if anything, than at last year's show. The stands remained comfortably full yesterday despite intermittent rain.

WOMEN CHEER DRY STAND

DENVER, June 7.—(AP.)—The affirming the stand of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in favor of prohibition, the preliminary report of the resolutions committee was greeted with applause at the first business session of the organization's twentieth biennial convention.

The resolution recites that "there are sinister influences at work seeking to undermine the efficacy of the Eighteenth Amendment" and that "individuals and organizations are making strenuous efforts to destroy the faith of the people of the United States in prohibition." Final action on the resolution presented is set for today.

Some opposition developed against the resolution and an amendment is expected to be offered by Mrs. R. F. Lindsay, of Mt. Pleasant, Tex., president of the Texas federation, to strike out the word "sinister."

The amendment will also seek to eliminate the phrase reciting that the federation "reaffirms its conviction that prohibition offers the best means for curbing the liquor traffic and its attendant crimes."

W. H. Kelly, Metal Inventor, Dies at 66

LOS ANGELES, June 7.—(AP.)—William H. Kelly, 66, inventor of Kelly metal, a copper and lead fusion used extensively in motor bearings, died here yesterday. Kelly followed the sea for years. When the Morgan City was lost during the Spanish-American War, Kelly went down in a diving suit and retrieved $250,000 in postage stamps and other valuable cargo.

Ekman Forms New Swedish Ministry

STOCKHOLM, June 7.—(AP.)—Carl Gustaf Ekman, head of the Peoples party, formed a new ministry today with himself as premier and minister of defense. Baron Ramel takes the other outstanding post, that of foreign minister.

Adventists Endorse Hoover's Dry Regime

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—(AP.)—A committee of five, appointed after a meeting of the religious liberty department of the quadrennial conference of the Seventh Day Adventists here, was instructed to draft a telegram to President Hoover supporting him in his prohibition law enforcement program.

STEEL AFFECTS BUILDING TREND

By L. BRANDT

Only in recent years has there developed such widespread and sincere interest and pride in the home. Until about two years ago the country's interests centered on new building. Few artistic effects were employed. Plainness and simplicity were virtues, and most people who built 10, 20 or 30 years ago were content with ordinary housing. Now with the trend toward curves, color and greater convenience, the old type of house has become obsolete in style and with a growing pride in home ownership owners are realizing that old-fashioned appearance and livability are serious detriments to property values. Most old type houses are today in a wonderful state of structural preservation and should be reclaimed.

MORE ATTRACTIVE

The remodeling of old dwellings includes not only the provision of new exteriors for old houses, but various interior changes to make the house more liveable and more attractive and the introduction of modern conveniences of living. It is possible to overcoat old houses with stucco, brick or stone to provide attractive and modern exteriors.

E. L. Benedict, vice president of National Steel Fabric Company, furnished the photographs of an old-style house in Congerville, Ill., which was made modern and up-to-date with the use of Steeltex for stucco base for all exterior walls. In the interior of this old home there was effected a re-arrangement of rooms and partitions with decorative finishes in texture plaster applied over Steeltex reinforced plaster base which gave the required protection for finished plaster decoration, especially when used in combination with wood studding walls.

VALUES JUMP

Actual facts have proven that the appraisal value of homes will be increased two or three times the cost of modernizing, which means added resale value, income from rental, loan privileges and insurance coverage. In other words, modernizing can be classed as a real paying investment for the home owner, the real estate investor and the community in general.

Modernizing isn't a difficult thing. Every old home holds possibilities for beauty and comfort through modernizing if one has a little imagination and plans the work accordingly. Modernizing to be successful should be planned and executed by men who know house construction and how to make minor alterations bring major results at minimum costs.

PLATE GLASS SALES QUIET

The comparative seasonal quiet of the past month continues to hold sway in the plate glass industry, according to the American Glass Review. Consumption by the automobile manufacturers, as well as other principal consuming industries, is considerably below that of this time a year ago. Production at the plate glass factories, as a consequence, continues on a curtailed basis, with operations reported at around 70 per cent of capacity.

Mirror manufacturers are to hold an important two-day meeting in Cincinnati on Wednesday and Thursday of next week, June 11 and 12. The Thursday meeting will take the form of a general conference of manufacturers, distributors and users of mirrors and mirror plate, when quality standards for the industry will be adopted. This session will be held under the auspices of the Federal Bureau of Standards.

Imports of Glass Drop During Week

Imports of both plate and window glass into this country during the week ended May 31 declined in comparision with the preceding week's volume, according to the latest unofficial compilations. In plate glass, incoming shipments for the week totaled 118 cases as against 235 cases and 103,810 pounds received the week of May 24. Imports of window glass for the comparative periods were 1,059 boxes and 1,775 boxes, respectively.

Surplus Freight Cars Show Gain

Class 1 railroads on May 23 had 428,559 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, an increase of 18,428 cars compared with May 15. Surplus coal cars totaled 146,960, increase of 3,477 cars, surplus box cars totaled 222,210, increase of 12,866, while surplus stock cars totaled 30,068 increase of 1,567 above number reported on May 15, and surplus refrigerator cars 16,467, increase of 163.

WINDOW GLASS MARKET DULL

The outstanding feature in an exceptionally quiet week in the window glass industry was the sending out of a new discount list by one of the prominent manufacturing firms, according to National Glass Budget. This list materially simplifies the cumbersome discounts that have been in effect, but means little change in price. A new list on crystal sheet glass was also sent out. The new rates are slightly lower than former prices.

The volume of orders during the past week was reported to be very unsatisfactory to the manufacturers. It was stated on good authority that this was perhaps the quietest week of a quiet season now being encountered.

Although only about one-third of the plant capacity is in operation, production was further curtailed during the week by two tanks undergoing hot repairs which would take them out of production for the greater part of the week.

Impaired Freight Cars Show Increase

Class 1 railroads on May 15 had 131,935 freight cars in need of repairs, or 5.9 per cent of the number on line, an increase of 2,070 over the number in need of repair on May 1. Freight cars in need of heavy repairs totaled 90,947, or 4.1 per cent, increase of 953, while freight cars in need of light repairs totaled 40,988, or 1.8 per cent, increase of 1,117.

Inland Waterways Profits for April

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Actual operating result of the entire Inland Waterways Corporation for April, 1930, showed a net income of $81,272 in excess of all operating expenses, states Maj. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, chairman.

Total tonnage carried on the rivers amounted to 129,3000, of which 47,900 tons were southbound and 81,400 northbound.

STEEL OUTPUT IN SEASONAL DECLINE

Reduction From Peak in April Less Than That of Recent Years; Pipe Strong

By B. E. V. LUTY.

Steel production slipped a couple points this week after five weeks of about one point a week. Production has closely followed the trend in demand as orders are being filled very promptly, and is probably a close index to steel demand in general. Two special cases more or less balance each other, rail production decreasing while production of line pipe has increased.

The total decline since the mild peak of late April fully as great as in the majority of years and may be regarded as purely seasonal in character.

INGOT OUTPUT 70 PER CENT

Ingot production this week has been in the neighborhood of 70 per cent of capacity, which means a tonnage over one-fourth less than a year ago, but approximating the production in June of 1928, 1926 and 1923, while it is well above production in June of other years. From a tonnage standpoint the showing is not at all poor, if general trade is in as great depression as is commonly assumed, but from the steel producing standpoint it is poor, by reason of capacity having been increasing constantly. Tonnage output is only a trifle above that of June, 1923, seven years ago, but at that time there was engagement of about 85 per cent of the capacity then existing.

Activity is unlikely to decrease at more than a mild rate in the next few weeks, which means that July will not be as dull, relative to the preceding activity, as has frequently been the case, but from a long range viewpoint there will, of course, be a condition of dullness.

SECOND HALF OUTLOOK

"Interest now attaches to the question whether there will be a revival in activity after July. This is considered quite according to precedent but as a matter of bald fact there has been an autumn revival in only four of the last seven years. The second half of a year rarely does as well as the first half, chiefly on account of certain seasonal handicaps, particularly connection with rails, farm implements and automobiles, which regularly run lighter in the second half of a year. It seems unlikely that steel will have much improvement unless there is a decided gain in general business activity and that is quite problematical, one of the difficulties being that general business has hardly reflected as much loss as might have been expected from all that occurred last year, including the decided bulge in general trade which came to an end about the middle of the year and the collapse of the stock market later on.

Production of Coal Declines in Canada

TORONTO, June 7.—Canada's coal production during April totaled 907,451 tons, a decline of 16.1 per cent from a five-year average for the month of 1,081,748 tons. April imports amounted to 660,462 tons, against 734,619 in April, 1929. Exports totaled 14,731 tons, a decrease of 45.5 per cent from five-year average for the month of 27,042 tons.

Wheeling and Lake Erie Case Delayed

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(INS)—Hearings on the applications of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia and the Wabash railroads for permission to acquire the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad, was postponed by the Interstate Commerce Commission today from June 9 until June 16.

Pennsylvania Has Record for Week

The Pennsylvania Railroad, during the past week, has operated the largest number of special passenger trains, in any similar period in many years. Over the rails of the Central Region, of which Pittsburgh is headquarters, the road handled 35 specials. These were made possible by reduced excursion rates, the Shrine convention at Toronto and other special events. The road's general passenger business also is being maintained in a large volume.

Investors Seeking Low Cost Producers

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

LOW COST PRODUCERS are holding the interest of investors at the present time. With commodity prices on a downward trend since last fall, the industrial organizations which are able to make satisfactory profits at current price levels will show sharper contrasts in earnings in comparison with high cost producers than in previous years.

The wide variations in the trends of steel earnings, which became apparent in the reports for the first quarter, are expected to be even more pronounced in the latter periods of the year. Organizations such as United States Steel and Jones & Laughlin have reported comparatively slight recessions. Bethlehem, as a result of putting its manufacturing plants in order, made an exceptionally favorable comparison of earnings of the first quarter with previous periods. On the other hand, a few companies had the major share of their profits wiped out by the lower prices and reduced demand which have characterized business for several months.

Other Prices Cut

THE IMPORTANCE OF PRODUCTION costs will also be displayed to a marked degree when the copper companies publish their statements for the present year. In recent months copper has declined from 18 cents a pound to 13 cents. This followed a peak quotation of 24 cents in 1929.

Naturally all the companies in this industry are feeling the cut in prices to a marked extent. Some copper producers will be unable to compete on such terms but there are companies with costs as low as 9 cents a pound. It is towards organizations in this class that the intelligent investors are now turning.

Glass Trade

THE STORY OF COSTS has been illustrated in a striking manner in the glass industry during the past five years. The plate glass makers had come to the close of a period of exceptional prosperity. All of them had been making money. Then market conditions changed. The war-ravaged factories of Europe were restored and the domestic market was flooded with cheap foreign glass. Prices were practically cut in half.

The low cost producers went through the entire period without dropping into red ink. But one local company, whose plant facilities had not kept up with changing production methods, showed losses for several years and finally went into receivership.

Integrated Producers

THE CURRENT TREND of prices may be halted or replaced by an upward swing in the near future. In most lines, however, the returns will be reduced for the balance of the present year and possibly a part of next year since a considerable period of time must usually elapse before price increases can be established.

Fully integrated companies in the industries which have been adversely affected by prices are in the best condition to pass through such a period without having their earning power seriously crippled.

GOSSER RAISE UP TO HOOVER

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Under the provision of a measure which will reach President Hoover for his signature today, Postmaster George W. Gosser, of Pittsburgh, will have $1,000 added to his annual salary, making it $9,000.

The measure raises the pay of postmasters in 52 of the largest cities in the United States, being those of offices where the receipts are more than $1,500,000 per annum. The present pay is practically the same as that adopted in 1883, when the entire receipts of the postal service were less than those now taken in by the New York office alone.

New York and Chicago, where the receipts are more than $40,000,000 annually, under the measure will rate the maximum salary of $12,000, while the postmasters at Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis, Detroit, Los Angeles, Washington, Kansas City and Cleveland will get $10,000. The only offices with $9,000 pay are at Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Brooklyn, Cincinnati and Minneapolis.

Liquor Kills Boy, 6; Father Is Indicted

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 7.—Alexander DeDea, of Barnesboro, was indicted for involuntary manslaughter in the death of his son, John, 6, who, it is alleged, got a pint bottle of moonshine from his father's automobile and drank the contents. The child died a short time later.

Girl Graduates, Then Announces Marriage

SHARON, Pa., June 7.—An hour after she was graduated from high school, Miss Helen Farr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Farr, announced she had been married since November 22 to Frank Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Evans. They were married at Cumberland, Md.

Athletic Coach Weds Derry Girl Graduate

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 7.—Miss Mildred Lora Weeks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Weeks, of Derry, a graduate this year of Derry High School, and Harold D. Bovard, of Grove City, a teacher and athletic coach in the Derry schools, were married at a ceremony in the Punxsutawney Presbyterian Church.

CONCERNS JOIN, PLAN PLANT

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 7.—Continental Steel Products Company is to be combined with Adalet Manufacturing Company, Cleveland, to manufacture electrical switch boxes and other electrical products.

A new plant is to be built by the consolidated company. A location at Greenville, Pa., is being considered.

MOVE TO SPEED TUBE HEARING

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 7.—A motion was filed in Common Pleas Court by attorneys for C. S. Eaton, Cleveland, seeking to advance the date of hearing the case filed by Myron C. Wick, Jr., and International Shares Corporation to prevent merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Bethlehem Steel companies.

The motion will be argued Monday before Common Pleas Judge David G. Jenkins. Because of the magnitude of the case, the motion reads, delay would cause injury to the community and jeopardize the best interests of the city.

Oil Company Agrees To Production Cut

BRADFORD, Pa., June 7.—The South Penn Oil Company has agreed to the 20 per cent curtailment production program in the Bradford field. Most of the smaller producers have joined with the larger ones in prorating, designed to stabilize production and improve oil quotations.

Newsprint Output Gains in Canada

MONTREAL, June 7.—Reports from a majority of Canadian newsprint mills indicate production for May has shown a good increase over April. However, newsprint output will probably be below that of May last year.

Pure Oil Company Re-elects Directors

WALL COVERING ORIGIN IS VAGUE

By A. LOUISE FILLEBROUN.

The beginning of the wallpaper industry is shrouded in mystery. England, France and the low countries all have authorities giving their nations the credit for the first wallpaper. One of the earliest records of wallpaper is for the year 1841 when the King of France made a payment to a painter and illuminator for painting 50 rolls of paper in blue with three angels as part of the design. The oldest fragments of wallpaper have been found in England. The several fragments, which date from the early sixteenth century, some made at the order of Queen Elizabeth, are all flock printed.

Flocked papers were introduced early in the seventeenth century, and had a great vogue in England. France and Holland long before Germany had adopted ordinary printed papers to any extent. At that time also, travelers from the Orient brought back very beautiful Chinese papers which, while first used as a curiosity, became very valuable in the homes of the richer classes.

MODERN WALLPAPER

France must be given credit for the development of modern wallpaper, and Louis XIV is probably more responsible for wallpaper than any other man. Under his patronage, Jean Papillon organized the first great printing house for wallpaper. Papillon designed patterns that would join together and make a continuous repeat when the sheets were pasted side by side on the wall. This father of modern wallpaper also opened the first retail store.

It was not until 1700 that wallpaper came to America in any quantity. In the second quarter of the eighteenth century importation developed and by 1745 wallpaper was in retail stock here. Charles Margrave, of Philadelphia, having opened a store and advertising in the newspapers. The industry has shown a steady and sound progress based on the improved value of the product, its artistic development and the greater appreciation of wallpaper throughout the world.

Up until the year 1928, the wallpaper factories in the United States devoted their efforts to the manufacturing of wallpaper in pleasing designs and colors. Not as much thought was given to fast colors and stock until a few years ago, when the better factories started to specialize on non-fading stock and non-fading colors. Today most of the factories are manufacturing wallpaper on stock with colors that are guaranteed not to fade from sun or light.

The best known paper of this character is known as Stan-Test wallpaper and is sold through the Black-Kiedaisch Company.

M. C. Brush Elected Wabash Director

FURNITURE CO. LINES WELL KNOWN

Period Groupings Favored In Equipping of Offices; Neely Versed in Business

When the Business Furniture Company was organized in 1913, Homer Neely, now president of the firm, was in an excellent position from his previous training to correctly determine the line of desks, chairs and files he would select from the many nationally known ones that were offered the promising young company.

At an early age he became interested in the large field of possibilities awaiting anyone who could efficiently serve the business furniture needs of the great industrial, business and professional interests of Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania. He did not start on the big venture until he became thoroughly versed in the then modern methods and usages of business furniture.

KEEN INSIGHT

With keen insight he kept abreast of the rapidly changing trend of business furniture, which trend now rules business furniture of today. The new company was named Business Furniture Co. This name has since proved so well liked by similar firms in other cities throughout the country that they too have adopted it.

The Business Furniture Company then selected the wide line of the Art Metal Construction Company, pioneer manufacturers of steel office equipment. The first steel office equipment ever made was produced by this company in 1888. Art Metal steel equipment represents the most complete steel line on the market today. It includes equipment in steel to meet every requirement of the modern business office—standardized and uniform.

CHOSE TAYLOR CHAIRS

With the same careful judgment and foresight Taylor chairs were selected because for more than 100 years the name of "Taylor" chairs has been identified with important developments that have marked the progress of chair-making history. This has resulted in improvements and refinements that keep Taylor chairs to the forefront in the industry, the perfected product of four generations of chair builders.

Again with the same exacting standard, Horrocks desks were selected to co-ordinate and supplement the Taylor line of chairs. Years of experience have enabled the Horrocks Desk Company to give the utmost in desk values.

MAKERS COMBINE

Well in advance of the present vogue for matched suites in period designs, the Horrocks Desk Company and Taylor Chair Company decided to combine their manufacturing facilities. The result of this splendid combination has been the development of matched suites which faithfully portray the period represented.

With these three leading lines all nationally known, and which have been selected as standard business furniture by leading corporations and financial institutions in America, the Business Furniture Company felt well able to start forth in business, Homer Neely, president, keeps in intimate touch with the market of today—always abreast of the times—and on this foundation he has built up a clientele from the leading corporations, banking houses and professional men of Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania.

Porto Rican Cigar Sales 40% Higher

NEW YORK, June 7.—Sales of cigars by Porto Rican American Tobacco Company in the first five months of 1930 were 40 per cent ahead of the same period in 1929 and profits had a corresponding increase, according to Luis Toro, president of Waitt & Bond, a subsidiary.

Weather Affects Profits of Movies

Unusually warm weather early in May considerably reduced earnings of moving picture companies during the month, according to the Wall Street Journal. Reports of theater box office receipts from all over the country showed a falling off in recent weeks that will be reflected in film company earnings.

Goodrich Meets Price Reduction

AKRON, June 7.—B. F. Goodrich Company has reduced the price on several lines of tires, meeting the cut instituted by Goodyear. The reduction is effective as of June 5.

SILK TRADING UP IN YEAR

NEW YORK, June 7.—Trading in raw silk futures on the National Raw Silk Exchange during the fiscal year ended May 31 totaled 246,625 bales, an increase of 81,070, or slightly more than 55 per cent over total transactions during the year ended September 10, 1929, the first full year's operations by the exchange, according to data compiled by A. H. Korndorfer, secretary.

The total value of raw silk traded on the exchange during the fiscal year just ended was approximately $120,353,000, compared with transactions aggregating approximately $116,000,000 in the year ended September 10, 1929.

Volume on the local exchange for the fiscal year ended May 31, 1930, was close to 50 per cent of the total exports of raw silk from Japan to the United States during the silk year 1928-29.

PITTSBURGHERS START ABROAD

NEW YORK, June 7.—In company of a group of distinguished personages, the Misses Elizabeth P. and Evelyn Paterson, and Maria Gaveney, of Pittsburgh, sailed for Europe last night on the Caronia for a six weeks' stay in England, France and other continental countries. The Pittsburghers intend to return home the first week in August.

One-Man Trolleys For Donora Branch

MONONGAHELA, Pa., June 7.—One-man trolley cars will be placed in service on the Monongahela-Donora branch of the Pittsburgh Street Railways Company's line on or about June 23.

No change in the time of service is contemplated, according to the company, but some 14 employes will be affected by the change.

Kills Self, Leaves Note Asking Burial

ALIQUIPPA, Pa., June 7.—Jeff McElhaney, New Sheffield, found the body of a man, believed to be Will Murphy, 54, under a tree, with a gunshot wound in the head. A shotgun was found nearby. A note found near the body read:

"I'm ready to die. I ain't got no relatives. So bury me, as I'm killing myself. Will Murphy."

Omaha Exchange Opens for Trading

OMAHA, June 7.—Trading on the new Omaha Stock Exchange will be inaugurated today, with 40 securities listed for trading. The membership of 25 will probably be increased to about 40, and more securities will be approved within a few days, Secretary Graham said. Trading will be on the call system.

Spang, Chalfant Shares in Pipe Orders

During the past 10 weeks there has been an unusually large amount of contracts let for large pipe line projects, amounting to nearly 1,000,000 tons, and Spang, Chalfant & Co., Inc., has been getting its share of this business. The company has so much business on hand that deliveries on new contracts cannot be promised until October.

Earnings for the first half year probably will benefit accordingly, and a better showing appears likely than the $2.17 a common share for the first half of last year.

WHIPS CHILD, GETS 3 YEARS

One to three years in prison for whipping his own son was the sentence Judge Harry H. Rowand imposed on Peter Badini, 30, 1210 Sheffield street, when the latter pleaded guilty in Criminal Court to felonious assault and battery.

Little Peter Badini, Jr., 3-year-old blue-eyed prattler, hadn't minded quickly when his father told him to keep quiet on May 31. Enraged, the father, it was testified, beat him with a leather belt until practically every part of the child's body was black and blue and swollen. The child was so seriously injured it had to be taken to the Children's Hospital, where it hovered between life and death for the first day or two.

Miss Ethel Peterson, children's worker for the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society, was the prosecutor in the case.

FRICK COMPANY TO BUY MINES

Sale of the Washington Coal and Coke Company and the Star Supply Company to the H. C. Frick Coke Company, subsidiary to the United States Steel Corporation, will take place within a short time if negotiations now under way are completed.

The Washington Coal and Coke properties at Dawson, Pa., are valued between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000.

It is understood that the Frick Company will consolidate the operations of the property with adjacent mines which it is now working. The company's conveyor system can be used to transport the coal over a distance of several miles for loading into river barges and shipment to mills in this district.

MINN.-MOLINE SALES UP

CHICAGO, June 7.—Minneapolis-Moline Power Implement Company, for quarter ended March 31, 1930, reported an increase of 21.5 per cent in sales, not including sales of structural steel, unit motors, miscellaneous foundry contracts and similar items, as compared with first quarter, 1929.

Foreign business of company showed improvement, with sales in that division amounting to $1,348,000 up to April 22, compared with $712,000 during corresponding period last year. To same date, export bookings were $500,000 greater than for first six months of 1929.

Pay roll figures showed a corresponding increase, recording a gain of 7.5 per cent during first quarter. During April, company had in its employ approximately 4,000 men with pay roll running at about $100,000 a week. These figures probably have shown some decrease since that time as the manufacturing rush ends shortly after first quarter.

Hangs Himself After Sister Tries Suicide

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., June 7.—Hugh A. Pittis, 64, Schoenbrunn farmer, ended his life by hanging himself in his barn. Mrs. Pittis saw her husband leave his bed and followed him, but arrived too late to frustrate his act.

He had just returned home from Cleveland, unnerved by the attempt of a sister there to commit suicide.

HOT WEATHER AIDS RETAIL SALES

Demand for Automobile Accessories Active; Oil Production Gains

Higher temperatures have stimulated sales in retail to some extent, but jobbers of men's and women's wearing apparel report trade quiet and not up to the volume of business transacted a year ago, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review.

The movement of dry goods, shoes and millinery is only fair, most sales being comparatively small in amount.

The demand for lumber and other building materials continues rather slow, with residential construction still considerably below normal, and prices of lumber continue rather unsatisfactory. The movement of new automobiles is only fair, but there seems to be quite a demand for automobile accessories.

OIL PRICES UNCHANGED

Plumbing and heating supplies are in light demand, with a volume of business estimated at 25 per cent below normal. In the electrical line, demand seems to be principally for heavy equipment, electrical fixtures moving quite slowly. Crude oil production has shown a rather sharp increase, with prices showing practically no change.

There has been comparatively little change in the rate of production of bituminous coal, with demand still slow and prices unsatisfactory. Western Pennsylvania grades of run-of-mine coal are quoted per net ton at mines as follows: Steam coal, $1.25 to $1.75; gas coal, $1.35 to $1.75; coking coal, $1.50 to $1.75; steam slack, 90 cents to $1.10; gas slack, $1.00 to $1.25.

In the main collections are slow, although there has been a slight improvement over the situation which prevailed earlier in the year.

STOCK MARKET PRICES BREAK AT OPENING

Heavy Liquidation and Bear Selling Send List Off—Big Blocks Sold

NEW YORK, June 7. (AP.) — The stock market broke under heavy liquidation and bear selling at the opening today. Radio dropped 2 points, with a transaction of 15,000 shares, and Radio Keith 1 point, with a transaction of 10,000 shares. Vanadium and Westinghouse each lost 3 points. American Can and A. M. Byers 2, and Montgomery Ward, Consolidated Gas and American Power and Light each 1. U. S. Steel sagged only ⅛.

Selling progressed in large volume during the first half hour, delaying the ticker several minutes for the first time this month.

The rather abrupt drop in the market late yesterday, together with news that Radio Corp would make no first quarter report, delay in offering the reparations loan and continued colorlessness of business news, appeared to have discouraged many holders of stocks.

United States Steel sagged more than 2 points to a new low for the year at 164¾, compared to the low last November of 150. Shares losing 4 to 5 points or more included Westinghouse, Auburn, Case and Worthington.

Standard of New Jersey lost nearly 2 points. Chicago Northwestern, May Department Stores, Simmons and Erie reached new low ground for the year. Losses of a point or more were fairly general.

Sugar Companies Meet New Prices

NEW YORK, June 7.—The American Sugar Refining Company and National Sugar have followed the action of Federal and Revere sugar companies in advancing the price of refined sugar 10 points to 4.60 cents a pound. The new rate is effective Monday. This adjustment followed a drop of 20 points early in the week which carried the price to 4.50 cents a pound, the lowest in 10 years.

Jacobsen Denies Standard Control

A. Jacobsen, president of the Amerada Corporation, denied reports that the concern had been absorbed by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. He said that the two concerns jointly own some acreage in Oklahoma and Kansas where drilling operations are being conducted, but the "partnership" does not extend beyond that.

Russia Buys Cuban Raw Sugar at 1.35c

HAVANA, June 7.—Official government reports state that negotiations to sell 135,000 tons of raw sugar at 1.35c a pound to Russia have been concluded. Negotiations are also proceeding for an additional 150,000 tons at price prevailing in the market at the time of completing the transaction.

Five Months Motor Output Down 31%

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Automobile output during the first five months of 1930 was 1,970,849 cars, a decline of 31 per cent from the same 1929 period, according to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Pipe Line Deliveries Rise During May

May pipe line deliveries by 11 companies, comprising the old Standard Oil group, totaled 16,179,206 barrels, or a daily average of 521,909 barrels, as against 15,631,234 barrels in April, or daily rate of 521,041 barrels.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was slow today at the wholesale produce markets in Pittsburgh. There were no changes in quotations.

The poultry markets ruled firm, demand good, supply normal without changes in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets remained steady; demand adequate with slight changes in quotations.

Car lot supplies were nominal with 451 cars on track. Arrivals included 6 cars of apples, 1 beans, 19 cabbage, 1 celery, 10 cucumbers, 1 onions, 3 lettuce, 1 onions, 2 oranges, 2 peas, 2 pineapples, 5 potatoes, 4 strawberries, 1 sweet potatoes and 16 tomatoes.

RAW MATERIAL DROP HITS GERMANY

Burden Increased About 10 Per Cent Under Young Plan by Price Decline

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

(Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, June 7.—In Connection with the forthcoming sale in this market of reparations bonds, the ultimate value of which will depend upon Germany's capacity to pay, it is interesting to observe that Germany's burden under the new Young plan has been increased about 10 per cent by world-wide decline in raw material prices since the plan was formulated a year ago.

Though reducing German annual reparation payments to 2,000,000,000 gold marks, the Young plan, unlike the Dawes plan, made no provision for automatic adjustment in case of wide fluctuations in the value of gold. The predecessor arrangement, the Dawes plan, on the other hand, provided that fluctuations of 10 per cent or more in the purchasing power of gold should lead to an automatic revision of the terms. But this arrangement was not carried over into the Young plan for the reason that the latter agreement dovetailed interallied debts and reparations, and no provision has been made for an adjustment of inter-allied debts in accordance with wide fluctuations in the true value of gold. Accordingly, Germany is a sufferer from the recent deflation, which has reduced all commodity prices. Expressed in another way, Germany agreed to pay in cheaper marks, but must under the agreement pay in dearer marks, which have 10 per cent greater purchasing power. The real burden of payment has been increased, not only for Germany, it is true, but for all debtors who have incurred obligations in gold.

STABILIZING AGENCY

Insiders know that the American and British experts favored the new bank for international settlements, because they visualized it as an agency which could subtly make adjustments which would prevent arrangements from being upset by wide fluctuations in the true value of gold. Restriction of the charter of the bank will make it relatively difficult for the new bank, headed by Gates W. McGarrah, New York banker, to operate along these lines, but some of the influential British and American economists are hopeful that the statutes will be modified to enable the bank to make sure that the intentions of all parties are not frustrated by the tyranny of gold.

Numerous economists are fearful lest a restricted output of new gold may serve to depress commodity prices for a long term, and thus put a damper on world trade.

Some of the experts, especially in London, hope that the International Bank can in practice be used to stem the current deflationary tides. Among the specific proposals which have been privately made are that credit be expanded through counting gold placed as reserves in the new International Bank twice—once as part of the domestic reserves of contributing central banks and again as the reserves of the International Bank, which may itself create international credits on the basis of such reserves. Such a policy would have the practical effect of adding enormously to the world's gold supply. It is also hoped that, as a matter of moral suasion, directors of the International Bank coming from the principal financial countries will induce recalcitrant central banks to desist from gold hoarding and other practices which are harmful to world trade. There is a movement afoot, especially in the London money market, to encourage credit expansion through making the gold exchange standard popular again.

FOREIGN TRADE CRUX

Germany assented to the idea of an international bank chiefly because it thought it would be an instrument for promoting world trade, of which Germany would get a slice. Germany's ability to pay reparations, of course, depends on foreign trade. With the western countries erecting high tariff barriers, Germany's chief long term hopes lie in Russia and in the Orient. France agreed to the international bank chiefly because it saw in it an agency for commercializing Germany's reparation debt. France felt that Germany would be much less likely to default on bonds in the hands of private investors than on a political obligation to the allied governments.

As far as the domestic stock and bond markets are concerned, a distinctly restraining factor has been the large increase since the beginning of the year of collateral loans of banks. The large expansion in this item has reduced the investing power of the banks. Evidently, the collateral loans are, to some extent, frozen by the fact that current low stock prices give customers little opportunity to liquidate, and pay off their obligations without incurring realized losses.

A striking fact in the current business scene is the rising tide of opposition among thoughtful Republican businessmen toward the proposed hodge podge tariff bill.

Playing Against Par May Better Your Results

By B. C. FORBES

HOW DO YOU measure your performance?

Do you fix a quota for yourself, a par, or any other objective and then use a measuring stick to see how well or how poorly you are doing?

Recently I commented on Bobby Jones' method when playing golf. He doesn't play against his opponent, he always plays against par—golfing language for perfection. Thus he avoids worrying over what his opponent may do or may not do. His opponent, his objective, is perfection. Adopting this mental attitude, his equilibrium is not upset by any unusually lucky break his opponent may get. Bobby's concentration is not dissipated, his nerves are not upset by expending thought on what the other fellow is doing.

I also recently mentioned that H. Gordon Selfridge, the most successful department store owner in London—American-trained—has for years had an imaginary competitor located next door, an extremely shrewd Jewish merchant. All his staff are trained to keep their minds constantly on what this "par" merchandiser would do. In other words, Selfridge has the same idea as Bobby Jones.

L. L. Poe, of the Davey Tree Expert Company, sends a quotation from a published statement made almost five years ago, by the head of that wonderful efficient organization, Martin L. Davey, president of the company, said:

"We do not have competition. Here and there are small local firms, but there is no other company organized on a national basis. We are. This is a unique situation. If we did not take pains to prevent it, we should probably miss the spur of competition. So long ago as 1912 we set up rules and standards designed to produce upon our organization the effect of competition. In other words, we compete with ourselves, and every year we try to make the standard higher."

Mr. Poe adds:

"It seems that Mr. Davey, who is not a golf player himself, set up par to shoot against in this business at a time when Bobby Jones was ten years old."

Maybe you could apply this idea to your personal activities or to your business. It might inject a certain competitive or combative or sporting spirit, a certain challenge into your daily performance, thereby infusing additional zest into your life.

WALL STREET has been growling because of "terrible dullness," sales on the New York Stock Exchange having recently fallen below 2,000,000 shares in a day. Read this description of a stock market day exactly 20 years ago:

"Another stock market break of much severity occurred yesterday, and of the 156 issues in which there were transactions only half a dozen showed advances at the close, while such losses were recorded as 5¼ points in Union Pacific, 3¼ points in St. Paul, 3¼ points in Steel common, and from 8 to 10 points in some of the specialties. The total sales were 1,475,468 shares," the heaviest in months."

In active times even the New York Curb Market handles more than 1,475,468 shares, "the heaviest in months" on the big board two decades ago.

Does this mean that we have become a nation of speculators?

No. The truth is, rather, that in the last 20 years we have raised an unparalleled group of investors. There are probably 10 individuals and families owning shares today for each stockholder 15 years ago. With this enormous growth in the number of total security holders it is natural that dealings in securities should have multiplied. As a matter of fact, the total number of stock owners has increased greater than the total dealings.

Is it illogical to reason, therefore, that stock owners of today are less rather than more speculatively inclined than those of 15 years ago?

SOMETHING SUGGESTIVE of a stalemate has been reached in industry and business as well as in the stock market.

Relatively few people feel at all sure what the next three months will bring. Many are doubtful concerning the extent of the general business recovery to date, and question whether there will be any pronounced improvement for months. Semi-war uncertainty prevails concerning the outlook in Wall Street. One view is that the course of stock quotations will be governed entirely by the course of industry and business during the second half of the year. Another view is that the turn has already come in business and that, therefore, security values are certain to rise. But neither side is backing its view very aggressively. Hence, the lull in speculation.

Woman Meets Death, Three in Auto Hurt

DOVER, O., June 7.—Mrs. Charles Nolty, 33, Dover, was killed when the automobile she was driving overturned into a ditch at the outskirts of Rochelle, near Canton.

Mrs. Nolty lost control of the car when she looked to see if rain was falling on her sister, Mrs. F. M. Osgood, riding with her. Mrs. Osgood and two daughters, Therma, 18, and Elva, 8, suffered cuts.

NOTES OFFERED BY U. S. AT 2 7-8

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP.)—The Treasury offered for subscription about $400,000,000 of Treasury certificates to mature in one year carrying 2⅞ per cent interest. The issue will be dated June 16, 1930.

The easy money rates throughout the country were reflected in the offering, which is the first in a long time to carry less than 3 per cent interest. The amount which may be more or less than the $400,000,000 announced is expected to take care of the Treasury's needs until September.

As the fiscal year closes, the Treasury will have $550,000,000 of indebtedness maturing June 16, and about $95,000,000 in interest payments on the public debt payable on the same day.

BANK RATE CUT AT CLEVELAND

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP.)—The Federal Reserve Board announced that the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland has reduced its rediscount rate to 3½ per cent from 4 per cent on all classes of paper of all maturities effective tomorrow.

The reduction ordered by the Cleveland bank is the second break in the 4 per cent rate established by all of the banks except New York. The New York bank has maintained a 3 per cent rate for the last two months and that at Boston is operating on a 3½ per cent basis. Nine banks remain on the 4 per cent basis.

LINK MAN HERE IN MURDER

INDIANAPOLIS, June 7.—(AP.)—A former Pittsburgh man was sought today by police investigating the burning of a man's body in the automobile of Harold Schroeder, of Mobile, Ala., here a week ago.

C. C. Ridenhour, believed by police to have been with Schroeder a few days before the Mobile man reached Indianapolis for the 500-mile automobile race Memorial Day, may hold the key to Schroeder's disappearance, detectives said.

Thomas Riley, investigator for an insurance company, revealed the search for Ridenhour on his return from Mobile early today. Riley said he obtained a photostatic copy of a check for $1,000 to which he said Schroeder had forged Ridenhour's name.

The detective said Ridenhour had red hair, was of the Catholic faith and formerly lived in Pittsburgh. Physicians who examined the charred body, said there was evidence the victim had red hair. Two Pittsburgh street car tokens were found in the automobile.

Ridenhour, Riley said, knew Schroeder in Mobile, and has not been reported seen since a few days before the burning car was found.

4 DEAD AS TONG WAR SPREADS

CHICAGO, June 7.—(INS.)—Chinese tong warfare, smouldering throughout the country for weeks, broke out here today when Sam Fing, proprietor of a laundry, was shot and killed.

Three Chinese approached Fing as he stood at the curb. One drew a .38 calibre revolver, fired six shots, and, as Fing toppled off the curb into the street, dead, hurled the gun into the gutter beside him. Fing was a member of the On Leong Tong.

BOSTON, June 7.—(INS.)—Greater Boston's division on the nation-wide Chinese tong war recorded its first killing in Everett today.

The victim was Sing Won, 45, treasurer of the Hip Sing tong, who was trapped in his laundry and riddled with bullets.

By FAITH BALDWIN

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Larry Eaton, president of the Eaton Advertising Agency, is puzzled by the strange actions of his secretary, Janet Andrews, who has been in his employ for five years. When Miss Andrews starts to cry while taking dictation from him, Eaton allows her to go home for the rest of the day. Eaton then decides to get a new secretary. He plans to give Miss Andrews a long leave of absence and get pretty Anne Murdock to work in her place. Miss Murdock is secretary to the vice president of the concern. When Anne hears about the proposed change she is delighted.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER III.

Miss Andrew returned to the office on the following day, perceptibly nervous beneath her air of schooled repression. Eaton, who had worked late the previous evening, remaining long after he had let Anne Murdock go, arrived at the office somewhat later than was his custom and found Janet at her desk. He spoke to her pleasantly, determined to ignore the scene—and its implications—of the afternoon before.

But she said, timidly enough: "I—I am so sorry about yesterday."

"That's all right," he told her. "I hope your headache is better."

It wasn't. But she lied mechanically. "Oh, yes, thank you. But I was worried about the letter to Mr. Goddard."

"Miss Murdock got it out for me," he said, and went on into his room, conscious that after "Miss Murdock" the presence of Miss Andrews was a considerable letdown.

The early morning routine having been disposed of, Janet Andrews drew a deep breath and sat tense and erect at her desk, her thin hands idle, staring at the wall upon which she seemed to see the inevitable handwriting. What a hideous night she had put behind her—hours of endless, sleepless, bitter self-reproach and shame!

She had always prided herself upon her cool, intelligent interest in her work. She had been proud of her business loyalty and integrity, and of Lawrence Eaton's reliance upon her. So the years had passed and slowly, inexorably, by almost imperceptible degrees, she had come to this agonizing self-knowledge that it was not the work but the employer that mattered.

All night she had told herself: "I shall resign. I must!"

But she couldn't face it. Never to see him again! Never to hear his voice! Never to watch the slow, deep smile illuminating the gray eyes! Never again to have the right to mother him a little, to watch over him, to guard him!

Perils

Janet Not Advised of Many Dangers

She did not appear ridiculous to herself.

She'd dragged herself back to the office wondering why this devastating thing had come to her. She'd been far too busy all her life to speculate upon her physiological and psychological problems. She had read little. Her young womanhood had been spent in caring for and supporting an invalid father. At his death she had adjusted herself to living alone.

No one had advised her of the perils she ran into, the dangers of a starving maternal instinct, the warning signals of her 40 years. She could meet men graciously enough—in business. Socially she was repressed, awkwardly austere. One or two men who might have loved her had come into her life during the period when her father and his demands had constituted a burden she could not drop—or share.

She'd been quite pretty in her twenties, a prettiness of good features, abundant vitality and youth. But her vitality had gone into the job and the youth had passed and the prettiness had faded. She was critical of "smart" clothes in the office, and of cosmetics. She dressed well and plainly, and, as Betty Howard had said, "washed her face" and let it go at that.

She had a few friends, professional women of her own age, some sober plodders like herself, others of a more volatile nature, a little impatient of "poor Janet's" incapacity for enjoyment.

Jealousy

Janet Does Not Approve Of Anne

Anne Murdock was the youngest friend she had and far the most attractive. Janet disapproved of Anne. She thought her too pretty and, erroneously, too "gay," for all her alertness, to be in an office.

She should be married to some nice boy, settled in a suburban cottage with a family to rear and a house to keep, away from the pressure and temptations of the business world. Not that Janet herself had been subjected to temptations! She liked Anne, was even fond of her, scolded her as she might have scolded a dear younger sister, was glad when Anne found time for her.

Anne was 24. Anne had youth, ambition, beauty and a flashing gayety, a warm ardency of manner. And last night Anne had been with Lawrence Eaton in the quiet office, taking his dictation, finishing her, Janet's, tasks.

No, she could not resign.

But as she was leaving for the day Eaton called her to him.

Unhappy

Janet Shocked by News From Eaton

"I am going to give you a leave of absence, Miss Andrews," he told her quickly but most kindly. "I think you need and deserve a rest. You work hard and your vacations have been inadequate. You will leave us at the end of the week on full pay."

But his deliberate kindness was disregarded. Her eyes were distended and her mouth shook as she asked hoarsely: "Does that mean that I am—dismissed?"

He answered, wishing to be honest, yet finding her pitiful: "I hope not. I want you to take six weeks. If at the end of that time you are strong again, quite well—" He left the sentence unfinished. Yet she felt as if she had watched him sign her death warrant.

She drew nearer, her hands clasped before her in a futile endeavor to still their tremor.

"I'm all right," she managed. "It was temporary. Please, please don't send me away from you," she implored, so desperately unhappy that she did not realize what she was saying.

Eaton felt ashamed, curiously humiliated, as if he had received a wound in the spirit through this sword of revelation. And at the same time, being masculine, her attitude settled things. He said firmly:

"You see, Miss Andrews, how quickly you become upset? I am not sending you away. I am giving you a leave of absence with a good chance to recover your health and return to us."

Eaton Annoyed

Thinks of Janet After She Leaves

In another moment she would cry. She knew it and he knew it. She said, "Thank you" in a low tone and walked back to the office.

By somes stupendous feat of will she managed to get her things together and to crawl wearily to her flat. She's seen this sort of thing happen before to other women—The tactful granting of leave. . . Well, in six weeks' time she'd be looking for another job.

When she left at the end of a terrible week the fiction was kept up between her and Eaton.

"The work?" she wanted to know when she was saying good-by to him. "Good-by," she thought dully, "means God be with you." But it seemed that He had ceased to be with her.

"I've arranged with Mr. Sanders to borrow Miss Murdock for the time being," he answered.

So she had that to take home with her—the definite knowledge of her supplanting.

When she was gone Eaton had time to think about her without anger—for the love of a woman one doesn't want affects a man in one of two ways according to his character and the quality of his vanity—or pride: either if affords him smugness, complacency and a little scorn, or it annoys him. It had annoyed Eaton. Yet he thought he understood, for he knew better than most men the dangers of repression, the bursting of carefully builded dams.

The Successor

Anne Is Told to Take Janet's Place

To Anne Murdock he said briefly: "Mr. Sanders will let me have you for the duration of Miss Andrews' absence."

Anne looked up and smiled. His mind banished Miss Andrews and centered upon her successor. What a pretty girl, he thought, for the twentieth time, as Anne evidenced her willingness to fall in with his plans. And if Sanders didn't like it, he nevertheless contented himself with a good stenographer as substitute and warned Eaton frankly:

"You won't be able to keep me out of your office while Miss Murdock's with you. She carries 40,000 details of my work in her head that I can't be bothered with. So don't crab if you see me coming in half a dozen times a day."

"I'm sorry, Sandy; and come as often as you want. But I must have competent assistance with this Marsten business, and as far as I can see Miss Murdock is the only person who'll fill the bill at present. I don't want to bring in an outsider. Miss Andrews will come back, you know," he added with no conviction.

Nor was Sanders convinced. But he made no comment.

Business

New Job Obtained in Fair Manner

Things had gone well. She'd made no mistakes. The chief had praised her at the close of the day. A good Monday. Why did people call Monday blue? And Betty Howard, whose boy was well on the road to recovery, had propresied during a luncheon hour snatched together: "You'll get Andrews' job. She'll never come back."

"Mr. Eaton says she will," Anne said, arguing against her own ambitions and happiness in a way women have.

"You let that mislead you? When a man gives his secretary a vacation because her nerves are shot, there is more in it than meets the eyes. No, he'll never take her back. Men can't be annoyed with nerves in their offices. They have enough of them at home."

"Look here," asked Anne suddenly, "I fell into this; I didn't try deliberately to get the job away from her, but if she doesn't return and I do get it—well, I haven't done anything really underhanded, have I?"

Betty smiled at her. "Of course not. It's dog eat dog in this world, anyway," she said a little wearily. "And if it's true anywhere that one man's loss is another's gain, it's true in business. It's not your fault." Betty reminded her, "that Andrews went to pieces.

Two Women Fight With Razors, One Loses Nose

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 7.—Mrs. William Drain, 32, had her nose completely severed and Mrs. William Molten, 28, was badly lacerated when they engaged in a fight at their home. Razors were used by both, police report. Mrs. Drain was in a serious condition last night.

TRADE BOARDS ELECT SNELL

Arthur V. Snell, for five years secretary and manager of the Chamber of Commerce, has been elected executive director of the Allied Boards of Trade, it was announced today.

In his new post he will manage the activities of the organization, composed of 43 civic and commercial associations throughout the county, and having a membership exceeding 14,500.

Mr. Snell announced the Allied Boards of Trade would maintain a central office in the Hotel William Penn.

Stock Exchange Topics

Radio Corporation Not To Publish Earnings For First Quarter.

The Radio Corporation has received permission from the stock exchange to forego the publication of a report covering its operations for the first quarter of the year. The reason advanced by the company for its decision to omit the quarterly report is that because of recent recapitalization and unifications plan it would be impossible to show a complete and correct picture for comparison. The stock exchange granted permission to the company to omit the report with the understanding that the corporation will issue a statement for the six-month period ending June 30 next and quarterly reports thereafter.

The speculative element, though not doing much in the way of actual trading at present, is nevertheless keeping a close watch on the market. Just now such interest is centered chiefly in the action of steel common, long recognied as the bellwether of industrial list. The reason for the unusual interest in steel at this time is found in the fact that the stock at the low levels of yesterday and Thursday was within less than 2 points of the year's bottom price. Inasmuch as a dip in steel to new low levels might bring in a further run of discouraged general selling its action between now and Tuesday when the May report on unfilled orders is published, will bear close scrutiny.

The point of particular interest in this week's Federal Reserve report on collateral loans seems to be found in the fact that advances for the account of others, principally corporations, shows a further sharp contraction, $62,000,000, to the lowest point since the decline from last October's high began. The peak for all loans in this compilation was reached on October 2, last, at $6,804,000,000. At that time loans for "others" comprised $3,907,000,000, or more than half the aggregate, and the following week reached their peak of $3,941,000,000, presently such loans are $2,712,000,000 under the October 2 level, while loans for out-of-town banks are down $631,000,000 in the same interval, and loans for local banks' own account $640,000,000 greater.

For the reason that there is little or nothing in the way of fresh news developing on which traders can find reason to commit themselves, positions on the "sidelines" are much preferred for the present. Even the more agile professionals have been complaining of their inability to scalp a small profit from a series of in and out trades in the course of the day. The absence of many important market interests is being keenly felt at the moment, and there is a growing disposition to withhold from taking any extended position either way pending some significant development which may serve to point the direction of the market's next important move.

The steel news is not very good. U. S. Steel's operations fell nearly 5 per cent last week to 75 per cent of capacity and the independents are running around 61½ per cent. This indicates smaller earnings in June than in either April or May. However, earnings in the first two months of the quarter were fair, and U. S. Steel should earn its dividends and add something substantial to surplus. New business is running rather light and no increase in operations is looked for in the near future. It would be safer to guess that the decline in production will continue for a while. This steel manufacturers say, is seasonable as there usually is a slow-up in the summer. Average operations may get as low as 65 per cent, but at that rate the low cost producers can earn current dividends.

That this is a period of great selectivity is the view in most quarters. It is pointed out that if, as many anticipate, the improvement in business does not come until some time between August 15 and September 15, it will be necessary to use greater care and discrimination in making purchases than ever before. Much attention will be paid to the publication of reports and estimates of earnings. Stocks of companies which are not likely to show to advantage in the coming months are likely to be neglected for the securities of concerns which should be among the first to reflect a change for the better in business.

Utah Lead Co. Heads Guilty of Frauds

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP.)—A verdict of guilty against three of four individual defendants in the second Utah Lead Company mail fraud trial has been returned by a jury in Federal Court.

Charles Beadon, promoter and the principal defendant, was convicted of mail fraud and conspiracy to use the mails to defraud Michael Barnett, Philadelphia lawyer and president of the lead company, and Harry H. Phillips, Philadelphia and New York broker, were convicted of conspiracy. Joseph Morris, statistician employed by Beadon, was acquitted of all charges.

Youth Acquitted In Extortion Case

ETHEREAL ASPECT OF THE MODE SEEN IN WHITE EVENING GOWNS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, JUNE 7.—If you are planning an evening ensemble of white and red, you needn't be blue. For that color combination is winning new and smart adherents every day, as it is arresting without being too loud, and is equally effective whether worn by a blonde or brunette, providing that the facial make-up is not too emphatic. Otherwise, the result will be rather theatrical, something to be avoided in these very feminine days. The vogue for white has not only remained, but has increased and nearly every woman who goes out to dine and dance, finds that a white frock has become not a luxury, but a charming necessity. White confers a touch of the ethereal on the woman of svelte figure, but is not so benevolent to the woman who has allowed a spare tire to settle around her waistline, and so should be passed up until the masseuse or the diet demon has disposed of all excess baggage. Until that happy day, it would be advisable for the large woman to remain true to a black frock cut on long, flowing lines.

WE ARE AFRAID that a mere black and white drawing will be wholly inadequate to display the charms of the evening ensemble shown here. It is by Molyneux who is showing considerable white combined with red in his mid-season collection, to the gratification of his extensive clientele. The dress sketched is of white georgette showing the salient details of the current mode. These are a bolero, a peplum, a circular flounced skirt which trails slightly at either side, and closely fitting lines. Bow knots of georgette trim one side of the skirt and two rather large, bright red carnations are placed at one side of the decolletage. A deep, circular cape, made of a single layer of bright red tulle complements the red flowers of the dress and is a most successful color accent.

CAPTAIN MOLYNEUX is also responsible for the nice little sport ensemble. It is a smartly simple tailored model and consists of a severely plain belted frock of white crepe mongol, with a mannish jacket of hydrangea blue, in a woolen material. The jacket may also be had in bright crimson, but both combinations are equally attractive.

by JAMES J. LONG

Great Horses in Test.
Belmont Grips Country.
Chance for Buc Gain.

Crippled Teams Spurt.
Age as Fight Factor.

RACE OF CENTURY APPEARS TOSS-UP

THOUGH ALWAYS a standout on the American turf by reason of its ranking as the richest 3-year-old race in the world and this country's oldest classic, the Belmont Stakes never before attracted such wide attention as centers around the annual running of the fixture at Belmont Park in New York this afternoon. All because it brings together as the chief contenders the two racing sensations of the year, William Woodward's Gallant Fox and Harry Payne Whitney's Whichone.

Earl Sande.

Other horses are scheduled to start, but they might as well be out of the picture altogether, no attention is being paid to them. They're not conceded to have even a look-in, and, instead of an open struggle with a well-balanced field competing, the event takes on the form and the gripping appeal of a championship match race between the two thoroughbreds named, a test to determine the greatest horse of 1930 in the United States.

RARELY HAS SO much speed and excitement been packed into two and a half minutes or less as will probably result from the meeting of the rival stars. It shapes up as the world series of the turf, the horse race of the century. It was in a different event and on a different track that Man o' War and Sir Barton ran their memorable thriller in 1920, but today's duel is apt to prove almost a counterpart of that great race of 10 years ago in the Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct, in which Man o' War scored perhaps his most sensational victory in 1:49 1-5 for the mile and one-eighth.

Even the great match races of the past are likely to be eclipsed. When Man o' War met Sir Barton at Kenilworth Park in 1920, the former won in hollow fashion. In 1923, Papyrus, winner of the English Derby that year, came to this country reputed to be invincible, but he was handily beaten at Belmont Park by Zev ridden by Earl Sande, who will have the mount on Gallant Fox this afternoon. In 1924 France sent over Epinard to meet the best in this country, but he was defeated in turn by Wise Counsellor at Belmont Park, Ladkin at Aqueduct, and Sarazen at Latonia. For close going and uncertainty as to the outcome, today's race appears certain to surpass all of them.

PICKING THE PROBABLE winner amounts practically to a toss-up, for not only do the two great colts appear to be evenly matched in speed, but this afternoon's event is at such a distance that endurance or stamina may be the deciding factor, and nobody knows what either can do at a mile and a half.

Sonny Workman.

This will be the first test for both at that distance. Gallant Fox has won at a mile and 70 yards, a mile and three-sixteenths, and a mile and a quarter. Whichone's longest race has been at a mile.

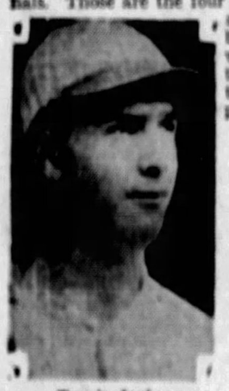
AS A 2-YEAR-OLD, Whichone held the edge, beating Gallant Fox decisively last season in the Futurity, in which Gallant Fox finished third. As 3-year-olds, both are undefeated. Gallant Fox has won the Wood Memorial, the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby, while Whichone has captured the Ballot Handicap and the Withers. Each will have a master rider in the saddle, with Sande guiding Gallant Fox and Sonny Workman having the leg up on Whichone.

ALL AROUND, IT is the most even proposition and the hardest race to pick that has confronted turf followers in years. A slight edge for Gallant Fox exists in public favor, but it is due largely to sentiment and the popularity of Sande in his comeback.

There is, of course, the possibility that the two stars will be trying so hard to beat each other that they may succeed in doing that very thing and let Questionnaire or some other outsider come along and win, but Sande and Workman appear to be too smart for that. They ought to run one-two, but it's a flip of a coin as to which will be which.

IF THE PIRATES, risen to third place, can keep going through the Boston series at the improved gait they showed in winning the opener yesterday, particularly in the matter of pitching, they may help their standing quite a bit, as they are in a good position to gain some ground.

While the Bucs are performing in the Hub today, tomorrow and Monday, the Cubs will be playing three games more with the Cardinals. Those are the four clubs to be reckoned with in the flag race, and as there is a chance that they may break even in their four-game engagements which opened yesterday, a clean sweep by the Corsairs against the Braves would mean the picking up of two full games on the pack.



Travis Jackson

IN THE LONG run, of course, no ball club can play up to normal with one or two more star regulars out of the lineup, but there are times when absent luminaries appear not to be missed. When Rogers Hornsby and Lester Bell were lost, following the death of Hal Carlson, a gloomy future loomed for the Cubs, but they have won their last nine games without a slip and have climbed from fourth place to within one game of the top. The Giants couldn't get anywhere without Travis Jackson, it was figured, particularly as Freddie Lindstrom and Mel Ott also were ailing, but the McGrawites have just picked off six victories in a row. The Athletics look hopelessly shot on paper, with Al Simmons, Max Bishop and Jimmy Dykes missing, yet they have captured 11 of their last 12 games, while prior to Thursday's defeat in St. Louis they hung up the season's major league record of 10 wins in succession. And the Cardinals, with Jim Bottomley back in action and Frankie Frisch not leaving his post until three days ago, have lost 10 of their last 11 bouts. A rather uncertain game, is baseball.

EVERY FOLLOWER of clean sports in this district feels a personal loss in the death of Dr. Charles B. Quailey, Fourth Ward alderman and dentist, whose passing yesterday after an illness of two months grieved a wide circle of friends in athletic and political circles.

GALLANT FOX, WHICHONE TOP SMALL FIELD

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP.)—A two-horse race for the three-year-old championship of the American turf, at a mile and a half, features the sixty-second running of the historic Belmont stakes today.

In the most widely debated duel since Papyrus came over from England to race Zev for three-year-old honors, William Woodward's Gallant Fox, winner of the Preakness and Kentucky derby with Earl Sande up, will match strides for the first time this year with Harry Payne Whitney's great colt, Whichone, champion juvenile of 1929.

Three other horses have been entered for the rich stake, which will be worth $66,000 to the winner. One of these, Woodward's Flying Gal, may not start, however, and neither of the other two, James Butler's Questionnaire and Walter J. Salmon's Swinfield, is expected to threaten Gallant Fox or Whichone. If they do, it will be a shot heard 'round the turf world.

EXPECT GREAT CROWD

A crowd of 75,000 racing followers, the largest since Zev beat Papyrus at Belmont Park, in 1923, may pack the spacious stands and grounds for a race that promises to send pulses soaring.

The quintet of entries went through light workouts yesterday. Whichone and Gallant Fox limbered up with a slow gallop of six furlongs. Their trainers, Tom Healy and Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, pronounced each ready for

DISTRICT STARS GAIN FINALS

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP.)—A glittering band of athletes from the University of Southern California braved the danger of pneumonia yesterday to make their bid for national track and field supremacy, in competition with 425 of the greatest stars in America.

The Trojans, already victorious in the Eastern intercollegiate and Pacific Coast championships, raced through a cold, drizzly rain and biting wind that swept Stagg Field to place 12 athletes in nine out of 10 of the preliminaries of the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship meet. The finals will be held today.

Ohio State, Illinois and Washington were next in the ranking with six men apiece, while Nebraska, Notre Dame, Stanford and Kansas, each placed four in the record breaking field of athletes from 90 universities and colleges.

Discarding the controversial starting-blocks which caused the International Amateur Athletic Federation to throw out his world's record-breaking performance of :09.4 for the 100-yard dash, George Simpson, of Ohio State, with Frank Wykoff, of Southern California, turned in the fastest time for the century trials, each being clocked in :09.6.

Pete Bowen, Pitt quarter-mile star, turned in the best time in the trials for the 440 by winning his heat in 48.8. Len Friedman, Geneva College javelin tosser, qualified for the finals with a heave of 186 feet, eight inches. Everett Utterback and Ed Knoblock, Pitt jumper and hurdler, respectively, failed to qualify for the finals.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: PALMER PEAS HAS BEEN ARRESTED 1,001 TIMES—At the age of 92, Palmer Peas, a Negro preacher of Atlanta, Ga., is the most frequently-arrested individual in the world. He recently has been arrested for the one thousand and first time, and the total of the time served by him for drunkenness has been computed to aggregate 28 years. ONE PAIL EACH OF SAND, WATER AND CEMENT MAKE ONE PAIL OF CEMENT—The quantity of concrete mixture is less than the sum total of its constituents because the fine aggregate fills the voids in the coarser ingredients which go into the making of the mixture. In the ready product all the voids in class of material are filled with the particles of the smaller material.

ALCOMA CARDS CADDIE TEST

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Yes, sir! We don't mean maybe—the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's third annual Western Pennsylvania junior amateur golf tournament for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy, to be held at the Schenley Park municipal links, on Monday, July 7, is going to be the biggest sports event young men and boys in this district have participated in in many a day. Is there a super-golfer among our younger amateur golfers in the tri-state district? Is there another Bobby Jones? The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will be able to tell you—after the 18-hole medal play at Schenley Park.

Bobby Jones has just capped his many achievements by copping the coveted British amateur championship—there has been no major championship in golf he has not won. And Bobby started as a boy—he developed his prowess as a tournament player as he grew older, conquered his temper and became well-nigh perfect with his clubs.

SEEK JONES' SUCCESSOR

It is hardly necessary to explain why we want another great shot-maker like Bobby Jones—Bobby will retire on his laurels one of these days, and someone must take his place. Is there any boy who thinks he can play golf in Western Pennsylvania who would not like to be in Bobby Jones' shoes?

Tomorrow an entry blank will be published. It will tell you that if you are an amateur in good standing, as defined by the code of the United States Golf Association, 19 years of age or under, and not attending an institution of learning above preparatory school grades, you may enter this big William Randolph Hearst tourney. It will tell you that if you are a caddie and have not yet reached your eighteenth birthday, you are still an amateur and eligible to compete. There is no

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

BOSTON, June 7.—Well, folks, I guess Gus wanted to do something to celebrate the arrival of that baby girl so he cut loose in the seventh inning with a homer that changed a great ball game in favor of the Pirates.

Commy isn't married, but he is the uncle of the cutest twins you ever saw and he says whenever he thinks about these two kids he is ready for anything, so I guess he must had his mind on the kids when he went up in the ninth.

ARGUE ON FOOD

Before the game started there was a big argument on the bench about what a ball player should eat to be in good shape. Charlie Hargreaves argued that a player should eat a fair breakfast, a good supper and not a bite in between. Chas. was checked up by a couple of fellows who claim you have to get that soup or meat behind the punches.

Well the argument went on pro and con till Rolly Hemsley got an earful. Rolly and his dad worked in the coal mines and I guess that's hard work. Hemsley said a fellow could eat two fair meals and a light lunch and go along o. k. in the mines. The arguments kept getting hotter, but most of the regulars was at the plate waitin' to hit. Finally Commy hit a couple and started for the bench. Hemsley thought he could prove his case by Adam, so he hollered:

"Hey, Commy, tell these fellas how many meals a day a coal miner has to have to keep in good shape to work." And without showin' any sign that he was kiddin' Comorosky replied:

"About six or eight—I used to feel o. k. on five good ones."

Of course, this broke up the argument and when Commy broke up the ball game, the gang that was arguing about the square meals three times a day for the ballplayers was poppin' off.

$16 Gate Looms; Wrestling Show Called Off

The wrestling exhibition, booked for Meyers Bowl last night, was called off when it was discovered that less than $16 had been taken in at the gate when it was time for the show to commence.

As $16 hardly is to be classed a real dough, even for a wrestler, the promoters refunded the money to the fans, both of 'em, paid the grapplers their expenses and like the famed Arabs, folded their tents and decidedly thinner wallets and called it a day.

GRAYS BATTLE MEMPHIS NINE

The Homestead Grays and the crack Memphis team of the Negro National League will open a five-game series today, meeting in a double-header at Forbes Field. The first game will be played this afternoon and the second beginning at 6:00 o'clock. The afternoon contest will get underway at two.

Tomorrow, the teams will resume their series by clashing in a twin bill at Sharon and will complete the meetings by playing a single game Monday at Cycler Park, McKeesport.

The Grays will use Smoky Joe Williams on the slab in the first game and either Joe Britt or Lefty Williams in the second.

Last evening, the Grays nosed out Dormont, 6 to 5, in the feature encounter of a somewhat abbreviated sandlot card. In the City League, Book Shoe defeated W. O. W., 12 to 6. The Pittsburgh Railways nine defeated the Equitable team in a Philadelphia Company League fray, 19 to 3. Reliance Life won over Dravo, 4 to 0, in the C. & I. circuit and in the Crafton-Ingram Church League, the Presbyterians defeated Ingram, 6 to 2.

BOSTON, June 7.—The fighting spirit of the Pirates has brought the club back to third place, and even though the margin over the Giants and Cardinals is of the hair-trigger variety, the Buccos today are prepared to contest every inch of ground.

The Freebooters came from behind like a real ball club yesterday to gain a 4-to-3 victory over the hustling Braves in the first clash of a four-game series. Thrilling homers by Gus Suhr and Adam Comorosky turned the trick in the waning rounds of a great diamond fight.

INDIANS BEAT RED SOX; A'S DOWN BROWNS

CUBS WALLOP ROBINS; GIANTS, PHILS COP

Associated Press.

The younger batters of the American League haven't much chance to make names for themselves as long as those two old timers, George Herman Ruth and Edgar Charles Rice continue to hit at their present rates. The Babe and old Sam have almost a monopoly on the league's batting leadership, with Rice holding the highest honors.

Rice, a veteran of some 38 summers, 14 of them spent playing baseball for Washington, has made a record for consistent hitting this season that no younger rival has even threatened. The Senators have played 45 games so far; Rice has taken part in 44 of them; and only once has he failed to get at least one hit. Sam connected safely in 28 consecutive games before his streak was broken May 18 by Bob Grove of the Philadelphia Athletics. He picked up the series again the next day and has continued through 15 more games.

SEWELL HITS HARD

Joe Sewell, of Cleveland, and Russ Scarritt, of the Boston Red Sox, had perfect days yesterday with three and four hits respectively as the Indians gained a 9 to 4 victory over Boston, but neither is in a position to threaten the batting leader.

The blows of the Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Browns were pretty well distributed in the 5-to-4 triumph of the world's champions. The winning pitcher, Roy Mahaffey, contributed a home run to his victory, but he had to step down in favor of George Earnshaw as the Browns put on another ninth inning rally.

Denny Southern, of the Philadelphia Nationals, turned in the best batting feat of the day to help the Phillies to a 14 to 5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. In five times at bat, he hit five times and scored five runs. Four of his hits were doubles, equalling an all-time major league record set on July 3, 1883, by Pop Anson and Abner Dalrymple, of the Chicago Nationals, and equalled six times since then. Chuck Klein added his fifteenth home run to the Philly hits.

GIANTS BEAT CARDS

The New York Giants hit 17 times, 10 of the blows being divided between Critz, Leach and Terry, and defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 10 to 7, to move into a three-way tie in games with the Cards and Pittsburgh for third place in the National League. Pittsburgh gained the post by a one-point margin, defeating the Boston Braves, 4 to 3.

Chicago's Cubs scored their ninth successive victory at the expense of the Brooklyn Robins and Dazzy Vance, 13 to 6, and cut the Robins' lead from two games to one. Charley Root held Brooklyn to two singles.

LOCAL POLOISTS END SEASON

The red-shirted riders of the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery and the Gold and White attired Cavalrymen of the Three Hundred and Eighth will bring Pittsburgh's indoor polo season to a close tonight, clashing in a six chukker match in the Hunt Armory, East End.

Although from a standpoint of victories the season has not been overly successful as far as the Artillery team is concerned, yet it has been the best in point of interest ever experienced in Pittsburgh. In the first meeting with the Cavalry, the Artillerymen lost in a close match.

The Cavalry trio holds the season title, having defeated the Artillery, Shady Side Academy and the Pittsburgh Polo Club, without suffering a defeat.

SCHENLEY COPS SCHOOL TITLE

Hitting timely behind the sterling pitching of Earl Stratton, Schenley High School's baseball team defeated Oliver High in the final game of the City League's championship series at Forbes Field last evening, 11 to 1.

By winning last evening, and copping this year's league championship, Schenley annexed its fourth consecutive banner.

Stratton limited the North Side hitters to three safe blows, and after the first inning, did not permit an Oliver man to get further than second. Oliver scored on Baxter's triple and Stratton's wild pitch.

Oliver's infield went completely to pieces, five errors being charged against the Section II champions. Pinkey Freeland started on the slab for Oliver but gave way to Carmody in the third inning. Schenley played errorless ball. The score:

SHAW HIGH VICTOR

Shaw High, Cleveland school champion, routed a 12-3 victory over Westinghouse at the latter's field yesterday, batching three hits effectively.

This afternoon Shaw High plays Shadyside Academy.

Auto Accident Fatal To Former Jockey

FRESNO, Cal., June 7.—(AP.)—Charley Martin, 34, for several seasons a prominent jockey on eastern tracks, was killed, and Phillips McKinney, 36, Fresno salesman, injured last night, when their car overturned on the Golden State highway near Tulare.

DOG TO RISK SPEED TITLE

Lightning Flash will defend right to title of fastest greyhound at the Bridgeville Kennel Club's Speedway tonight. Flash, a Miami, Fla., champion, was brought here last Monday for the special race of Wednesday and defeated the local dogs over the futurity route.

Jack Allen, three-year-old black and brindle pup, won the feature event and the admiration of the large attendance last night. Bill's Blue Gun and Jahala fought a stretch duel for place honors, Bill getting the decision by a neck.

At New Kensington, Andy scored its second victory of the meeting by copping the honors in the eighth race, feature event of the program. Distant Cousin was second and Dark Town third. The winner paid $12.00 for first.

Londos Beats Shikat In Title Mat Bout

Londos won the title with a body hold after they had tugged and hauled at each other for one hour and 23 minutes.

FIGHT RESULTS

SHOOT CARDED TODAY

The Lebanon Road Gun Club range will be the scene of a 50-target shoot this evening, starting at 6:30.

DERBY ON AIR

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP.)—The $50,000 American Derby, one of Chicago's rich events for 3-year-olds thoroughbreds which will be decided next Saturday, will be broadcast over Stations WIBO and KYW. The ballyhoo will be hooked up with the National Broadcasting Company chain.

SANDE ON FOX

Despite painful injuries received in an automobile Thursday night, Sande was in gallant Fox's saddle for the last turn over the Belmont turf before the bugle calls the field to the post about 3:30 today. The great jockey had several cuts about his face covered with adhesive, but otherwise appeared unharmed by his accident in which Jockey Eddie Barnes was seriously injured.

Bookmakers were quoting 4 to 5 on Whichone and making the Woodward entry of Gallant Fox and Flying Gal the second choice at 6 to 5. By post time, however, the two stars are expected to be co-favorites at even money.

Among the Buccaneer heroes of yesterday was Heinie Meine who started and finished the game despite an accident on the mound in which the St. Louis Dutchman was knocked prostrate on the mound. The incident occurred in the ninth inning when the Buccos were carefully nursing a one-run lead.

MEINE INJURED

Fred Maguire's mad smash collided with the pitcher's right knee and it was feared it might be fractured, but after getting some time for recuperation, Meine said he would like to remain. Heinie had a tough time getting through the inning, but this he managed to do, the tieing run being on the sacks with none out after he had recovered.

Yesterday's scrap, like all the others of the present invasion, was a gruelling thing from the start to the finish. Meine and Ben Cantwell were in possession of plenty of stuff, with the young Boston righthander having a bulge on the Pittsburgh sharpshooter until the seventh, when Gus Suhr squared the match with a blast into the faraway rightfield bleachers, with Traynor on first.

Fred Maguire and Rabbit Maranville put over a dizzy double play in the eighth as the winning run was going over for the Pirates, the brilliant bit of fielding ending the inning.

TENNIS LEAGUE PROGRAM FULL TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

A complete program of contesting in both Section I and Section II of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League is carded for local rectangles this afternoon. Weather permitting, this means that for the first time this spring the entire quota of 18 league teams, representing the 18 P. T. A. clubs, will see concerted action.

Thus far, due to rain and the poor condition of several of the racquet lots, efforts to swing into the championship chase have proven spasmodic.

Topping the bill, the Stanton Heights-Edgewood affair at Edgewood looms as keen tussle. The titled Edgewoodmen, making their 1930 debut, will be called on to repulse a well-balanced Heights host that has already tasted blood in downing Jimmy Creighton's unexpectedly strong South Hills outfit. Edgewood will probably line up with Paul Hicks, Capt. Frank Smith, and McCook Reed starting one-two-three, though if Dr. Billy McElroy can be persuaded to don the spangles, he will unquestionably cavort at or near the head of the list.

P. A. A. MEETS TEST

In another promising upper division fray, Dave O'Loughlin's P. A. A. delegation will invade Westinghouse. Aside from Capt. O'Loughlin, the Winged Head netmen have failed to display particularly impressive form in preliminary workouts. Westinghouse, too, appears rather an uncertain quantity. Pretty much the same situation prevails as to the Mount Lebanon-College Hill fracas at Beaver Falls, but at University Club there exists not a little apprehension over the early power flashed by the invading South Hills crew.

Westinghouse Seconds will journey to Canonsburg for the feature clash of Section II. Both contenders scored impressive wins a week ago and the task of picking the survivor of their tussle is too speculative to be good policy.

Meanwhile over in the East End, Howard Moore's College Avenue followers will furnish stiff test for John Perrick and his Washington Heights troop.

The remaining lower sector tilts offer better ground for guessing, though the Alpha Kappa Psi-Edgewood meeting at Duquesne University is pretty much of a toss-up. Duquesne Library, however, seems too potent for West Penn Power, while Minnetonka, with one clever triumph to its credit, is apt to garner another in tangling with Philadelphia Company on the Stadium courts.

INTEREST KEEN

Interest in the Pittsburgh public parks tennis championships to be sponsored by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph on the municipal courts of six local parks the week beginning July 14 waxes apace. Although entries are not yet being received, a number of outstandingly clever public courts stars have signified intention to compete for the titles, trophies and trips to Washington for the national public parks championships awaiting the victors.

Tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph will bear the first entry blank for the tournament. These blanks will be published from time to time until the closing date a few days prior to the inauguration of hostilities. The Sunday Sun-Telegraph will also carry complete instructions for the filling out and filing of entries.

Long's Sport Comment

Quailey, until the time he was stricken with what proved a fatal illness, was an ardent supporter and regular patron of all sports, being particularly devoted to football, in which he served first as a high school coach and later as an official.

DR. QUAILEY was an athlete at the University of Pittsburgh when that institution was just beginning to establish itself in the "big time" of intercollegiate sport competition. As a halfback under Coach Joe Thompson and Capts. Homer Roe, Tex Richards and Jack Lindsey, he won his letter in football in 1909-10-11, and he was also a letter man in baseball in 1909.

The 1910 Pitt football team, of which Dr. Quailey was a member, was the only Panther eleven that ever went through a complete season without being scored on by an opponent. Ohio Northern, Westminster, Waynesburg, Georgetown, Ohio University, West Virginia, W. & J., Carnegie Tech and Penn State were held scoreless, while Pitt rolled up 286 points. Team mates of Dr. Quailey on that eleven were Tex Richards, Tilly Dewar, Polly Galvin, Billy Hittner, Jack Lindsey, George Gehlert, Norman Budd, Jim Stevenson, George Brown, Raymond Butler, Andy Blair, R. J. Peacock, John Frankel, George Bailey, D. J. Richards, and others.

THOSE WHO ARE picking Max Schmeling to defeat Jack Sharkey in next week's titular tangle give the German's youth as one of their reasons for doing so. They talk as if Sharkey were a graybeard. As a matter of fact the one-time gob is only 27, and history shows 27 or 28 to be the age at which most sport champions are at the peak of their form. So the difference of three years in the ages of the fighters doesn't appear to be weighty enough factor to overcome Sharkey's advantages in other directions and swing things the German's way. Youth is a mighty item in sport competition under certain conditions, but alone it doesn't look sufficient to accomplish the job of beating a fighter like Sharkey. There must be the right amount of experience to go along with it, and it is hard to figure that Schmeling has had enough of the latter all-important article to make him a winner next week. He could have learned a whole lot in the year that he has wasted.

Max Schmeling.

Sport Vignettes

A lot of us will miss Dr. C. B. (Razz) Quailey, who died yesterday following an illness of several weeks . . . . Razz was a good fellow who liked his fun and was a staunch friend . . . . He knew his football and was a loyal Pitt man . . . . He played one of the best games of his collegiate career against Notre Dame two decades ago . . . . He died a comparatively young man, being only 43 when the Great Referee signaled him to the sidelines . . . . Members of the New Kensington High School basketball team, W. P. I. A. L. champions, are serving as grooms at the International Greyhound Association meeting at the New Kensington track . . . . Both this meet and the one at Bridgeville continue to draw large nightly crowds and the game evidently has come here to stay . . . . Both meetings will be extended beyond the 30-day period originally set . . . . Peaches Gallagher was so busy picking his teeth yesterday, following his bout with Al Farone at Hickey Park, Millvale, the night before, that he didn't have time to pick the winner of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight when asked for an opinion . . . . It develops that One Round Hogan turned down that opening bout at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night because he never has boxed in that spot on any bill and, besides, he has a windup in the making with George Panka at Hickey Park one week from next Thursday night . . . . Jack Sharkey says he is going away with his wife and two kids for a long stay in the country after he beats Max Schmeling next Thursday night because he doesn't want to be around his beautiful home up in Boston when the folks who dislike him drive up to the place, and go snooping around for a peek at the "big Polack" who then will be world champion . . . . In that Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park today, Whichone do you like?—HARRY KECK.

HUNT TEAMS FEATURE HORSE SHOW CLOSING

NEALE HORSES WIN SADDLE AWARDS

Th. best day cf them all started at the Allegheny Country Club Horse Show today, with sporting classes holding their own on the program.

The most interesting event of the program was slated for mid-afternoon when the hunt teams in full livery go over the jumps, three abreast. Second only to the hunt event was to be the third annual John C. Oliver Memorial Challenge Cup, Corinthian Class, won last year by Windsor, Rolling Rock Farm hunter and by Westmoreland Lad, Ralph Lynch's big mount, in 1928. Westmoreland Lad is among the entries again this year, with Windsor withdrawn, quarantined by distemper in the stables.

HUNTERS END DAY

The hunter championship will end the day with first and second places in former classes competing for honors. The Ladies' Hunters Class looked good for a few exciting moments early in the afternoon.

Better riding featured the show yesterday with less spills than came to the riding fraternity Thursday. Beautiful performances brought Rainy Day and Mitre, entered by John C. Neale, through for the blue in the Ladies' Horses event, one of the best of the day.

Marking the return of the dog cart and harness pony to favor in horse districts, two horses of P. J. Lawler's, Clarinda and Olinda, brought from the Eastern part of the state, caused quite a stir in several harness classes, winning their quota of ribbons.

KAUFMANN ENTRY WINS

Horses in harness, driven tandem by professionals, put on a pretty enough show in the afternoon. Mrs. Oliver M. Kaufmann's team, Newton Victor and Knight Banneret, paced off with the ribbon. The Lawler stables' entries, Knight Bacheler and Danum Woodbine, took red and G. L. Leiphart took third place with no competition.

Thundercrash, Mrs. Simon T. Patterson's thoroughbred hunter, dashed through to blue ribbon and $60 purse in a pretty field. Lillian S. A. Douglas Ness' fine mare, stole honors among heavyweight hunters during the day, in a class of fine mounts. The summary:

Class 34, heavyweight hunters—Won by Lillian S. A. Douglas Ness; second, Pal Lyon; Henry W. Coulter, third, Baldgate; Henry W. Coulter, fourth, Michael, F. S. McLaughlin.

Class 34, horses in harness—Won by Calm Forest, P. J. Lawler; second, Mad Rose, Mrs. Oliver M. Kaufmann.

Class 36, horses in harness—Won by Calm Forest, P. J. Lawler; second, Mad Rose, Mrs. Oliver M. Kaufmann.

Class 36, horses in harness—Won by Calm Forest, P. J. Lawler; second, Mad Rose, Mrs. Oliver M. Kaufmann.

Class 11, touch and go-over-jumper—Won by Commodore, Harry Oliver Jr.; second, Baltimore, F. S. McLaughlin; third, Lillian S. A. Douglas Ness; fourth, Jerry, Henry W. Coulter; fifth, Michael, F. S. McLaughlin.

Ardeth Learns of Cecile And Ken Parting

CHAPTER LI.

Life flowed on, a thing of busy days when the small shop pulsed with customers doing their last-minute Christmas shopping. The days were a hectic tide, mounting as shopping time grew shorter.

Ardeth rose before it was light, hurrying to meet salesmen and look at stock which she was too busy to select at other times. Her bookkeeping and other accounts were attended to at night after the front door was locked.

No time for lunch. She sent Ah Ling out for a bottle of milk and a sandwich and ate it hastily in the rear room, ready to rush into the outer shop the moment she heard the door open.

No time to go to dinner with Tom, though he reported faithfully several times a week.

No times for visits to Mary.

"Look here, woman!" Mary protested. "I'll stand for this neglect if you'll promise to come to Christmas dinner."

She had just come in from a shopping trip. Now she flung her bundles down on the couch and sank exhausted after them. She loosened her furs and pulled off her hat with a sigh of relief. "Thank the Lord Christmas is only four days off. I wouldn't last five. And I'm sure the Chickadee won't. She's out of her head with excitement already. Remember, Ardeth, Christmas eve and Christmas dinner!"

"Christmas day, Mary, but not Christmas eve. As soon as that front is locked I'm going to tumble into bed and sleep until it's time to dress for dinner the next day."

"Uh.....I've invited Tom, too."

Ardeth grinned. "Hope dies hard, doesn't it?"

Refuses Invitation

Christmas Eve found Ardeth physically exhausted. She refused Tom's telephone invitation for a quiet little dinner. It was too much trouble tonight even to talk to Tom.

Instead she went to a small restaurant near the shop, only to find that she was too tired to eat the meal she had ordered even when it was placed on the table before her. She came back to the shop and fell into a deep dreamless slumber, which her tired body drank up like water.

But the usual waking hour found her with wide eyes, watching the first thin light struggle through the painted window. Listening to the ringing loneliness of the shop.

A wet Christmas. The rain was pelting against the window when she looked out. The streets glimmered like wet black satin.

Ardeth had looked forward to this quiet peace, but now she found smothering loneliness falling upon her. She tidied up the shop, she did the hundred and one odd jobs she had been too busy to attend to lately. She cleaned the rear room, washed out collar and cuff sets, frowned anxiously as she examined her small supply of silk stockings for runners.

Envies Ah Ling

She made elaborate tissued and ribboned packages of Mary's and the Chickadee's presents. She played for a while with Tom's present, an expensive little radio set in an exquisite Oriental cabinet.

And all the time the lonely ache was increasing in her heart. She found herself envying Ah Ling—Ah Ling, who at that very moment was impartially celebrating an American Christmas in her Chinese home.

Ardeth found herself wishing wistfully that she had been able to send gifts to Fan and Paul. But she did not know where they were living now and she did not want to ring up Neil and ask. In some odd way the mere fact of remembering her cousins would have helped. Something about having one's own people at this time of year . . . Just to know you belonged to someone . . . If she only had Ken . . .

It was as though her thought summoned him. . . . A rattle at the front door and there was a florist boy with a large square box. Even before she lifted the cover, Ardeth knew it came from Ken.

Large double white violets. A fragrant mass, crisp and sweet and somehow smelling of the brown wet earth.

When Tom came to drive her out to Mary's she was waiting for him with her wraps on, and there was a bunch of white violets pinned to her coat collar. Tom's watchful eyes saw that she had been crying. It was a quiet drive out to Mary's.

Impossible to be sad at Mary's house, a cheerful glow of candlelight and holly. With Fred, tall and grinning behind his new pipe. With the Chickadee ecstatically embracing everyone's knees and incoherent with delight.

"If the child hasn't become an idiot through sheer excitement I'll be thankful!" Mary explained as she carried Ardeth away to the bedroom to lay off her wraps. "She was too little to get the idea of Christmas last year, but I think it will take her until Easter to recover—"

So Mary chattered and all the time her eyes were regarding Ardeth with a queer uncertain look as the girl stood before the mirror.

Ardeth was altogether lovely today in a maroon crepe which flung her tender throat and face into warm relief and made a flame of her tawny hair. A long string of carved ivory beads and the white violets added the necessary contrast.

Hears News of Ken

Mary spoke, the words having an odd reluctance, as though they were dragged from her against her will.

"Ardeth . . . did you know that Ken and Cecile have separated?"

Eyes suddenly large and dark in a white face Ardeth turned to face her. "Why—why—no. Are you sure?"

"Cecile's mother told Mrs. Hawkins. They're thicker than thieves, you know. Ever since that spy thing came out Cecile's been a demon."

Ardeth's hand had crept to her throat, frantically twisting ivory beads.

"It was just a couple of days ago," Mary went on. Then, bitterly, "Much good it will do! Not for Ken nor you—oh, my dear child, don't look so!"

With a soft rush she rose, took the girl in her arms. "I told you, Ardeth, so you wouldn't hear it from someone else and be startled. But it means nothing, darling. She won't give him up legally. She's too selfish, too spiteful. She has him in a cul-de-sac, Ardeth."

Mary felt the slender body trembling. Ardeth's voice came hoarsely. "Where—where is Ken now?"

Ardeth Trembles

"I don't know. At a hotel I suppose. From what Mrs. Parker told Phil's mother, the break is final." Mary lifted her head sharply as new voices filtered into the bedroom. "The Ames have come! I must go. Pull yourself together, Ardeth child and come out and join us."

When she was gone, Ardeth moved to the window.

Rain driving into a grey world. Where was Ken on this rainy Christmas? He would not be with friends—she knew his sensitive nature too well for that. Alone and unhappy on Christmas . . . A hotel room . . . dinner alone . . .

The girl had drooped against the window frame, unshed tears rising in her throat. Grey rain lashing outside, and in her heart a little hopeless prayer.

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

No matter how well the teeth are brushed, it is possible for foreign substances to adhere between the teeth or to cling under the gums. For that reason, it is necessary to use dental floss once a day which must be passed between the teeth carefully, so as not to bruise the gums. Any abrasion subjects the gums to an invasion of bacteria. After brushing the teeth, the mouth should be rinsed, water swished between the teeth.

It is a good idea to keep in mind that muscles are like rubber bands: stretch them too far, keep them that way, and they won't snap back. This is true of muscles that extend from the back of the neck down to the shoulders and upper arms. They are stretched when the head is carried low and forward. The result is humpy shoulders, rounded and unlovely. Pulling in the chin ruins the lines of throat and makes collar bones loom up like shelves. Posture is important. Yet nobody thinks about it.

Correct posture greatest vitality. Slumping is an attitude of despair. There's many a little slump who'd like to look like a queen, but she can't because she hasn't a royal carriage. How one feels depends to a considerable extent upon how one walks, stands and sits. For the simple reason that correct posture affects the inner organs, keeps them where they belong, allows them to function better. With chest high, tummy held in and hips back, the nervous system is more likely to be strong and sound than when the backbone is limp and the step lagging.

"Why They Go to Sea"

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY

MON AND POP and little Billie, Jim and Jean, Harry and Hallie, Garry and Gloriette, Sid and Siseretta, Momma and little Isador go to sea when the dog days are on. Mommas and poppas and all the little kids, Cupid and Psyche and all the sweethearts and sweeties, Mammon and all the swankies—all go to sea. Some go in wash prints, some in the best summer blouse, some in Paris "ohn-sommes."

Some swimmin' panties three inches long, and have dimples in their knees and suck lollipops. Some do not swim at all, but strike poses and therefore enjoy the billows very much indeed.

To be seen; to see. To play for health; to fish for various things in and out of water; to sun-soak. To disport in the marvelous velvet sea. To find peace. And—pour l'amour!

And the old sea pounds away in silver and bluing water, in lace and azure silk, in froth and sapphire, washing about the legs of pretty girls and babies alike with water that has lapped a foreign shore, and says: "Come one, come all!" Come down to the sea, in big ships or with toys. I can give you strange or simple pleasures, as you like."

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Katherine Prepares to Tell Madge of Noel's Fear

It was not until after dinner that I received even a partial answer to my mental query as to what had happened between Noel and Mary. Until that time I had no chance to speak to Katherine alone. By the time she had conquered Noel's fatigue with a sedative and he was sound asleep, she was acclaimed rapturously by Junior, who had been waiting patiently outside Noel's door for a chance to see his beloved Aunt Katherine, while I had my hands full with Mother Graham, who, fortunately, had been asleep when the travelers arrived. She was very much awake, however, as she advanced upon me where I sat in an armchair outside Mary's door. I had given my word to the girl that no one but myself would come into her room, and I saw no other way to keep my word where her grandmother was in question save to guard her room as a sentinel might.

"Why hasn't Mary been in to see me?" my mother-in-law demanded truculently.

"Hush!" I put up my hand. "Don't wake her!"

"What's all this?" She raised her voice instead of lowering it. "Why shouldn't I wake her? She's my granddaughter, isn't she," stressing the possessive pronoun, "and I haven't seen her for weeks. Besides, she's coming down to dinner, isn't she? It's bad enough to have dinner put off all this time, though, of course, it couldn't be any other way," she amended quickly, "without having Mary keeping it waiting. Of course, nobody expects Noel down—Mrs. Bickett will take his meal to his room, but Mary—she isn't sick, is she?"

"No, mother," I said hurriedly, "she isn't sick, but I'm afraid she will be if she doesn't have some sleep. She's terribly tired, Katherine says, from her vigil over Noel—Katherine says she doesn't know what she would have done without her—but now that Noel is safely out here Mary has given up for the first time. I've put her to bed and promised that no one should call her until she wakes herself. Katie will keep some dinner hot for her if she wakes within the next few hours. But if she should sleep straight through until morning Katherine says it would be the best thing for her."

"She's perfectly right. Sleep is the best medicine. Have you told everybody to keep away from her room?"

I nodded, salving my conscience with the reminder that no one else save Mother Graham needed the warning.

"Is she covered up well?"

"Yes, she has plenty of covers," I answered, trusting that Mary had used them all.

"One of us would better creep in a little later and see whether she has thrown them off," my mother-in-law proposed next, to my consternation, but a second later I was immensely relieved to hear her add:

"You'd better do it, because my sight isn't so good and I might stumble over something."

"I'll attend to it," I assured her fervently as I took her down to dinner, where we found my father and Katherine, with Junior, waiting for us.

"Now," said Katherine two hours later, when Junior was sound asleep and my father, in answer to a hurried surreptitious plea from me, had engaged my mother-in-law in an interminable game of cribbage, "I suppose you're wild to get the low-down on this, and I don't blame you. It's had Lillian and me on the high branch for the last two days with no ladder handy. Perhaps you can make something out of it."

We were seated in her own room with Junior asleep in the next one. The door into the hall was open to enable her to watch Noel's door, and I, seated opposite her, was in a position which commanded Mary's. Katie and Jim had gone to their own quarters for the night, so if we kept our voices reasonably low we were sure of not being overheard. But I almost whispered my response, lifting my hand protestingly as I did so.

"Yes, that's likely," I gibed. "When you and Lillian have failed."

"But you can have a fresh viewpoint," she argued. "We've been too near the scene of action. At any rate, 'can' the coyness and let me tell you what's happened."

"I won't open my mouth again until you give me permission," I said.

"See that you don't," she retorted with a grin, and then slumped back comfortably into her chair, her arms clasped behind her head.

"Lillian and I are to blame, really," she began. "We ought to have known enough to censor the post. Noel was getting along beautifully until the letters came."

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Sweet and Low-Down

All the modern girl asks of a man is that he acknowledge her as his economic equal—and then marry her and pay all her bills for the rest of her life.

When a man does anything of which his wife might disapprove, he trembles at the thought of what she may SAY. Yet nothing paralyzes him like her dead silence.

No man realizes what a fettered soul he has become, until his wife goes away for the summer and leaves him to his own de-VICES.

A man is never old until spring means nothing to him but a change of overcoats, a cold in the head, the horrors of housecleaning and a bottle of iron-and-quinine tonic.

The Lord put VANITY into the male of the species so that the female of the species might conquer, soften and civilize him.

There is nothing quite so enviable as man's unquenchable optimism—his sweet, childlike faith that, no matter how long he may keep a woman waiting on the doorstep of his heart, she will always be right there

A man's love isn't worth a last year's almanac, unless it's ALL yours! Love is like a tooth or your top hair. Either you've got it and it's priceless—or you haven't got it and it isn't worth a bad penny.

Grandmother clung to his arm; Mother hung on to his coat lapel; Daughter grapples him around the neck—but they all did their best to keep him from getting AWAY! All roads lead to matrimony when a woman drives.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Rule for the Dinner Guest

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Your column has helped me no little this winter, and I want you to know how much I appreciate this help. However, I have not asked for personal help before, but feel sure that I am asking the right person when I ask you.

When I am invited out to dinner, I am not always sure which piece of silver should be used first? Will you please tell me if the silver is always laid so that one uses the piece farthest from one's place first, and so on until all are used? If so, does the same rule hold good when light refreshments only are served? F. F. R.

Thank you!

Yes, the silver pieces should be placed, when the table is set, in a strictly definite order—so that the guest may begin with the piece farthest from the plate and proceed toward the plate. And the same rule should be kept in mind when the silver pieces are placed for light refreshments.

Eating Asparagus

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Will you kindly tell me the proper way to eat asparagus?

2. Is it proper for a lady, when shaking hands with a glove on, to say, "Pardon my glove?" A. B.

1. Asparagus should be eaten with a fork, and should not be taken—drippingly—in the fingers. It is, for obvious reasons—often too obvious—not a finger food.

2. No. It is not required that a woman remove her gloves before she shakes hands, and therefore she does not have to mention the fact that she is not removing her gloves.

When the Knife Is Not in Use

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please let me know if a knife should be crossed on the plate when having dinner, or half on the plate and the other half on the table? NAPOLEON.

Neither is correct. When you are not using your knife, you should place it across the rim, as far as possible from the center with still no possibility of its falling from the plate. That is, so the center of the handle should touch the lower rim, and about the center of the blade touching the upper rim.

There are five or six details of table manners that stamp us at once as not knowing the rudiments of good manners at table. "Resting" the handle of the knife on the table cloth is one of these. After we have begun a course the handle of the knife should not again during that course be allowed to touch the cloth.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Hot Weather and Baby's Health

Summer is usually a trying time for the baby. Hot weather is hard enough for the grown-ups, but for the frail baby it is hard indeed.

The dear mothers have their hands full keeping themselves well and looking after the little ones. They must not forget how essential it is that they should have good health, poise and plenty of rest. They must keep fit.

Every mother should take the very best care of herself. If possible she should nurse her child during the summer months. If the mother loses her appetite and gets too little sleep, her child is liable to grow restless and irritable. Before long the baby eats less, and then come along indigestion, diarrhea and vomiting.

If for any reason the mother cannot nurse her baby, and cow's milk must be substituted, new problems appear. The first relates to getting good milk. She must be sure that the milk comes from a well-known and approved source.

The feeding should be prepared with the greatest of care. The milk should be kept at all times at a low temperature. By this I mean that it should be submitted to a refrigerating temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit or less. This is vital so that the milk bacteria shall be kept at the lowest possible number. It is imperative that the milk be protected in this way if your baby is to be kept well.

The baby needs regular hours for feeding, bathing and sleeping. Just as soon as the warm days come the baby can sleep longer out-of-doors.

Have a time in the day when the baby may lie, free of clothes, in the sunshine, in order that he may kick and exercise his little limbs. He needs this exercise just as much as does the older child or the adult.

The baby needs the effects of sunshine on the skin. Exposure to sunshine is one of the very best ways to keep the skin in good condition. But this must not be overdone. The tiny baby's skin is very sensitive. A short period of time is enough to expose the delicate skin to the elements.

Keep the skin clean by regular bathing. The more active the baby's skin is the less strain will be thrown on the kidneys. During the hot weather free perspiring helps to eliminate the wastes of the body. By keeping the baby's skin clean and in good working order you are adding to his well-being.

Horoscopes

Sunday, June 8

Sunday's horoscope holds augury of very lively social, domestic or affectional activities. Pleasant friendships may also prove profitable, especially in contracts with elderly persons or societies. There may also be gain from real estate investments.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to stress the social, domestic or affectional affairs during the year, although there may be gain through friendly interests and elders. Real estate should also prove profitable.

A child born on this day should be steady, industrious and persevering, and at the same time have strong social leanings, making many substantial friends.

Monday, June 9

Monday's astrological map holds several adverse testimonies. There is sign of sudden change, with hostile forces affecting new undertakings. Also there is a hint of scandal or misunderstandings, although there may be opportunity for new contracts or agreements.

Those whose birthday it is may find a year of adversity in new ventures. Also there is prospect of an unforseen change, and possibly slander or misrepresentation. However, there is promise of new and favorable contracts or agreements.

A child born on this day may be clever and versatile, but it may be disposed to gain its ends by strategy rather than principle. It should be given rigorous training and discipline in the virtues of probity and veracity.

Household Hints

The traces of Winter soot may be removed by rubbing the woodwork with a soft cotton cloth which has been wrung out of paraffin or ammonia.

It is sheer folly not to take every precaution to prolong the life of that most fragile of feminine garments—the silk stocking. Strapped slippers are being worn extensively this Spring, and the finding of a worn place in the stocking just beneath the button or buckle is not an unusual experience. Sticking a piece of adhesive tape on the under side of the strap to cover the fasteners reduces the effect of constant rubbing against the hose.

Unless an oiled mop is properly cleaned it is apt to scatter more dirt than it takes up. Instead of casually shaking it after using, brush with a whisk broom before placing it back in the broom closet. Then it is ready to be used again and, incidentally, keeps dust from the closet. Try this with the next new mop you purchase and see if it doesn't give you better service.

CLAREMORE, Okla., June 7.

Breakfast in Beverly and dinner in Claremore. These are the two cities we been needing to have joined by a regular passenger line. The town is so crowded here we have to have our airport in the edge of Tulsa, and that Tulsa and Claremore airport broke a world's record in May. They hauled 10,212 passengers. That's 10,000, not hundreds. Croyden, England, was second, with 4,690. They expect 15,000 a month during the summer from here. Cheap rates and safe service is what's doing it.

Husband and Wife Create Tense Film Drama Of Prison Life

By DONALD HENDERSON CLARKE

HOLLYWOOD, June 7.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has made a talking picture with a prison background, which is called "The Big House." This is not a propaganda film, but its fast-paced, tense drama is built on facts which those working for penology reform have been trying to tell the public for many years.

In writing the screen story, "The Big House," Frances Marion didn't take extreme cases of brutality in prison punishment, but the comparatively mild ones she selected should be sufficient to give spectators something to shudder about, and also to ponder over.

Miss Marion and her husband, George Hill, who directed the film, were interested primarily in telling a dramatic story, vividly, grippingly and intensely. They got the result they sought—a film drama of love and plotting and suffering within prison walls that will keep audiences everywhere on the edge of their seats.

CAUSE MENTAL STIR

But, because of the faithfulness to reality with which the job was done, they produced a work that also will stir people mentally.

Penologists may regret, perhaps, that "The Big House" does not contain obvious propaganda—that it isn't a crusade film, made for obviously educational purposes. They may figure that the film is so thrilling that the spectators will forget that Lewis Stone, as the warden, says about the crime of overcrowding prisons, and the resultant crime of having to put men capable of coming out good citizens, in the same cell with men who never by any stretch of the imagination ever could be anything but hardened enemies of society.

'TIS UNFORGETTABLE—

But, chances are, that no one who sees "The Big House" ever will forget the hopeless prison atmosphere, the horrors of the dungeon, and the tragic inability of society even to give its erring members a square deal.

Leila Hyams

Those who believe in capital punishment and in severe sentences, probably would be the last to prescribe food unfit to eat, and close association with professional outlaws for the one-time offender.

This picture is entertainment because it hasn't a dull moment. It is unusual entertainment in that it contains far more than the average number of superlatively exciting moments, crammed into the authentic prison atmosphere of suspense. No one can tell what is going to happen next in a prison. And in this picture, all that one knows is that something nerve-racking is going to happen next.

EFFICIENT CAST

Hill was given a cast, which even in a day when most casts are described by motion picture makers as "all star," might be admitted by any observer to be rather more than fair-to-middling.

Chester Morris, as Morgan; Wallace Beery, as Butch; and Robert Montgomery, as Kent, are the three convicts about whom the story chiefly revolves. Lewis Stone is the warden; and Leila Hyams plays the role of Anne, Kent's sister, who becomes the sweetheart of Morgan.

Comedian

Miss Dove portrays a clever and sophisticated woman, whose escapades causes wives to leave their husbands and husbands to leave their wives.

Clive Brook, Sidney Blackmer and Leila Hyams have prominent roles.

The bill also includes short screen entertainment and an organlogue.

WAR FILM REMAINS FOR ANOTHER WEEK

"All Quiet on the Western Front" will open its second week on the screen in the Pitt Monday.

George Sidney and Charlie Murray come to the Harris screen today in "Around the Corner." Victor Graff and Ralph Harrison's RKOlians are on the stage.

"The Cuckoos," film musical comedy, will continue in the Sheridan Square next week. Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey are featured.

By GEORGE SEIBEL

DANCING and drinking in a sailor dive of Marseilles, Dolores Del Rio is passionate but pure in "The Bad One," screen romance at the Penn Theater this week. Her face is clean and her heart is white, though she will promise to marry anybody to get rid of him. And of course, when an American sailor comes along, impersonated by Edmund Lowe, she loves him with all her Spanish heart.

George Seibel

But one of those other men she has promised to marry comes back on her wedding day, and Edmund Lowe catches him kissing her, and delivers a Yankee uppercut that floors the extra bridegroom. He promptly dies and the only love of Dolores is sent to the Chateau d'If for 10 years, where Edmund Dantes spent 20 before he became Count of Monte Cristo.

WONDERS NEVER CEASE

Next Dolores promises to marry one of the prison guards, so she may be near her sailor boy. This bright plan coincides with an escape attempted by the prisoners, which is frustrated by the Yankee blowing up a bridge with dynamite while the chief warden is playing a machine gun across the bridge. But it takes more than dynamite and machine guns to kill a moving picture hero when Dolores del Rio loves him.

At the last fadeout they are departing for Brookleen.

Dolores and Edmund do very well—while Henry Kolker, George Fawcett and Ullrich Haupt also have excellent scenes.

WESLEY DROPS IN

Benny Davis, composer and producer of a junior revue, had a surprise for the audience when Wesley Eddy dropped in to say "howdy," and had to work although he's on his vacation.

By the way, this man Davis has some of the speediest steppers you have ever seen. They are young people who dance like demons and three crooners who sing like angels—well, how do angels sing anyway? It's a fine stage show—long without seeming long, and that's a real test.

Another test came when the audience seemed to know every one of Benny Davis' compositions. No wonder they were able to sing "Sweet Adeline" in harmony for Oscar at the organ, and appreciated Pesetzki's orchestra rendering "The Student Prince."

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Error

NOT CARING much, I paced a dingy street
And turning right I found myself to be
At water's edge—I heard the plaintive bleat
Of tugs and felt the ancient witchery
That ships at night possess—I watched their light
Throw eerie shadows on the water's breast,
And sharply I remembered one dead night
When you and I had watched them on their quest—
I know it had been fever hot all day,
But dusk brought breezes fresh and comforting;
We watched a lighted ferry ply its way
And claimed it was our dream ship, which would bring
A precious cargo to a ghostly pier—
How very wrong we were that night, my dear!

—Brooke Edison.

A Form of Criticism

Bert Lahr, the "Flying High" star, heard a stew in a stay-up-late asylum complain about the real reason why prohibition is a failure.

"The trouble," he growled between hiccoughs, "is that there isn't an honest Federal agent in America!"

"Oh, yes, there is," interrupted a clown. "He's up in the Museum of Natural History!"

"Yeah?" flipped the stew. "Then he must be stuffed with bribes!"

Incidentally

Speaking of dishonest Federal agents, one local night club owner will tell you that he regrets the night that he permitted a pal to straighten matters out with an agent who had "made a buy."

"I could have bought him off for $500 at tops," said the night clubber, "but a mutual friend fixed things. And am I sorry? A few weeks later the agent lost his badge and job, and he has cost me over $5,000 since then."

"How come?" we queried.

"Well, he gave me a break," was the reply, "so how can I complain when he comes in my place every night with a party of six or eight and orders the best steaks and wines?"

The Other Side of It

The recent controversy here over the unnamed but much-medaled hero has aroused numerous readers, who vigorously object to the anonymous letter writer who belittled the soldier in question. We quote one letter:

"Considering that the man has been decorated by every warring nation and that America distinguished him with the Congressional Medal of Honor and other awards, he might have been spared the humiliation. Surely, we all know the lad he meant. And I assure you that Father Duffy and Col. Donovan, of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, do not subscribe to your contributor's sentiments."

The anonymous belittler probably was his valet.

Why?

A well-known Broadway rounder who had been separated from his wife and children for a few years found diversion in the Tungsten Territory, spending heavy coin on the local sirens. After living and loving in the blazing manner with beauties whose names have been front-paged frequently, he recently reconciled with his wife.

The same day—he went out for a newspaper and was killed by a truck.

Hour After Renouncing Love

I have plunged the load from my back
And my shoulders are freed of their pain—
Yet, oh, how they ache for the weight
And the bruise of a burden again.

—Clara Patsuris.

A Honey

You may depend upon the desperate - for - material - and-recognition "comedians" to cash in on the other lad's glory and brains. Bugs Baer, frinstance, unfolded a swifty at a sports dinner, and a few hours later five comedians repeated it in as many night clubs as their own.

The Baer crack was:

"I'm all in, fatigued, tired out. I've been bicycling from town to town voting Wet in the Literary Digest Poll!"

Speaking of Critics

Life, the mag which recently underwent a shakeup, seeks an able dramatic critics, Mr. Ralph Barton having resigned last week to join the New Yorker staff. Not as critic, however, Robert C. Benchley having that post. Mr. Barton decided that reviewing and drawing pictures was too strenuous in the torrid time of the year.

We recommend Miss Baird Leonard, of Life's own staff, to Life's new editor. She should prove a shrewd show commentator, as she is clever and intelligent and anyway, all along, she has been unbiased, unafraid and underpaid.

The Morning Mail

"You were wrong, as usual, in saying I have a female valet. You said it once in writing and once by air. Now, I am afraid it will be believed if I don't check you before you say it a third time, for its repetition might affect my reputation for morality. Probably your error arose through the fact that my wife has a maid—Mae—who, to many, is the most popular member of our household. My own needs are supplied by a male valet, who is pretty good. If I should ever let him go you can have the job. Faithfully, Herbert Bayard Swope."

BREAK GROUND FOR BUHL HALL

Ground was broken for the Louise C. Buhl Hall of Science at the Pennsylvania College for Women last night. Charles F. Lewis, director of the Buhl Foundation, removed the first shovel of earth. Funds for the building were donated by the foundation, in compliance with the wishes of both Mr. and Mrs. Buhl.

Lewis paid tribute to the donors and to Dr. Cora Helen Coolidge, president of the college. At an alumnae meeting it was announced alumnae members had gathered $200,000 during the last year to be used for a building as a memorial to Dr. Coolidge.

Dr. Coolidge, speaking at the meeting, said the building fund had reached $700,000, which provides for units already constructed, the Woodland Hall dormitory, the heating plan, the science hall and a library, which is to be erected as a memorial to James Laughlin, first chairman of the board.

GIRL CHAMPIONS KEEP DUKE CUP

The second annual co-ed field day at Duquesne University, held on the campus yesterday afternoon and evening, was won by the school of education.

The Dr. George Caslin intramural sports cup was presented to the school of education sextet, which retained the trophy, having won it last year.

A gold medal was awarded Miss Margaret Koessler, who won first place in individual scoring with 13 points. Miss Cecelia Grimes was second with nine. Third place was a three-way tie between the Misses M. C. Fritsch, Margie Kazan and Jean Joyce with eight each.

Another feature of the program was presentation of letters to eight members of the varsity basketball team by the Woman's Athletic Association.

POSTAL AUTHORITIES FOOL HEROINE IN WARNER

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH.

"Flirting Widow," a talking comedy romance, opened yesterday in the Warner. Dorothy Mackaill does the heroine act. She is aided and abetted in her portrayal by a boyish bob and, in early sequences, by mannish clothes. Later she is exhibited in more feminine garb.

The film story has to do with a daughter of an aristocratic British family, who "fakes" an engagement with what she believes to be a fictitious person. She calls him Col. John Smith. She says he's with the British forces in Mesopotamia. She writes him a love letter. Then she "kills" him off, inserting a death notice of his demise in the London Times, and becomes a "flirting widow."

But the efficiency of the British postal authorities isn't reckoned with. They find a Col. John Smith for the letter. He turns up to confront the heroine, much to her surprise.

And so on to the final fadeout, with all of the clouds wearing silver linings.

The plot of the picture is very familiar. We get the impression that we witnessed the same thing as a silent production.

Claude Gillingwater is present with a rasping voice and a weakness for bridge. Basil Rathbone is there also, playing the hero role.

HIGH IN AIR, OUR HERO "FALLS" FOR GIRL IN ALDINE

By MILDRED FILLMORE.

Victor McLaglen goes clambering about a spider-web of steel on the Aldine screen. He's a structural ironworker now. And does he fall? He does. But his tumble has nothing to do with the law of gravity. He "falls" for a "dame."

It all happens in "On the Level," a picture which, as entertainment, is just so and so.

The hardboiled Mr. McLaglen, as a champion riveter or some such, gets a look at a girl through an office building window and then goes for her in a great big way. And she "kids" him along, taking him in in a great big way to the tune of $50,000, which is the hard-earned money of his fellow workmen. You see, this girl is more than a gold-digger. She's a real estate racketeer, she is.

However, everything turns out like a picnic of bluebirds. Hero McLaglen gives three confidence men an awful beating, restores the money to its rightful owners and ends up with another girl.

The cast also has William Harrigan, Lilyan Tashman and Arthur Stone in prominence.

Loosened Her Tooth, Wife Asks Divorce

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: What is your opinion of the "freedom of expression controversy at the University of Pittsburgh which yesterday resulted in the resignation of two instructors?

SAMUEL G. WAGNER, senior law student, University of Pittsburgh: Institutions of higher learning should sponsor freedom of expression and encourage it rather than curb it to any extent. A school should not be dedicated to any set standard of thought but should foster creative thinking whether or not it runs amuck with conservative ideas.

S. G. Wagner

MISS HAZEL ROTH, stenographer: Any college or university must have its rules and regulations for instructors as well as students. If there were no restrictions placed on the type of discussion permitted many radical ideas which can harm youthful minds would become widespread.

Miss Roth

JOHN M. RICE, president, Pittsburgh Motor Club: I believe uncontrolled freedom of expression by instructors in our institutions of higher learning is undesirable because if such freedom is permitted parents can't exercise any control over the type of education they wish their children to get.

John M. Rice

MISS GRACE BROWNING, insurance secretary: An urban university such as Pitt must exercise great care in the freedom of expression it permits because of the diversity of types of students included in its registration. At Pitt there are students coming from almost every type of home with great variation in economic and social ideas.

Miss Browning

C. H. ROTH, secretary, Pittsburgh Motor Club: I favor the position of the University of Pittsburgh in using care in the type of instructors they use in the institution. Too many of the students have radical ideas which are fostered by instructors who have no scruples about the kind of learning they give out.

C. H. Roth.

MRS. DOROTHEA M. WAGNER, graduating law student, University of Pittsburgh: While I do not always agree with the doctrines of the so-called liberals, yet I feel that they should have as much right to advance their theories as any other group. Progress has always been the by-product of every liberal movement.

Mrs. Wagner

Mere Man Knows Nothing Of Style, Girl Writes Marion Davies

Nothing!

The women create fashions and the men love them just the same.

So says Alice Muir Crump of Hollywood in her letter submitted in the Marion Davies fashion contest at the Pantages Theater, Hollywood, where Miss Davies latest picture, "The Florodora Girl," is running. Miss Crump declared:

"Men have always been the victims of feminine foibles. Not the instigators.

"When a man aspires to great things, you will always find a woman in his life, as the urge—incentive. I believe the same thing holds good today, as 50 years ago.

"Men 'fell for' the girl and her apparel was only incidental.

"Ask any man what the lady he has just left was wearing, and he invariably will tell you 'I can't just remember off-hand, but she looked very well,' or something to that effect.

"It's the women who vary the fashions."

SKEPTIC SPEAKS

Other letters follow:

Do I remember the styles of 1890? Yes. Will they come back? Sure. So will the clipper ship the horse and buggy and the horse car. They will also fight the next war with bow and arrows. I would suggest for the women to shear out a couple of reefs and let their dresses reach somewhere near their shoe tops. That would stop all the argument.

DUKE STAIRLEY.

19 Verlada avenue, Point Richmond, Cal.

SLAVES OF FASHION

If you and all the charming little ladies of Hollywood and elsewhere had lived in the 90's you and they would have defended the styles of that day just as you defend the styles of today.

It is never a question of what should be worn or what should not be worn—what is decent or what is not decent—what is harmful or what is not harmful—it is simply a question of what has been set by decree of the dictators of fashion to be worn regardless of appearance, morality or decency.

1836 Twenty-eighth avenue, Oakland, Cal.

NOT CIVILIZED YET

This battle of the dresses has a deeper meaning than appears on the surface.

With all the old-fashioned trappings causing pressure on her different nerve centers, the American woman will once more be helpless physically—and mentally inferior to man. She will have no vitality left to compete with man in any trade or profession.

Primitive? Of course. Jealousy, selfishness and fear are primitive. We are a long way from being civilized yet.

2314 East Ward st., Seattle, Wash.

WOMEN TOO SELF-RELIANT

Men are disgusted with the styles of this period and the women who wear them. Women are too self-reliant to please a real he-man. When they go back to the styles of the "90's" there will be fewer divorces and broken homes.

L. M. GARDNER.

Smithfield, Ill.

GIRL LOSES CHANCE

Men are not sighing for the alluring styles of the gay 90's. I had been going around with a new girl. One night I put perfume on my mustache and intended to ask that girl to be my wife.

I asked her a few questions and soon discovered that her "style" would not do for me. I left her as quickly as possible and have always thought that the girl beat herself out of a good husband.

ALBERT STAFFORD.

6214 Throop st., Chicago, Ill.

BEES ADAM AND EVE ERA

We will never go back to the old styles unless young people get more sense into their heads than they have now. After a while it will be like Adam and Eve in the garden.

I suppose the next thing girls will dress like men!

G. W. BRUMMER.

222 S. East Blvd., Gibson City, Ill.

SIGHS FOR OLD DAYS

Houp la!

That means in good sound English that I am for the fashions of the "gay nineties" tooth and toenail. The day of woman's crowning glory, billowy ruffle-bedecked skirts, long trains, perky little poke bonnets, and shameless curves was—the day.

Give me the day when women talked, acted, dressed like ladies with all the dainty feminine subtlety she could command, and the men—God bless them—were glad of it.

MARGARET DOHELBOWER.

802 Romig St., Lafayette, Ind.

SOURCE OF HUMOR

They say humor was not invented by women. But clothes were her invention! Woman's apparel has been the subject of most of the jokes of this world. The things with which woman had adorned herself have saved the masculine humorist from going to the poor house—or having to work for a living!

You have won your fight, girls! Keep your freedom! Do not allow a set of men to dictate what you shall wear or how you shall wear it.

I think it is up to the wise folks to instruct the younger generations about the physical harm, the pronounced disadvantage, which will result from the adoption of "ye olden styles."

J. A. HOTCHKISS.

Room 21, City Hall, Alliance, O.

Can You Write On Style?

Do you remember the famous Floradora Sextette?

Are you familiar with the styles of the gay nineties?

Do you think those styles are coming back?

Put your ideas in a letter and send it to Miss Marion Davies, the New Pantages Theater, Hollywood.

$1,000 in prizes will be awarded for the best letters.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a woman.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a man.

Real Estate

Shady Side Academy has purchased from the Peoples Pittsburgh Trust Company, trustee for the McClintock estate, a large residence on a lot, 193x288 feet, fronting on Ellsworth and Amberson avenues and Bayard street, Shadyside, for $70,000. The lot adjoins the present Shady Side Academy property and gives the institution an entire city block.

The Walgreen Drug Company has obtained under lease from J. E. McCullough and Roy E. Whitfield a store and basement at the southeast corner of Wood street and Stoner alley, Wilkinsburg. The lease is for a number of years. Alterations are being made and possession will be given July 1. The E. E. Wertheimer Company closed the deal.

A part of the old Painter Mill site along along the south side of West Carson street near Main street has been sold by the Carnegie Steel Company to George A. Tranter for $48,000. The parcel includes 21,628 square feet.

A large residence in Nevin avenue, Beechview, lot 70x125 feet, has been sold by the Alexander McDonald heirs to Myers Higginbotham.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has conveyed to the Borough of Sewickley two tracts in Bank street and the right to use the old line of the railroad through the borough for boulevard purposes.

A brick duplex and garage at 1456-58 North Euclid avenue has been sold by William Goldberger to Charles Levinson. The lot is 62x85 feet.

A brick and shingle dwelling at 1914 Chislett street, Tenth Ward, has been sold by Thomas S. Moore to Harold S. Gabler. The lot is 50x114 feet.

The school district of Pittsburgh has purchased from Antonio Romito a tract of 1.87 acres along Library road, Overbrook, for $14,250.

A property at the east corner of Hatfield and Forty-fifth streets, Ninth Ward, lot 46x100 feet, has been sold by Julia Mihelich to George Delac for $15,500.

In Ross Township, B. A. Griffin sold to Howard W. Burns 39x166 feet with a six-room brick and shingle house at 745 Ravenswood avenue, East Bellevue.

Felix Caste has asked for a permit to build two brick houses and garages at Ridgeton avenue and Highview street, Overbrook, to cost $12,000.

MOTHER GIVES SLAYING CLUE

NEW YORK, June 7.—(INS.)—Police today sought two men in connection with the killing of Miss Alma Urbas, whose garrotted body was found in the Harlem River, two weeks ago, following questioning of her mother, Mrs. Mary Urbas, of Cleveland, at police headquarters.

Mrs. Urbas was brought here by detectives who hoped she could help solve the slaying.

Finding of the girl's body, throat bound with wire and feet weighted with railroad brake shoes caused a reopening of the mystery murder case of Eugene Moran, racketeer, who was slain and cremated on the Newark city dumps some time ago.

The girl had been living with Moran, and it was believed she knew who killed him. Fear that she would expose them is believed to have prompted the murderers to kill her.

KISKI TRIBUTE TO WILSON

Completion of plans for the erection of a memorial in honor of Dr. Andrew W. Wilson, Jr., founder and president of Kiskaminetas Springs School at Saltsburg, Pa., were announced here today by Artemas C. Leslie, Pittsburgh attorney, a graduate of Kiski and chairman of the alumni board of trustees. Other Pittsburgh members of the board are Robert Monroe, S. Jarvis Adams, Joseph H. Caughey, Harry W. Dunlap, Jr., E. C. Hastings, Ellsworth Jordan, Charles A. McClintoch, William G. Saul, Jr., A. Cass Sunstein.

The memorial will be the central figure of a group of buildings forming a quadrangle now in the course of construction upon Kiski campus. The memorial unit will consist of a library, recreation hall and two dormitory wings. Completed and equipped it will cost $100,000. The erection of a new science hall and recitation building, completing the quadrangle, is being financed by the school.

HOOVER VETOES LAND SUIT BILL

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP.)—President Hoover yesterday vetoed the House bill which would authorize the United States to be made a defendant in litigation by the state of Oregon for the determination of the title to lands constituting the beds of Malheur and lakes and lands riparian thereto.

The ruling cited that the Supreme Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit by the government against Oregon to try the title to the beds of the lakes and to determine whether they are navigable and whether the title passed to the state upon its admission to the Union.

The District Court, it added, has jurisdiction to hear suits against individuals holding under patents from the United States and which would determine whether any part of the beds of the streams passed to the patentees if the lakes are non-navigable.

Bandits Kill Man, Flee With Payroll

CLEVELAND, June 7.—(AP.)—Three bandits shot and killed Tony Veryk, 35, contractor, and took $1,500 he had with him to pay his men.

The holdup occurred on the third floor of a West Side apartment house which Veryk had under construction. He was shot while he attempted to save the money. The bandits escaped.

OBITUARY

King Funeral

Funeral services were to be held today for Robert S. King, 48, former resident of Wilkinsburg, who died Tuesday in St. Louis. The services were to be held in the T. D. Turner funeral home, Wilkinsburg, and burial was to be in the Murrysville Cemetery, Murrysville. Mr. King was born in Murrysville and lived in Wilkinsburg about 15 years. At the time of his death he made his home in Fort Worth, Tex. He had been engaged in the oil business in Texas for the last 10 years and was making a business trip when he died. He was a member of Beta Lodge No. 647, F. and A. M., of Wilkinsburg, and Mosiah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of Fort Worth. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Tirzah Donald King, a daughter, Miss Mary P. King, a brother, James L. King, of Chillicothe, O., and a sister, Mrs. R. A. Scott, of Wilkinsburg.

Mrs. N. J. Sepp

Mrs. Anna Soeter Sepp, wife of N. J. Sepp, of 4807 Friendship avenue, died this morning in the West Penn Hospital, after a long illness. She was born at Gastonville, Pa., and had spent virtually all her life in the Pittsburgh district. Besides her husband, she leaves a daughter, Virginia; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Soeter; a brother, Charles Soeter, and three sisters, Mrs. Louis Kline and Mrs. Frank Delinar, all of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. William Smith, of Wellsburg, W. Va. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at Samson's funeral home, and burial will be in Homewood Cemetery.

Rowe Funeral

Funeral services for James L. Rowe, former Pittsburgher who died in New York yesterday, will be held Monday in St. Lawrence's Catholic Church, Penn and Atlantic avenues. Burial is to be in Calvary Cemetery. Mr. Rowe was born in Pittsburgh and spent many years here. He had been a resident of New York 15 years. DAILY TRUE STORY

By [illegible]

Willie Hoadley used to live down on Mechanic street.

The Mechanic street gang was noted, or notorious, to be more accurate, for its toughness.

All except Willie Hoadley. Willie ain't mingle much with the other boys. He wouldn't go swimming off the dock. His mother had told him not to do so. With the gang thus was no excuse at all.

"Wot of it?" demanded Spike Hennessey when Willie explained his reason. "All dailies is like that. Just say Spike all then do as you please."

But Willie wouldn't do that.

He wouldn't get into a scrap if he'd edge out of it if possible, and as for deliberately picking a scrap—never!

In a tight corner he had been known to slug his way out in an awkward manner but this was rare. His mother told him that it wasn't gentlemanly to fight.

Willie was quite a favorite with the girls at the age when most of the Mechanic street gang considered it steadfast to even notice a girl.

Mrs. Hoadley lived in the Hoadley Block, a four-story brick structure she had inherited from her husband. The tenants brought her sufficient income. Willie got work as an office boy here and there, finally drifting over to the offices of the Terra Firma people who made moving pictures out on the coast.

Willie got passes to some of the big movie houses. He would take Sue Ripley or Mazie Reynolds and sometimes Hattie Sawyer. Hattie was the little beauty of Mechanic street.

As time passed the boys began to pay more attention to the girls. Hattie was extremely popular.

And the gang continued to regard Willie Hoadley with lofty amusement tinged with disgust.

'Bust in the Snoot'

"Just a white-collar sissy," Pete Gorman agreed.

Spike drove a truck when he worked at all. Pete became a mechanic in a garage. Most all of the Mechanic street gang boasted of what they termed "men's jobs," when they worked.

A few didn't work at all apparently. They were in on minor gangster rackets.

He stopped off at the drug store on the way home and blew her to a college ice.

Spike, Pete, Dusty Hawkins and some others of the gang were loafing about the corner and watched all of this.

They trailed along after Willie and Hattie. When he left her at her door and started back to his home it was Dusty who stopped him.

"Th' next time we see you wastin' the Sawyer dame's time, Willie," Dusty informed him, "you'll get a bust in the snoot that will leave your beak glued to your map. Get that?"

"Did you every try being a gentleman?" Willie asked him.

"Beat it before I kick you in th' pants all th' way home," snarled Dusty, who had no desire to be a gentleman.

Willie smiled genially at him. Dusty rushed up and made a kick. Willie stepped to one side and cuffed Dusty on the side of the head, only he forgot to open his first. Between the blow and the attempt to kick, Dusty went down.

"Go and get a dozen more, you heroes," Willie suggested.

Spike administered a smart kick. Willie found a handy brick. Spike tried to duck. The brick gouged him along the neck and took Pete in the stomach, flat-wise—that is, the brick was flat when it hit him. Then Pete was flat.

Officer Ginsberg came along.

"So I seen—so I seen. Go awn, loafers, go get for your bum gang a lot more fellers to pick on one guy."

"We'll get you and knock your lousy block off, you big doll-baby!" Spike threatened in a whisper to Willie.

Undoubtedly they would have waylaid Willie some dark night and beat him up so that his fond mother wouldn't recognize him, except that Willie went away. He was sent to the coast on an office errand. Picture producers are that way.

Taken for Extra

Willie delivered the duplicate files entrusted to him and was about to come back, highly elated with his trip, when Mr. Rosen, of the casting department, saw him.

"I say so."

"Lissen, Kid, you ain't giving me much of a laugh. I'll bar you from the list from now on—see what sort of a laugh you get out of that! And what's more I am going to throw you—"

"What's the idea, Rosen, picking a fight with our New York messenger?"

"Wha—New York messenger? Say, I thought he was one of them wise extras who think they can walk through here and get on a set. My error, kid," and Rosen smiled and shook hands with Willie, chiefly because he liked his job and was afraid of Myron Blaumberg, production manager.

"I'd like to see some shooting," Willie said, thinking it a good chance. He had never been on a big set and he wanted something to tell his mother and Hattie Sawyer when he got back East.

"Take care of him, Robert," Blaumberg ordered.

Willie Hoadley went on the set. He stood where he was told and kept absolute silence during the whole episode.

Wally Emerson, director, noticed him.

"I want you," he said, "in the card room set. Go clamp into your evening clothes and be on a lot at 2:30."

Willie Hoadley explained that he was a mere messenger boy from New York. That meant nothing to Emerson. He called his assistant and had him dig up clothes for Willie. Willie bungled through the card room scene, he bungled beautifully, he acted right at home, he didn't try to fling the bills over

Gang Jealous

After this Willie remained at a salary small but big enough to Willie. He lounged through more sets and got small parts and speaking parts. His mother didn't want to leave Hoadley Block where she had lived since her marriage so she wrote to Willie that God would bless him for the hundred he sent here each week and to be sure and come home for Thanksgiving.

He had not risen to the top of the ranks. Probably he never would because this is a true story, but he became a dependable actor, especially in haughty society parts or cowardly aristocrat roles, and his nice new contract called for 500 berries per each group of seven days—chicken-feed for the stars, but affluence for Willie.

When he came home for a month's visit in the spring he was sartorially perfect.

Willie had kept in trim at a gymnasium. He needed that youthful complexion and graceful carriage in his business of earning his salary.

He was quite a treat to many of the Mechanic street drivers, and especially to Sue Ripley, Mazie Reynolds and Hattie Sargent.

Hattie knocked Willie for a stack of loops—she had developed, she had the personality of a Garbo, beauty of a Gish and it of a Bow—in Willie's eyes.

But Willie made no hit with the old gang of "He men." Spike Hennessey, Pete, Dusty and the others.

More than that, they were dead sore, for there had been a friendly understanding that one of them was going to rop the beautiful Hattie Sargent.

"This big parsay comin' back here with a line about bein' a movie star," growled Spike.

"Naw," said Pete, "he's in pitchers, doin' bits. I recognized him not long ago, but after we finish with him all he can do will be to double for Bull Montana. We'll beat him up and spoil his face, th' big parsay."

"I got a better scheme. We'll have somebone slip him th' dope we're regular killers, we'll give him a ride—stick a rod in his ribs an' then tell him to beat it an' if he comes back he'll be bumped sure—then no dames will give him sympathy."

This was agreed on.

Dusty, who believed that he was closest to winning the beautiful Hattie, slipped her the information that Willie was to be given a ride.

Taken for 'Ride'

She tried to warn Willie but it was too late. She saw, with her own eyes, Spike stop a car and invite Willie in.

Hattie went home to weep it out; she couldn't tell a soul or she'd be killed, she was warned.

And Willie was going out with her that night, and he was on the verge of asking her to marry him, she knew quite well.

They took Willie out into the country. Willie chattered about stars he knew and the beauties of Hollywood until Spike stuck a gun in his ribs and told him he was going to be bumped and he had better think up any old prayers he might have known.

"Indeed!" said Willie. As he said that Spike howled with pain. Willie had twisted Spike's wrist too sharply and had broken it.

Willie then slugged Pete over the bean and Peter collapsed. Dusty reached for the wheel. Spike struck at Willie with his good hand and Willie slapped his ears down.

The car went into a gully and stopped. Dusty turned to grapple with Willie who hopped out of the car.

"In the gym," Willie said, "we hire professional pugs to play around with—sock!"

Dusty went down.

Willie had to slug Pete again. He bound up Spike's wrist, but gave him a pair of shiners because of the vile names Pete called him.

Then he drove them back to the city and stopped in front of Hattie's home and tooted. Hattie came down. Willie kicked the trio of Mechanic street toughs out on the sidewalk.

"Comes on, Babe," Willie said to Hattie. "let's drive through the park. I got something to tell you."

What he had to tell her concerned a furnished bungalow and a marriage certificate, out in Hollywood—only they got the certificate of marriage before they went out to live in the bungalow.

WELL, WELL! BY JOVE THAT'S INTERESTING, INDEED. AH BEFORE YOU GIVE ME ALL THE DETAILS, COLONEL, LET ME ASK YOU JUST ONE QUESTION. WILL MISS PEGGY BE HERE THIS EVENING?
YES, LATER ON. I FIGURED THAT WHOEVER FRISKED THIS HOUSE WAS LOOKING FOR THAT MAP. WELL THEY'D BETTER STAY AWAY FROM HERE. I KNOW HOW TO COOL OFF RED-HOTS. FAN 'EM WITH A BASEBALL BAT.
BY JOVE COLONEL YOU OUGHT TO HAVE SOME PROTECTION. IF YOU INSIST UPON IT I'LL JUST LET OTHER MATTERS GO FOR THE MOMENT AND STAY RIGHT HERE WITH YOU NIGHT AND DAY UNTIL—AHEM, WELL HARTFORD, I'D SURE LOVE THAT BUT— WELL I'LL SPEAK TO MRS BUNGLE ABOUT THAT, AH WOMEN ARE PECULIAR IN SOME WAYS AND— WELL YOU KNOW WHAT I MEAN.
YES, I DO COLONEL, BUT AS USUAL, I'LL JUST SUFFER IN SILENCE. MRS BUNGLE IS A VERY LEVEL-HEADED WOMAN. SO MUCH SO THAT AT TIMES I'M TEMPTED TO FORGET THE FACTS AND ASSUME HER MISUNDERSTANDING OF ME MAY BE CORRECT.
AHEM WELL THE FIRST CHANCE I GET I'LL SPEAK TO HER ABOUT THIS AND— SHH-HH! HERE SHE IS. LET'S TALK ABOUT SOMETHING ELSE RIGHT NOW.

Another Step in Progress Of Allegheny General

An institutional structure has three birthdays—all significant enough to warrant ceremonial activity. These are the dates of the breaking of ground, laying of corner stone and formal dedication of the new building to its purposes. Towering steel framework has arisen since the new Allegheny General Hospital observed the first of these occasions, and it is now ready for the second. Its corner stone will be laid in the presence of several hundred invited guests at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

For the public this means that Allegheny General is one step nearer its goal of providing relief for a larger number of afflicted humanity. When its steel skeleton is inclosed with 15 stories of brick and stone, in North Avenue, facing the park, there will be, for the use of the people, a $5,000,000 structure. That monetary sum does not include the inestimable value of years of planning and effort by members of the hospital association that were a necessary preliminary to raising the fund for the erection of the new building.

No money, of course, can measure the importance of this—or any—hospital. Who can state the value of life prolonged in a hospital? The joy in families in which a loved one is restored to health? It can't be done, but we know that a $5,000,000 hospital founded on the useful experience of such an institution as Allegheny General will be in a position to multiply that life value and that joy in families of our community.

Two Men With Ideas Cut Loose From Pitt

Prof. Colston E. Warne and W. Ellison Chalmers, an instructor, both members of the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh, have resigned. They go to other institutions of learning, where their liberal ideas will be more welcome—Prof. Warne to Amherst and Mr. Chalmers to the University of Wisconsin. Both have been associated with activities that have caused much excitement on the Pitt campus in the past.

"The University of Pittsburgh will have a brilliant future only if it can learn the difficult lesson of tolerance of ideas, however distasteful these may be to the entrenched business interests," Prof. Warne concluded in a statement relative to his early departure from Pittsburgh.

Perhaps these men's trouble-making ideas may be of the highest value or the least. The big thing is that they are ideas. Since it seems that they are liberal political ideas they may be closely related to some of those held by Plato, most eminent disciple of Socrates, whose life was sacrificed to the state in loyalty to ideas. For ages we have been trying to learn how to think so logically that the truth cannot evade us. It is a sad commentary when a university cannot foster sincere thought on ANY SUBJECT.

Two Presidents

That Would Simplify Matters.

France will elect a new president within a year—her thirteenth. Several candidates already are in the field. But it will not make much difference who is elected.

A French president is about as important as an American vice president. He holds office for seven years. His job, chiefly, is to look pleasant and to be pleasant. He is the official glad-hander of France.

Compared with ours, the French system has its merits. The Prime Minister, who is the real chief executive, holds office as long as Parliament is with him and is turned out when Parliament is against him. Our chief executive holds office four years, whether Congress and the people want him or not. And even if they want him for another four years, the country must go through the sound and fury of a presidential election. That upsets everything for several months.

A French prime minister, too, can spend most of his time governing. Our President must devote several hours a day to shaking hands with delegations, posing for pictures, laying cornerstones, or making speeches to Boy Scouts and other civic bodies.

If there is any time left over, he can use it in the service of his country.

Our Constitution is practically perfect, of course, but it kills presidents. We really need two presidents at a time—one for work, one for ceremonies.

Little Defeats

Loss of Youthfulness and Courage.

After sailing alone for nearly five years in a 39-foot boat, Alain Gerbault lingered on the Cape Verde Islands, where he wrote his book, "In Quest of the Sun." He had started out in 1924. He returned to Havre last year. His boat was built in 1892. He is now building another boat for another long trip. He writes:

"As the end of my voyage drew nearer a great sadness took possession of me; the cruise was soon to end, and with it the happiest period of my life."

And a great sadness takes hold of some of us who still feel the stir of an old instinct—the instinct to go in quest of the sun—and yet realize that we have lost the youthfulness, the courage that recklessness demands. One of the little woes of living is the awareness of common sense creeping upon us to rout boyish preposterousness.

SUN TELEGRAPH'S PLATFORM

For Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania

2—Rapid Transit.
3—Repeal or modification of "blue law."
4—Establishment of Pittsburgh metropolitan district.
5—Community Fund for charities.
6—Town Hall, seating at least 15,000.
7—Voting machines to insure honest elections.
8—Development of river transportation.

All Quiet On the Western Front

Drawn by Nelson Harding

The war is over over there
But raging over here
Are many little wars between

The battle front is nation-wide,
The casualties so many,
There's hope the gangsters may fight on Until there aren't any.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The Roots of Evil

It is a terrific strain to watch $850,000,000 in gold being moved in the streets and not be able to do anything about it.

"Bugs" Baer

We watched it the other day and stood there helpless with a pair of loaded dice in our pockets.

The golden building material was taken for a spin from one bank to another in Wall street. Folks, when you lamp that much money in one lumpy merger, you can feel your eyes turning green with the purest of emerald envy.

You get growing pains in your pocket, a certified chill runs up your spine like a monkey on a grapevine and your mouth becomes as dry as a safety deposit vault.

That's the way we felt. And others in the morbid huddle felt the same. And the bank officials realize that is the way everybody feels because they too know what it is to have loved and crashed.

So they take as many precautions as the Turk within his guarded tent. Nobody is going to play marbles with their sparkling nuggets.

Before the wealthy gravy was transferred all the officials sat down to a timid luncheon. The speaking was mostly the crunching of celery. The vice presidents had their bullet-proof napkins around their necks and drank their soup out of trench helmets.

Then the boys got into their armored limousines equipped with storm doors and emergency exits. Call money was yelling again.

The street was closed to the public at large. And also the small people.

The bank guards had their machine guns and other toys of Chicago childhood. They had orders to shoot first and go in for cross-word puzzles afterward.

It was one of those situations where you feel that the only honest man in the world is in a glass case in the museum. And he is stuffed with bribes.

Augmenting the guards were 50 robust, corn-fed and corn-footed policemen, chosen for their owl-like ability to swing nightsticks in the daytime.

If you dropped a dime at that moment you had to let it go. It was dangerous to look for it.

EARTH MAGNETISM

By Archibald Henderson

From the initial chapter in the great story of cosmic evolution, a field of magnetic force of time, the material bodies have been obeying certain laws and moving in accordance with certain forces. The operation of these laws, everything we have learned teaches us, is immutable. The laws do not change; it is we who change in response to their operation.

One of the great subjects for scientific study, about which we knew comparatively little, is terrestrial magnetism. Connected closely with that is the subject of terrestrial electricity. According to a pamphlet recently issued by the Carnegie Institution:

There exists about the earth a field of magnetic force of which the origin is still unknown. The distributions and variations of this field present charteristics which are related not only to the magnetic and electric phenomena of the earth and its atmosphere, but also to solar and cosmic phenomena. The strength and direction of the earth's magnetism in the horizontal and vertical planes are referred to as the magnetic "elements," and these vary from place to place.

An exact knowledge of the way in which they vary is demanded for the efficient use of the compass in maritime and aerial navigation; and a study of irregularities of distribution is one of the few means we possess for investigating the properties of subterranean masses. However, the values of the magnetic elements obtained at any point are constant, but undergo periodical and irregular variations.

If there were only one type of variation for the pointing of the compass needle the difficulties would not be so great. But there are three different types of variation.

First, there is a diurnal variation in the pointing. The needle shifts gradually back and forth in the course of 24 hours. This variation has been found to be greatest in summer and least in winter. The natural and inevitable inference is that the diurnal variation is an effect, direct or indirect, of the heat of the sun.

Second, there is a shifting of the needle, back and forth, in a period of something more than 11 years. This phenomenon is intimately connected with the periodicity of the spots on the sun.

Third, there is a long-period or secular change in the pointing of the needle. In the year 1570, at Greenwich, England, the magnetic needle pointed 11 degrees east of north. Ninety years later it pointed due north. In 1800 it pointed 24 degrees west of north. Since 1800 the swing of the needle has been easterly, so that now, at Greenwich, the average reading is about 14 degrees west of north.

Certain other fluctuations of the needle give us important information, derivable from no other source. For instance, fluctuations of the needle which are sudden and unexpected may indicate "magnetic storms"—some sort of effect of cataclysmic occurrences on the sun. At such times, if the "magnetic storm" is intense, there occur auroral disturbances, the passage of powerful electric currents of cosmic origin on telegraph and telephone lines, which put them out of commission for hours at a time, and the occurrence of spots, large, active or numerous, on the sun.

Second, sudden fluctuations of the needle may be due to the near presence of magnetic materials in the earth. Dr. W. W. Campbell reports an experience on shipboard approaching the harbor of Broome, on the northwest coast of Australia, when the ship's compass needle, due to the presence of a great subterranean mass of metallic iron ore, varied its pointing through 70 degrees and back again in the course of not more than three or four minutes of time.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD ∴

By Elsie Robinson

Noon time. Waiting. No sound up here.
Fifty stories up, the sky's a vacuum—
Fifty stories down, New York's a blur.
Men, like tiny seeds, moving in the blur—
Little, insignificant men—'way down—
Lost in a vastness of buildings,
Trapped in a vastness of sky—
WHAT CHANCE HAVE MEN?
Empty sky. Blurred earth. Waiting. Wondering
Suddenly from the East—
Rushing out of the West—
Answering from the North—
Echoing from the South—
A movement—
A murmur—
A droning—
They come!
THE AEROPLANES COME!

Nine by nine—V-shaped—
V-shaped, as geese fly—
On come the airships,
Rising in squadrons—
Zooming and soaring—
Wheeling and whirling—
'Til all the air is Athrob with their thrumming—
'Til the horzons
Are bridged by their wings.
And, far below, man—
Once feeblest of creatures—
Looks up with awe at
The Thing he has made.

Once, where he now stands,
Mastodons foraged—
Naked and stupid.
And gripped by despair,
Man was the victim
Of everything 'round him,
Bound by the terror
Of earth, sea and air.

Now he is free from
The beasts that destroyed him;
Free from the fears, too,
That held him in thrall—
He who was driven
Has made himself master;
He who was earth bound
Has built himself wings.
Fokkers take off where
The ichthy'saur wallowed;
Curtiss-Wright flash past
The dinosaur's trail;
And that dark sky which
The cave man so dreaded
Now is a track for
His overnight mail.
Now he hunts poles on Savoia-Marchettis,
Continents shrink 'neath
Young Lindbergh Lockheed;
Death is outripped by
A racing Sikorsky,
And time's made a mock by
The Travel Air's speed.
Up from the land ways
The airships are rising,
Spurning the earth bonds
Of time and of place;
Spreading their wings to
The gales of adventure—
"GIVE 'ER THE GUN, BO, AND HEAD HER FOR SPACE!"

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

When a woman in Erie come home from Europe, she gave some presents to the kids in the family upstairs that had been taking care of her dog and cat for nothing. Danny come down and says, "Thanks ever so much, Mrs. Kopek, for them things you brought us."

"Oh, don't mention it, Danny! They were really nothing, and you people did so much for me while I was gone."

"Yeah, that's just what I told Mom, and she said that was true but that I got to be polite anyhow."

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

9. What Is Meant by the Germ-plasm.

It is evident from what has gone before that whether reproduction is sexual or whether it is not, there is material continuity between one generation and the next. The individual is a detached bit of its parent.

H. G. Wells

Weismann, the great German zoologist, pointed out in the latter half of the last century that that part of a man which grew into his children generally survived the rest of him.

And a small part of him growing into his grandchildren, survived still longer. Indeed, unless a man is childless, he does not wholly die. A bit of him, part of his living substance, is handed on generation after generation, forever.

For this immortal bit of the organism, that is to live on after the rest is done with, Weismann coined the phrase germ-plasm. He set it in contrast to the soma, which is the mortal remainder.

More than 99.9 per cent by weight of the reader is soma; a fraction of an ounce of material in his testes or her ovariesis germ-plasm. The soma is the individual, who will live and die; the germ-plasm may go on indefinitely.

The germ-plasm is potentially immortal. Generation after generation it lives on, sprouting out bodies to house it and feed it and keep it warm, driving them with strange appetites and lusts so that it may get release from them and start again.

Clearly it is the germ-plasm which evolves, not the ephemeral individual bodies that it throws out. The horse evolution was a slow modification of equine germ-plasm; the Micraster evolution a steady change in sea-urchin germ-plasm; man's rise from the apes also a stir in the germ-plasm.

For in a sense there is only one germ-plasm. Presumably life had a single origin; the living things we know today are divergent branches of one stock, twigs of one tree of germ-plasm.

BOOK IV.
CHAPTER THREE.
The Mechanism of Inheritance.
Sec. 1. How Our Cells Multiply.

Now here we are going down into almost ultra-microscopic mysteries. We are dealing with things quite outside and quite unlike the ordinary experiences of Mr. Everyman. Any analogies we can draw from the incidents of daily life are likely to be misleading.

And yet what we have to tell here is among the most fundamental stuff of Mr. Everyman's life. All his innate character, all that much of his personal destiny is determined by these hidden, microscopic, inhuman interactions we shall now detail. What we have to set forth indeed is what takes the place in modern knowledge of the dark spinning of the Fates.

It is impossible to grasp modern concepts of the development and destiny of life, unless a broad understanding of this, the fundamental texture of the life process, is attained.

We have already made it clear that all living things take their origin in pieces of living substance detached from the bodies of other living things. This can now be extended by another statement, that every living cell arises from a pre-existing cell.

There are a few organisms, it is true, such as the slime-fungi and some seaweeds, in which cell-boundaries are lost or never developed. They form an exception to the statement more logical than real.

That cell divided itself into two, and then into four, and then into eight, and so on until every one of the millions of cells in our bodies was produced.

Cells are never generated independently, never (as was once imagined) arise spontaneously out of some formless matrix, any more than whole animals or plants arise spontaneously from formless slime or decaying corpses.

That is why, in order to understand growth and reproduction, we have to think in terms of cells and to study their method of multiplication.

Let us turn back to the first chapter of Book I, when we watch the creeping movements of a single mammalian cell in one of Dr. Strangeway's tissue-cultures. We saw then that the cells multiplied, as Protozoa do, by tearing into halves; let us note as carefully as possible the details of the process.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 7.—New York has had a number of conspicuous examples of great actresses who were on Broadway but not a part of its tenuous mixture. Almost invariably these shrinking violets have symbolized the best moral forces on the legitimate stage and the screen.

Perhaps the outstanding figure of all the self-effacing guild is Maud Adams. She has never attended a Broadway party or was she ever seen in one of those brilliantly lighted cafes dubbed "smart." Her life has been and is now one of sombre attenuations.

Miss Adams had what might be termed an aesthetic admiration for her public but never mingled with it. To this day she has not been interviewed more than a dozen times. And she is said to be personally acquainted with only two of the dramatic reviewers.

Genevieve and Vivian Tobin are proverbial hot-house flowers, reared in the gentle culture of carefully planned homes. Each is a star in her own right. Their engagement problems have been solely of selection. Almost every producer would jump at the chance to present them.

The former Lorraine Manville, following her marriage to Clare Gould, a handsome leading man, immediately withdrew from the stage. She was educated in the finest schools both here and abroad, after which she chose a footlight career and triumphed. But her life has always been cloistered.

Lillian Gish, with eyes as limpid as clear water, yet incalculably remote, contributed the same aloof quality to the screen. Neither Hollywood nor Broadway knows her save through her art. She attends the theater at intervals with George Jean Nathan, sitting in mouse-like obscurity among glittering notables about her.

Elsie Janis is a trifle more democratic in her contacts, but rarely attends a gathering without her mother. These attitudes of isolation have not alienated stars from the public but proved again distance lends enchantment. All are unusually well beloved.

A tiny shop on Fulton street conceived the bright notion of holding a dollar sale—any article for that price. All the windows were broken, 15 were injured, the interior wrecked and a native of one of those towns with a wild Jersey name swallowed his false teeth.

Jack Donahue is another actor who has gone literary. Recently there arrived at a magazine editor's desk a screed entitled: "The letters of a hoofer to his mother." It bore Donahue's name and the editor and two assistants began running around smashing plates in wild hysteria. The author was telegraphed for to sign on the dotted line.

* * *

Donahue's magazine click is another answer to uppities who sneer only writers "with a name" have a chance in magazine shops. His manuscript was without an identifying letter and the author was not known to be the actor until he called.

It was believed Gene Tunney would, upon his retirement from the ring, turn to writing. However, five leading magazines have been angling for him and have received only polite but firm refusals. No one has been able to anticipate Tunney. He continues to be an enigma in public as naive as a country girl meeting Rudy Vallee.

"Of course," says a writer in the London Express, "New York is a staggering city. But what has it that is absolutely ideal?"

Well, there's a certain columnist, you big tease, you!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You often wonder if all married couples have as many differences as you and your life partner.

Some may have fewer quarrels and others more differences.

Unless conditions are unusual in your family it probably averages the same as in other families.

That is, points exist upon which there is bound to be disagreement if these points are allowed to come up.

Clearing of the atmosphere might be beneficial.

It is far better to have a rousing big quarrel than many little squabbles or several days at a time of grouchiness.

There is more happiness in a home where a quarrel ends bitterness for the time being—perhaps a considerable time—than where there is frequent exchange of angry words.

The ideal condition is where there are no quarrels.

Differences, but not quarrels—sympathetic understanding, though not always agreed as to thought and action, often exists in families.

Even if there is not complete understanding a certain deference between married folk makes for desired happiness.
